MEXICAN MEDIATORS APPEAL TO WILSON.

Asked to Influence Carranza to Obtain General Amnesty.

Unless Huerta Followers are Protected, Carbajal Will Resist Invasion.

WASHINGTON, July 22.—Ambassador Da Gama of Brazil and Ministers Suarez of Chili and Naon of Argentina, the three mediators in the Mexican affair, appealed to President Wilson today to have the United States use its influence with General Carranza to obtain a general amnesty for those who supported the Huerta government. It was the first formal call of the three mediators since the conference at Niagara Falls adjourned. They were accompanied by Secretary Bryan and for nearly an hour discussed the Mexican situation in all its phases.

They told President Wilson that, unless guarantees for the protection of the lives and property of those who supported Huerta are given, the Carbajal government will concentrate its military forces and resist until the utmost any effort to invade Mexico City. The President and Secretary Bryan listened attentively to the diplomats, especially as they indicated that their governments probably would be unable to recognize any administration in Mexico which should refuse to give quarter to its enemy or establish itself by peaceful means in accordance with civilized practice. The mediators also pointed out the danger of an armed entry of Constitutionalists into Mexico City and urged that the United States use every influence to bring about a peaceful transfer of power.

After their talk with the President Secretary Bryan and the three diplomats went to the State Department for a conference.

Jose Castellot, personal representative of Carbajal, and Emilio Rabasa, head of the delegation which represented Huerta at the Niagara conference, also were seen by the South Americans. Mr. Castellot said the Carbajal government desires no share in the future administration and no validation of the acts of Huerta, but simply guarantees for lives and property.

Bryan's appeal to Carranza and Villa to eliminate personal differences which may exist between them is interpreted in Washington as the American government's preliminary step to prevent counter-revolts after the entry of Carranza into Mexico City. The appeal to Carranza was communicated through John R. Silliman, President Wilson's personal representative. An early answer is expected.

Mr. Bryan maintains that he has "nothing definite enough to make public" concerning the rift between the revolutionary generals, but it is known that rumors of a break have come from several authentic sources. One report states that Villa is preparing to keep his army in Chihuahua and pay no heed to Carranza's authority. Mr. Bryan's telegrams of appeal, however, did not assume that the reports are true.

They suggested the importance of co-operation in the Constitutionalist ranks. Villa frequently has stated that the only reason his forces had been concentrated in Chihuahua was to afford them recuperation. They soon will start for the south to participate in the occupation of Mexico City, it is declared.

Conferences over the transfer of government to the Constitutionalists probably will not take place until next week, it is suggested here. Reports of the whereabouts of the three envoys who left Mexico City several days ago, to represent Provisional President Carbajal, are still awaited. Hope for an early agreement between the contending factions is renewed here by reports that Carranza has given assurances that "no nation need fear any indiscriminate taking of vengeance against the Federals." The case of each man, Carranza told representatives of the Washington government, will be disposed of "according to the procedure of civilized countries which have passed through a similar stress of civil war."

WILSON'S DECISION AS TO ACTION AWAITED.

Mobilization of Marines Near Hayti Already Begun.

Washington Officials Sure Peace Can be Restored Only by Intervention.

WASHINGTON, July 22.—Plans for mobilizing at least 1,000 marines within striking distance of Hayti and the Dominican republic moved forward another step with the arrival of naval transport Prairie at Guantanamo from Vera Cruz. The Prairie will bring the full complement of officers for the marines already at Guantanamo and will remain there to transport the force to Hayti should an emergency arise, while the Hancock is away for more troops. Transport Hancock, which has just landed 300 at Guantanamo, is now headed for the Philadelphia navy yard to return with another load to bring the total force up to at least 1,000.

With these preparations, President Wilson's decision as to what action the United States shall take to quell the revolutions in the island, a republic, and satisfy the pressure of European creditors, will be awaited. War and Navy Department officials, confident that peace can be restored on the island only by the active intervention of the United States, are perfecting their plans.

If intervention in Hayti became necessary, it is possible that American troops might be used to put down the long revolt that has harassed the Dominican government. Such action, it was suggested, might be accompanied by extension, of the authority which the United States now exercises in the collection of Dominican customs.

THOSE REMAINING STARVING.

Puerta Plata Refugees, Mostly Porto Ricans, Arrive at San Juan.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, July 22.—United States revenue cutter Algonquin arrived here last night from Puerta Plata, Dominican republic, with 166 refugees, mostly Porto Ricans, on board. One woman died during the voyage from the effects of starvation. The condition of those remaining in Santo Domingo was reported to be pitiable, as it was almost impossible to obtain foodstuffs, the prices of which were prohibitive.

A report was brought here by the Algonquin that an American bluejacket on board gunboat Machias had been shot in the leg by a bullet from the shore.

GARDNER FINALLY WEAKENS.

Forces Williams to Play Hard to Win in Four Sets.

BOSTON, July 22.—In order to make up for time lost yesterday every tennis court at the Longwood Cricket Club grounds was put in use today for matches in the Longwood singles and Eastern doubles championships. Interest centered in the singles match between R. Norris Williams, 2d., of Philadelphia and G. P. Gardner, Jr., of Boston. This contest was long drawn out. In the doubles five matches were settled in straight sets. The contest between T. R. Pell and Karl Behr of New York and H. V. Greenough and Charles Frothingham of Boston was the star attraction. The New Yorkers won but were hard pushed in the second set. Maurice E. McLoughlin and T. C. Bundy, the national champions and possible members of the American Davis Cup team, played an exhibition set against Pell and Behr and won with ease.

The Williams-Gardner match went four sets and the Philadelphia man was forced to play his stiffest game in order to win. Gardner continually ran in on his service and Williams was unable to pass him at the net. After the games were 5-all in the last set Gardner weakened and Williams scored 59 places, 48 nets, 56 outs, 6 double faults and 1 service ace; Gardner 31 places, 56 nest, 42 outs 8 double faults and 6 service aces. The summary:

CIVIL SUIT TO BE FILED IMMEDIATELY.

Wilson Backs Department Action in New Haven Case.

Indications That McReynolds Expects to Ask Bill Against Mellen.

WASHINGTON, July 22.—Preparations for the actual filing of the government's long delayed suit to dissolve the New Haven railroad system, in accordance with President Wilson's instructions, are being made today by the Department of Justice. In a letter to Attorney General McReynolds the President not only directed that civil action be instituted against the New Haven, bu ordered that the "criminal aspect of the case" be laid before a federal grand jury. Decision to proceed against the New Haven ended the long continued efforts to solve the case without litigation. The President and his cabinet had discussed the case and the course of the Department of Justice was approved.

The civil suits is to be filed against the New Haven in the United States court at New York immediately. The Attorney General is to direct the United States district attorney at New York to summon a grand jury and the work of laying evidence before it, on which to ask for criminal indictments against officers and directors of the New Haven under the management of former President Charles S. Mellen, is to be begun at the earliest moment. T. W. Gregory, special assistant in charge of the case, is to have full charge of the civil suit and before the grand jury will have the aid of F. M. Swacker, an Interstate Commerce Commission expert who assisted him in preparing the evidence.

How many indictments are to be sought has not been divulged, but correspondence made public plainly indicates that Mr. McReynolds expects to ask for a bill against Mr. Mellen. The most significant fact in connection with the proceedings is said to be a statement made public by Mr. McReynolds months ago, when the Interstate Commerce Commission began its New Haven investigation, in which he warned the commission to consider whether immunity might be given to certain men if made to testify as to their actions as directors of the road. The names he mentioned were Charles S. Mellen, William Rockefeller, George Miller, Charles F. Brooker, Edward Milner, Lewis Cass Ledyard, George F. Baker and Edward D. Robbins.

In his letter to Mr. McReynolds, directing suit, the President declared that the decision of the New Haven directors not to keep their agreement to dissolve peacefully had caused him "the deepest surprise and regret," and that their failure "upon so slight a pretext" was "inexplicable and entirely without justification." The department's course, he asserted, was just, reasonable and efficient and should have resulted in avoiding suit.

A feature of the correspondence made public by the department, which accompanied President Wilson's letter, was Attorney General McReynolds's letter to the President, which contained a rebuke for the Interstate Commerce Commission in subpoenaing Mellen "and perhaps others flagrantly culpable," with the possible resut of embarrassing the department by claims of immunity in return for their testimony. In this connection Mr. McReynolds stated that criminal prosecutions had always been in mind and that there had never been "the slightest hope that parties guilty of criminal violations of the law would escape."

It is known that the department has what it believes is evidence that Mr. Mellen gave testimony to the commission contradicting evidence in the possession of the Attorney General, and it is possible that if any claim of immunity is raised it would be fought on this issue.

Mr. McReynolds's letter to Mr. Hustis plainly showed that the department took the position that the New Haven directors had not lived up to their agreement of last March for a peaceful dissolution and their refusal to sell their Boston & Maine stock under conditions imposed by Massachusetts, and placed the blame for what might follow upon the heads of these directors.

REGARDING NEW HAVEN CASE.

Wilson and McReynolds Congratulated for Action Taken.

WASHINGTON, July 22.—Congratulations to President Wilson and Attorney General McReynolds were expressed in the Senate today by Senator Reed of Missouri for their determination to proceed criminally and civilly against the New Haven directors.

"I am glad that the government at last is prepared to show its teeth, and I hope and confidently believe that the policy so happily inaugurated will result in the end in no guilty man escaping," said the Senator.

ON COLOMBIAN TREATY.

Roosevelt Asks for Opportunity to be Heard in Opposition.

WASHINGTON, July 22.—Colonel Roosevelt in a letter to Chairman Stone of the Senate foreign relations committee, today asked for an opportunity to be heard in opposition to the pending treaty proposing to pay Colombia $25,000,000 for the partition of Panama. The request was considered by the committee without action, however, as Chairman Stone was unable to marshal a quorum.

"I replied to Colonel Roosevelt's letter personally, saying that I would submit the matter of hearings on the Colombian treaty and his appearanace before it to the committee," said Senator Stone.

The Missouri Senator said he had not set a date for another meeting of the committee, but he would try to get the members together soon. The text of Mr. Roosevelt's letter he would not make public because it was addressed to the committee.

FIRE INSURANCE RATES.

New Tariff for Newport and Big Increase in Providence Districts.

In certain districts in Providence there has been a big jump in fire insurance rates and as much as $12.50 a thousand is quoted. The agents say the increase is for the purpose of guarding the companies against conflagration loss similar to that in Salem. They say they have long recognized the danger of the localities where the increase has been made and are satisfied that there will be no improvement under the old rates, but instead the danger limits have been steadily increasing. With rates increased they anticipated that owners will awaken to the necessity of making their poperty more safe, as their pockets are now directly attacked as a result of ignoring all other appeals.

Inquiry among local insurance men fails to bring out any suggestion that because of the Salem losses there is likely to be any increase here. As a matter of fact, however, they are not very talkative over the local situation. They say, nevertheless, that it is recognized by the companies that Newport is a city of shingle roofs and that the insurance men are not disposed to overlook such communities after they have been hit by similar conditions in Chelsea and Salem.

Some who have had occasion to renew insurance since June 19 have learned that they must pay more. On that date a new tariff went into effect for Newport. The Daily News is informed that, while some risks are the same and some are lower, the general result is an increase. Insurance experts worked on Newport for a considerable period in preparing the new tariff, and while the agents are not disposed to discuss what bearing the present condition of the fire department may have had in influencing the increase, it is stated that the insurance companies are neither deaf to the local agitation for a re-organization of the department nor blind to actual conditions, and that it may be found that if all the re-organization talk ends in talk the present tariff will be amended. The inference to be drawn from guarded remarks is that, unless an active movement is made to bring the department up to date in the near future, property owners will find that they will be taxed for the omission by the insurance companies. What changes are deemed necessary is not indicated.

NEWSPAPER FACTS.

Well Filed Clippings Make Interesting and Valuable Encyclopedias.

[Minneapolis Journal.]

Not long since a library of newspaper clippings was put up for sale and brought a fair price. A person who clips intelligently from newspapers, files the clippings well, and indexes them properly, has a private and personal encyclopaedia that will prove interesting and invaluable.

In his novel, "A Terrible Temptation," Charles Reade, under the guise of one of his characters, told how he was accustomed to spend several hours daily cutting out items from newspapers. Statistics, stories of accidents, descriptions of places and storms, police reports and the like, all found place in his books. He tells of his 20 folios of classified facts, ideas and pictures, and his solid quartos called indexes. The description of an Australian sunrise in "Never Too Late to Mend," for example, came from one of these scrapbooks.

A newspaper edited with fair intelligence is a wonderful mine of fact, description, plot, poetry and suggestion of all kinds. We read these flying sheets carelessly and toss them aside, just as we neglect the other great possibilities that hover over and around this wonderful life every day. After all, it is hard to see things unless we begin to look for them, then they blossom around us everywhere in surprising ways and in unexpected places—even in newspapers.

ANTI-SUFFRAGE GROWING.

Many New Branches Being Formed and Membership Increasing.

[The Remonstrance.]

Cheering news comes from all the state associations opposed to woman suffrage. The Maine association reports the formation of a large number of new branches; the membership of the New Jersey association has grown from 413 to 8,099 within 13 months; the membership of the Virginia association has more than trebled within the past year; the anti-suffrage luncheon given by the New York association at the Biltmore in April was the largest women's luncheon ever given in that city; the Connecticut association has now more than 11,000 members; the Rhode Island association added 1,600 to its membership list in 10 days; and reports of rapidly increasing membership come from Pennsylvania, New Hampshire, Maryland and other states. New state associations have been organized in Delaware, Georgia, Nevada, Nebraska, North Dakota, Minnesota, Montana and Wisconsin. As to Massachusetts, the number of branches has more than doubled during the year.

MIDDLETOWN.

[Regular correspondence of the News.]

The annual picnic of the parish of the Berkeley Memorial Chapel was held, by invitation of Rev. John B. Diman, at St. George's School Tuesday, more than 50 attending. The guests were shown over the buildings and grounds by Rev. Mr. Diman, after which luncheon was served on the terrace east of the dining hall. There was also ice cream, lemonade and candy. When it rained the company adjourned to the dining hall, where there was a series of games, Rev. Mr. Diman as usual taking an active part. The gathering broke up after the rain had ceased, having had a happy time.

A handsome rainbow was seen over the Seaconnet river after the storm, between 6 and 7, Tuesday evening.

Places along the state road, the East Main, are being doctored by John H. Anthony, who first aplied tar and then a small coating of crushed stone.

The Epworth League of the Methodist Episcopal Church is actively engaged in preparing for its annual lawn party.

Rev. Clayton E. Delamater of Fall River, a former pastor, will be the preacher at the Methodist Episcopal church Sunday.

WOMAN'S WORK FOR PEACE.

Baroness von Suttner Devoted a Whole Life to Movement Against War.

Julia Ward Howe Worked Through Suffrage and the Advancement of Her Sisters.

[New York Evening Post.]

Women always want peace. Therefore it is strange that Baroness Bertha von Suttner, whose death occurred in Vienna recently was probably the only woman of international renown whose name is thought of at once in connection with peace, the only one who devoted her whole life to it. It is men, for the most part, and not women, whose names have been on peace committees and Peace Society boards, and who have represented their countries at meetings and congresses. For the most part women have been passively in favor of peace. Now they are just waking up to the idea that action is a splendid thing. The death of Baroness von Suttner, which brings her life and accomplishments vividly to every one's mind, will probably do a great deal for the women-and-peace movement, especially in this country, where women in every state, speaking through the convention of the Women's Clubs Federation in Chicago, have declared themselves unreservedly against all war.

Bertha von Suttner's achievements are well known. After living, quite undisturbedly, through three wars, she became secretary for Dr. Alfred B. Nobel, manufacturer of war materials and inventor of dynamite, who afterwards established the Nobel Foundation. It is sometimes said that his work and his growing tendency towards peace were what first influenced her; at other times it is said that she evolved her own ideas on the subject, and was the inspiration of his Nobel peace prize, a part of the Foundation. At any rate, it was at this time, while she was acting as secretary, that she found herself vitally interested in the work which she followed for the rest of her life doing more for it than any other woman and than most men. It is also mythical and not certainly true, that her book, "Die Waffen Nieder," was what decided Czar Nicholas II to call the first Peace Conference at The Hague.

But there is nothing uncertain about the fact that this great first peace book of hers stirred up the most universal feeling against war which had ever been stirred up. None of her other books could make such an impression as her first one, but they did their part in keeping alive the feeling which had been aroused. Among them are "Martha's Children," a sequel to "Die Waffen Nieder"; "The Age of Machinery," a journal of the Hague Peace Conference in 1900; "Letters to a Dead Man," "The Great Thoughts of Humanity," and "The Romance of an Author." She was the editor of the magazine published by the International Peace bureau in Berne, Switzerland, "Die Waffen Nieder"; was a member of the advisory council to the Carnegie Peace Foundation, president of the Austrian Peace Society, and honorary president of the International Peace Society of Berne.

Baroness von Suttner lived just long enough to know, although it is not certain, on account of her three weeks' illness, that she did know, of the resolution adopted by the women of the United States in favor of peace. This resolution would have been a great happiness to her, for she believed implicitly in the capability of Americans, and of American women particularly, to do the strongest work towards peace of any people. In 1904 she visited the United States to attend the Peace Conference in Boston. In 1912 she went to San Francisco to talk at the National Convention of Women's Clubs and give the women of America the message of her faith in them and in the great need the world had of them.

And the woman who worked for peace with as much earnestness as Baroness von Suttner was an American woman, Julia Ward Howe. Probably the only reason why her name does not at once suggest the word "peace" is because it at once suggests so many other things. She hoped for peace through woman suffrage and the "advancement of women," which was the name of the association she founded. About the Franco-Prussian war she wrote:

"It seemed to me a return to barbarism, the issue being one that might easily have been settled without bloodshed. The question forced itself upon me, 'Why do not the mothers of mankind interfere in these matters, to prevent the waste of that human life of which they alone know the cost?' I had never thought of this before. The august dignity of motherhood, and its terrible responsibility, now appeared to me in a new aspect; and I could think of no better way of expressing my sense of these things than that of sending forth an appeal to womanhood throughout the world."

She did send forth an appeal, which resulted, after two years of preparation, in a Woman's Peace Congress in London in 1872. When she came back to America she began the celebration of Mothers' day on the second day of June, for the advancement of peace. From this Mothers' day the mothers' congresses of the present are supposed to be descended.

"My dream was of a mighty and august Congress of Mothers, which should constitute a new point of departure for the regeneration of society by the elimination of the selfish and brutal elements which lead to war and bloodshed," she said.

She was a member of the board of directors of the American Peace Society, and one of its vice presidents, and she spoke at the International Peace Congress in Boston in 1904.

Although there are few individual women now who are working for peace alone, there are great groups of women everywhere declaring themselves as against war and becoming more and more active. The very fact that few women are working for peace alone, but are working for suffrage and that same "advancement of women" which Mrs. Howe advocated, is an encouraging sign that peace is being slowly helped along.

There is a commitee on peace and arbitration of the National American Woman Suffrage Society and a similar committee of the International Council of Women, which held a convention in Rome. Women planned almost entirely the great pageant which was given in London, in celebration of the 100 years of peace between England and America. But, alas, it was also a woman, a militant, who almost broke up that pageant just as Britannia and Columbia, in the persons of Lady Maud Warrender and Mrs. John Astor, were about to clasp hands.

When a war with Mexico seemed to

MANY a merchant has been too busy wondering what the parcel post was going to do for his competitor, the mail order house, to consider that it might have in it some good for himself. Yet instead of being a bugbear, threatening destructive competition, the parcel post in actuality broadens tremendously the smaller merchant's field of trade possibilities. It enables him to deal with every person within fifty miles of his place of business at a lower postal rate and much more expeditiously than any concern outside his district can. The moral is obvious.

TWO SETS TO ONE.

Williams Beats Clothier in Second Round of Singles at Longwood.

A lively shower interrupted Wednesday afternoon's play for the Longwood tennis singles and the Eastern doubles championship at the Longwood Cricket Club, but the skies cleared in time for the chief attraction of the day, the match in the second round of singles between R. Norris Williams 2d, and William J. Clothier, both of Philadelphia which the former won, two sets to one. A thousand tennis enthusiasts waited nearly two hours under thin coverings for the rain to cease and were well rewarded for their patience.

Williams did not show Davis Cup form until well along in the second set, when Clothier had established a lead and seemed to be in a fair way to victory. Then Williams uncorked a sample of tennis which his fellow townsman was unable to handle. The fifth in this second set was the critical game. Clothier had it apparently safe, 40-30, when Williams eased one of his gentle shots down the side line and made it deuce. Clothier drove fiercely by Williams for the vantage point, only to bring it back to deuce on an out. Then Williams, running in on Clothier's service, passed the former champion twice in succession and carried off the game.

The placing of Williams for the next five games gave him the set and squared the match. Clothier showed a slight recovery in the last set, but in the fifth game Williams dashed in with four cannon ball drives and won a love game. He wound it up in short order by taking the next three games and with them the set and match.

Williams made 37 passes and scored on Clothier's 26 nets and 26 outs a total of 89 points. Clothier made 25 passes and scored on Williams's 25 nets and 23 outs and four double faults a total of 77 points.

TO DEFEND DAVIS CUP.

Tennis Players of United States to be Announced This Evening.

The tennis players of the United States who will defend the Davis cup next month will be announced this evening by the committee on selection—R. D. Wrenn, George Adee and Henry W. Slocum. The rules provide that the team must be announced a certain period before the matches and that period expires today.

It was unofficially stated at Longwood Tuesday that the American team to defend the Davis Lawn Tennis Cup would be made of Maurice E. McLoughlin of San Francisco; T. C. Bundy, of Los Angeles; Karl Behr, of New York, and R. Norris Williams, 2d, of Philadelphia. None of the players mentioned would discuss the matter.

Mr. Wrenn declined to name the four men who will defend the cup. He did not deny, however, that McLoughlin, Williams and Behr would prove good guesses for three of the four.

A ONE-TREE CHURCH.

Building and Interior Finishings All Made From a Giant Redwood.

[Christian Herald.]

In Santa Rosa, Cal., is a Baptist church building, the product of a single giant redwood tree which grew in the neighborhood of Guerneville, a few miles distant from where it now stands. Not only is the main structure built from the one tree, but the interior finishings—except the floor, which is of pine—are of the same wood, beams, pulpit and seatings, not a particle of plaster or other similar material being used in this remarkable building.

The tree when sawed yielded 78,000 feet of lumber and, after the building was finished in every particular enough material was left to manufacture several thousand shingles, besides a quantity of scantings, joists and other dimension stuff.

So carefully were the details planned, and so skillfully was the framework put together, that the builders of this one-tree church declared it might be as enduring as the old Saxon churches of England built centuries ago out of native timber and still in use. It is Gothic in style, finished beams inside.

NEW FASHIONS FOR MEN.

Form-Fitting Clothing Ordered by Designers for Manufacturers.

American men who profess to follow fashion's decree will wear suits of the English close fitting models this fall and winter, according to the standards approved at the opening session of the National Association of Manufacturing Clothiers designers, convention at Atlantic City. The opinion of all the delegates was unanimous in approving of the form-fitting styles, and their decrees are accepted without question by most of the leading clothing manufacturers.

Overcoats will have the "French back" and will be the double breasted, button through variety. Coats are to be single breasted, cut in snugly at the waist line and just a trifle shorter than last season, with soft roll lapels and taree buttons. Trousers are to be shapely and of medium width.

Several delegates were of the opinion that the popularity of the new dances was responsible for the demand for form-fitting clothing.

The army worms, which have not been seen in this part of the country for many years, have been found in the oat fields in the south part of the town, large numbers being on "Glen Farm."

CAMPING OUT.

[Miana Irving, in the New York Times.]

Dropping down the current in a leaky boat,
Dressed in faded flannels and an ancient coat;
Luncheon in a basket, pipe between your teeth,
Watching sun and shadow slipping underneath;
Sunfish, minnows, bullheads, redfins, too, in schools,
Yanking speckled beauties from the pebbled pools;
Later in the twilight, frying pans of trout—
That's the fun of camping—camping out!

Looking through the tent flap at the marching stars,
Getting well acquainted with Jupiter and Mars,
Listening to the crickets piping from the sod,
Feeling somehow nearer all the time to God,
Seeing how the woodland's every growing limb
Through the storm and sunshine reaches up to Him,
Taking time for thinking what it's all about—
That's the best of camping—camping out!

PERSONALS.

....John W. Downing of Lowell was elected president of the Stationary Firemen's Union at the state convention in Fitchburg Tuesday. Other officers were: Vice president, Philip A. O'Reilly of Worcester; secretary-treasurer, John H. Ashe of New Bedford.

....The friends of the late Mme. Nordica plan to erect a heroic statue of the diva in Central Park, New York, which will be the first statue of a woman not only in the park, but in the city. It is said that there are only two statues of women in the United States, one in New Orleans and the other in Haverhill, Mass.

....Sultan Ahmed Mirza, the 16-year-old Shah of Persia, Tuesday, on attaining his official majority, took the constitutional oath of office in the palace of the National Council. The ceremony was brief and took place in the presence of the members of the National Council, the royal princes, high state officials, foreign diplomatic representatives and their wives. The little Shah drove to the palace of the National Council in a glass coach, drawn by eight white horses. The procession passed through the gayly decorated streets of the capital, which were carefully guarded. On entering the palace of the National Council, the Shah bowed to the assemblage, and then pronounced the constitutional oath. Immediately after the ceremony was over he proceeded to the mosque for prayer.

RECREATION PLANS.

Newport County Pomona Grange Holds July Meeting at Fair Hall

Newport County Pomona Grange held its July meeting at Fair hall Tuesday, Worthy Master Mrs. Helen A. Wilcox of Tiverton presiding. All the six granges except Little Compton were represented.

An invitation was received to meet the members of Kent County Pomona next Wednesday at the Newport beach, where they have a shore dinner, this being their annual "water day," when a trip is taken down the bay from East Greenwich. Announcement was also made of the State Grange field day at Kingston College, August 8.

The morning business session closed at 12 o'clock and the Jamestown delegation left for Island Park for a shore dinner. Those remaining adjourned to the dining room for a basket lunch, Mrs. Warren R. Sherman of Portsmouth Grange serving lamonade.

The afternoon session opened at 1:45 and after a short period of business the lecturer's hour was conducted as follows: Grange song, "Beautiful Grange that we love"; current events, "Women's Part in the Temperance Work," Mrs. Elisha Clarke Peckham; "The Meaning of Home Economics," Mrs. Ella R. Peckham; vocal duet, "Old Home Unforgotten," Mrs. Amos Peckham and her daughter, Miss Florence Peckham, of Jamestown; discussion of the question, "Is the school education given our daughters at the present day a hindrance or a help to their becoming good home makers?" It was generally conceded that education is in a period of transformation. At present needs are greater for vocational training. The preponderance of the foreign element, whose children mainly leave school at 14, points to the fact that a practical education must be arranged for those years. Very little attention has been given in the past in girls' education to teaching any of the arts of home making. This was supposed to be the mothers' duty. The introduction of "home economics" now gives scientific training along all lines of this department. The program closed with the song, "The Dear Old Farm."

The Grange membership trophy, the bronze shield, which has been on exhibition the past month at Jamestown, was taken to Nanaquaket Grange, Stone Bridge, to be displayed at its meetings until the next Pomona session. Jamestown still leads in the membership contest, with a gain of 35 since December.

The meetings for August and September are to be omitted, as is customary, the first month on account of field day and the second because of the Newport County agricultural fair. The next meeting will be an afternoon and evening session at "Little Compton, October 20.

The Grange hall was attractively decorated with pink rambler roses. Mrs. Warren R. Sherman acted as accompanist for the day.

It was announced that Mrs. Jason Gifford of Tiverton, a former secretary, is seriously ill, having been stricken with hemorrhage of the brain the day following the last meeting of Pomona Grange at Nanaquaket Grange, Stone Bridge.

Grate six large, raw, peeled potatoes, moisten with a gill of milk, mix with three yolks of raw eggs, half a tablespoonful of butter, one ounce of bread crumbs, season with salt and pepper. Add two tablespoonfuls grated cheese and a little flour; make into a smooth batter. Fry in spoonfuls in an omelet pan, with rather more butter than is generally used for pancakes. When fried, sprinkle with grated cheese; fold and dish on a folded napkin.

Beef Cannelon.

Mix in a basin one pound of chopped uncooked beef, yolk of one egg, tablespoonful chopped parsley, one ounce chopped suet, three tablespoonfuls bread crumbs, a little lemon juice, salt and dash of black pepper. Form into a roll, wrap in greased paper, put in a baking pan, bake in hot oven 40 minutes, basting well with melted butter. When done, remove the paper, place roll in centre of a hot dish, and serve with brown sauce.

THE REMEDY FOR HUNGER.

[Life.]

We are told that many children in New York go to school hungry. If so, it is their own fault. The remedy lies in their own hands, or would if our authorities are anything like the English authorities, and we have no doubt they would be found so if brought to the test.

It is only necessary for the children to go on a hunger strike, to refuse to eat. That will entail upon the authorities the necessity of feeding them forcibly.

RAILROAD INCOME AND OUTGO.

The railroads for years have been complaining that they were underpaid for carrying the mails. Whether or not their complaints have been well founded, they probably will be if Congress shall enact a bill now pending, which would reduce their compensation materially and impose upon them the obligation to carry the mails whether they desire or not. Thus far they have had the right to refuse the mails. It is proposed to reduce their pay and compel them to carry them. They have already lost a large part of the revenue they formerly received from express companies. The United States is doing an extensive express business and is not paying the railroads anything like the amount the express companies did.

Five per cent increase of rates is not much, but the railroads cannot make that without the consent of the Interstate Commerce Commission. They have been waiting nearly a year for that, and the probabilities are that they will secure only a part of it. Still, railroad expenses increase every year. Every state and county increases its taxes. Full crew laws and many other laws add to the expenses. Public opinion will not allow the roads to refuse advances of wages and precipitate a strike. Within the past two or three years the Eastern roads have been obliged to increase the wages of enginemen, firemen and trainmen, and in the West the enginemen and trainmen have graciously consented to arbitrate their demands for more pay, so that railroads will pay a part of the advance demanded.

The Northwestern group of roads reported in March nearly a million more gross earnings than a year before, but in April they had nearly three and a half millions less revenue, and in May more than six and a half. Yet it is always in order to force increased expenditures on them. Every progressive community increases railroad taxation, and public opinion is always in favor of an increase of wages—to be paid by somebody else.

TURBULENCE IN THE WEST INDIES.

We are in imminent danger of being obliged to intervene in Hayti and Santo Domingo, or allow European nations to do so. The civilized and commercial world will not sit still out of reverence for our Monroe Doctrine while these two petty nations, whose commerce is worth something, proceed to kill everybody in sight and destroy all property which can be reached.

We are actually serving as a receiver for Santo Domingo, and we were obliged to assume that position eight or ten years ago or allow European nations to protect their own "nationals" and their own trade. At that time we cared a good deal about the Monroe Doctrine and were not afraid of "dollar diplomacy," and rather than allow any European nation to establish itself in the island we established ourselves there, with the consent of the government of the day, or upon its application, collecting the revenues, paying the foreign bond holders and turning the rest over to the local government.

The situation in Hayti is almost exactly what it was then in Santo Domingo, and, in addition thereto, there are disorders in the latter which must be suppressed, and if the government of the country has not sufficient resources some foreign nation will have—a European nation if not the United States. The present administration has a horror of "dollar diplomacy," but it also knows the effect of allowing any European nation to intervene in the island, and it understands that the patience of the rest of the commercial world is not inexhaustible. Therefore, extremely pacific as the Wilson administration is, it not only keeps a large force of troops in Vera Cruz, but it is massing considerable bodies of marines where they can at the shortest notice be dispatched to Hayti and Santo Domingo. In the case of these petty nations a prolonged campaign of watchful waiting is not necessary; a few hundred marines in each case would probably suffice to establish order and keep the channels of commerce open.

Of course the country will observe that there is no "dollar diplomacy" about this, and that we are not meddling with the affairs of any other people.

HARD TO LIVE ANYWHERE.

A humorous remark, burdened with much truth, was made in a symposium on the comparative cost of living in the country and in the city. One of those who contributed said he had lived in both and found it cost all he had, could earn, borrow, beg or steal, to live in either. Probably the author of the remark need not be taken literally in this instance, but he hit the truth well that it makes comparatively little difference to the average person today whether he resides in the city or the country, so far as the cost of living is concerned. The fact is that all articles of food and wear cost so much in these days that, as this man says, it takes about all that can be scraped together by the average worker to make both ends meet at the end of the year, wherever he may happen to live.

That is one of the discouraging features of present conditions, that the man of average income makes no headway. He just about holds his own, at best and is forced to confess that he is fortunate to be able to do that. The income of the average worker in any field is just about sufficient to tide him over his expenses and gives him practically no chance to lay up something for that rainy day which has been the source of so much flippant comment and amusing repartee, but is a real bugbear to hosts of people who know they must expect it and ought to prepare for it, but are not able to do so because the cost of living leaves no leeway and gives no opportunity for saving.

It is probable that the man whose remark has been quoted had been having just such an experience and was somewhat discouraged, though not enough so to prevent taking a rather jocose view of the situation. He put his thoughts in a picturesque way, but they expressed a real fact which is causing trouble and anxiety to thousands of heads of households in this country at the present time. Wherever one lives, the margin between income and expenses is so small, where there is any margin at all, that any argument as to the comparative cost of living in city or country seems idle.

TEACHING THROUGH MOVING PICTURES.

It is difficult to keep pace with the procession, as new ways are devised for the use of moving pictures for the instruction of the people. One of the latest reported is from Paris, where it is said that these devices are employed to teach police officers their duties. Object lessons of the kind of work expected and the manner in which they should perform their duties are thus given in a graphic and clear manner, and are impressed upon the men as they could not be in any other way.

Some policemen as well as others learn slowly and are not easily instructed in their duties, but moving pictures of what should be done by them under certain common conditions or even emergences can hardly fail to give a better idea of what is expected of them, for they will need only to duplicate what takes place before their eyes as though it were happening to themselves. It is astonishing to note to how many useful purposes moving pictures can be put, and still others are being conceived and put into effect almost every day.

HOMES FOR THE LABORING CLASS.

The city government of London is engaged in an extensive housing scheme. The plan, according to the announcement, is to build 10,000 homes for laborers and to spend the large sum of $7,500,000 in this way for the benefit of those who need better living conditions. It is a big project, but one which ought to bring good returns, not only in money from the use of the houses but, what is more important, in the increased health and earning power of those who will occupy the new buildings.

There is a direct relation between the living accommodations of the people and the public health, and the better the conditions under which the laboring classes live the greater capacity for work they will possess and the larger earning power they will show. For this reason enterprises like this are public benefactions as well as sound business investments, for it is possible to build good homes for the people and make them pay financially as well as socially and from the point of view of the welfare of the people.

State Senator Harvey D. Hinman, who will contest with District Attorney Whitman for the Republican nomination for governor of New York, claims that he is a representative of the masses and says the so-called bosses have nothing to do with his candidacy. Colonel Roosevelt is highly elated with Senator Hinman's action, and it is considered probable that, if Hinman receives the Republican nomination, he will have the endorsement of the Progressives. The difficulty will be to secure the party nomination if he has not the support of the Republican leaders.

General Carranza announces that when he assumes control of affairs in Mexico, American, French and Japanese land holders in lower California who received concessions through Huerta or Diaz are to be ousted and their land turned over to the Mexican people, and that the pearl fisheries rights given by Huerta to the French and Japanese will be taken away and given to Mexicans. Evidently Carranza proposes to gain popularity with the people, on the platform of Mexico for the Mexicans.

A story which comes from Mississippi says a travelling salesman was fined $6 for giving a negro hotel porter a 10-cent tip, and the negro was fined a similar amount for accepting it. Afterwards the salesman's fine was remitted, but the negro was compelled to pay. A new way of drawing the color line.

If the yachts had had such weather as this for their races last week the question of the superiority of one of the three cup defenders might have been determined.

It really looks as if the New Haven must stand a suit for dissolution of its subsidiary roads. Perhaps that is the best way out of the mix-up.

GREAT BRITAIN'S ARMIES.

Suffragists the Only Active Force, and Fighting Without Arms.

[Pittsburgh Leader.]

While the world is watching Mexico with her armies it is paying little attention to Great Britain, which has four armies in the field, although only one is active—the women fighting for franchise. But the dangers that may be figured out of the risks when these armies get into motion—if they do—are many, and will affect the world.

First, there is the British army, the nation's arm of defense. Then there is that more less hazy army of Ulster volunteers. Then the equally hazy army of Nationalists, and, finally, there is the army of suffragists. Two of these armies are in England, the other two in Ireland. So far the only active force, the only real live one, is the suffragist army.

People who like to draw conclusions from incomplete statistics have been wondering what England is to do if these armies get into action at the same time. The suffragists alone have kept the British government in hot water for a long time and they have neither arms nor other force than ordinary people employ every day.

With the social and industrial conditions as they are, nothing much worse could happen to the British empire than for war to break out in Ireland over home rule. It would be revolution, and while it is comparatively easy to bring on a revolution, it is a bigger job to stop it, and once begun, no man, not the wisest, may forecast exactly what will happen.

But the curious are asking every day, if a handful of determined women with nothing but their hands and tongues can do so much to upset England, what may not happen if three actual armies begin to shoot?

SALEM'S DOORWAYS.

Many Exquisite Memorials of Past Hospitality Destroyed by Flames.

[Troy Record.]

For many years the city of Salem, Mass., has been famous throughout the world for its air of colonial aristocracy. It is the second oldest city in New England and was for many years the wealthiest community in that section of the world. Its harbor competed with New York, Philadelphia and Boston. Its merchants built substantial residences along elm-lined streets. Different from most of the old Puritans, they had an eye for beauty. Their houses have become the models for the best in colonial renaissance. Particularly have the doorways won praise, and more than one book has been written on them. In spite of a wide divergence of type, the purity of colonial simplicity has been invariable in these ancient mansions. Practically every notable colonial doorway built recently finds its prototype in the city of Salem.

Now half of these exquisite memorials of past hospitality have been burned. Fortunately the most famous of them were untouched by the flames, but enough are gone to give a melancholy aspect to the town even when it is re-constructed. Through those perfect doorways many a charming couple passed out to found new homes, many a band of mourners accompanied the coffined body of some worthy whose name finds little mention in the nation's annals, but whose friendliness and personality made him a part of those whom he knew. In and out of the old portals flocked the stern and the simple folk of Puritan days, with the quiet social life and their kindly entertainment; for the Puritan's hospitality was as ample, if not as cordial, as the Southerner's.

With the destruction of so many of Salem's doorways will come a diminishing sense of this long-lost life. America, developed in new ideals of social intercourse, unhappily not always superior to the simpler ways of another century, needed the balance of the Salem lesson: for in Salem wealth did not forget responsibility, nor did austerity bar the pleasures of entertainment and companionship. The nation is fortunate in the fact that the destruction was in no sense complete—that much of the ancient town still stands, untouched by flame; but it is a serious blow to a unique historic survival that part of the Puritan city, with its spacious mansions and its faultless doorways, must pass into the hazy realm of what has been and is no more.

ELECTRIC FANS IN HOMES.

Breezemakers Especially Efficient in Kitchens and Bedrooms.

In the beginning electric fans were installed in the offices of the presidents of large corporations. Next, these handy breezemakers were adopted by restaurants, hotels and other public places, where they strive to make them inviting and comfortable for the spending public. And then, in time, the electric fan was installed in stores, libraries and even in Pullman cars. Not until recently, however, were the fans thought suitable for working people and for the home. Factory owners soon found out that the daily product increased with cooler weather, and installed electric fans to keep the workers cool and comfortable, so they could do their best work even in dog days.

Not until the last few years were the electric fans taken into the home in any large numbers. True enough, the wealthy and well-to-do have had electric fans in their homes for years and years, but they were classed with luxuries, and not with necessities. Even to this day it is common enough to find the electric fan installed in the living room or parlor, which is generally where it is least needed, and never taken out to the hot kitchen by day or into the sweltering bedroom o' nights. The electric fan can be attached to any electric light socket, and it certainly should be used in the kitchen and anywhere else a cooling breeze is desired. It can be installed in the kitchen facing an open window and set running so it will force the heated air out of the room, along with the steam and fumes of cooking, and thus keep the room suitable for working purposes. It is equally efficient in the dining room during meal hours.

A resident of an Eastern city took his electric fan to bed with him. That is, he didn't exactly tuck the fan in bed, but he placed it on the window sill in such a manner that when it was connected to the lighting circuit and started running at medium speed it forced a generous supply of cool air into the room. In this way he kept cool and comfortable every night during one of the hottest summers. The fan was fastened to the window sill with a small thumbscrew. It was placed so it did not blow directly on the bed, but sent its breeze against the wall at a sharp angle, so the air was scattered to all parts of the room. The fan ran all night at the second speed at a total cost of less than two cents a night.

Even with the window open there is little ventilation to a bedroom when the air is humid, hot and motionless. The ventilating qualities of a small electric fan have never been fully appreciated by the public. In almost every home proper ventilators are entirely absent. The only means of ventilating a room is to open doors and windows. In the summer months this ventilation depends entirely upon the wind. If the wind doesn't blow, there is no ventilation, even though the windows are wide open. If the wind does blow, those rooms located on the lee side of the house receive no benefit. The natural result is that unventilated rooms are hot and stuffy during damp and sultry weather. This can be remedied at will by placing a small eight-inch electric fan close to the open window and starting it running at slow speed, or faster if desired. When installing a fan in the bedroom be sure the curtains are fastened back so they will not be drawn into the revolving blades of the fan and damaged. A quiet running fan should be selected, so as to avoid useless noise. Arrange the fan so it does not produce a chilling draft, either by selecting a smaller fan or by reducing the speed. A long cord is generally necessary for connecting the fan to the light socket and locating it where desired.

ARCTIC INDIANS.

Dr. Dent Declares They Are "the Most Primitive People in the World."

"The most primitive people in the world" is the definition given to the Indians of the Arctic regions of Canada by Dr. Gordon T. Dent, a Canadian government physician, who has returned to civilization for a short time before returning again to the frozen North. Dr. Dent is accompanied by his wife, who is a graduate nurse and has helped him greatly in his work among the Indians of the Arctic. He has spent 15 years among the Indians of northern Canada, and his accounts of them and their way of living form an interesting chapter in the history of primitive races. He says they are child-like in their manner of reasoning, and their history, an unwritten story, is passed down from father to son through the generations.

"There is a large settlement north of Great Slave lake, where there is nothing to mar the primitive picturesqueness of their daily life," he says. "Living on the spoils of the hunt and the fish they take from the streams of the northland, they subsist on the things which first provided food for man, and, unmindful, not knowing, the civilization of the great world outside their own narrow sphere, they live today as their great forefathers lived many years ago."

Dr. Dent tells of their superstitions and recites many stories and legends which they tell of the creation and the fall of man. "Their story of the flood and the first man are among their most wonderful folk tales. The father of the human race, half man, half animal, is portrayed to their children with deep solemnity and they are told that their grandparents saw him and spoke with him, and that he is the father of every one."

Dr. Dent says that since the earliest missionaries went among the Indians of northern Canada and showed them how to build houses and live in them, disease has appeared in the Arctic and that about 45 per cent of the Indians there are tubercular.

"Unsanitary conditions in their homes was responsible for the appearance of tuberculosis among them. They have not learned the great lesson of sanitation as the most efficient method of preventing disease, and in their child-like primitive simplicity, fall as easy victims to the white plague. However, they are a brave people and kind, and give themselves up to medical treatment with willingness. They show extreme gratitude when they receive benefits from medical treatment.

"Many of them have abandoned the practice of living in houses and a noticeable improvement in their physical condition is already shown. They have returned to the open air life of old days and live on the hunt and from the fish they catch."

WHAT SANITATION REALLY MEANS.

[Professor Winslow, in Popular Science Monthly.]

Today there are, each 24 hours, 200 death beds in the city of New York. If the death rate of 20 years ago had been maintained, there would be 130 more. A 40 per cent decrease in the death rate has already resulted from the advances of sanitary science. Yet there is still upon us a great burden of preventable disease and death. The large, easy things, the purification of public water supplies, the pasteurization of milk supplies, are being accomplished. The insidious spread of contact infection can only be checked by the conduct of life of the individual citizen, by the diffusion of knowledge in the home and the factory, and by the building upon that knowledge of daily habits of personal cleanliness which shall banish contact infection, as the insect-borne plagues have been banished by our emergence from the grosser filth conditions of the Middle Ages. These fruits of the sanitary conscience, these applications of the aseptic sense, are little things, and there are hard things, for they are fraught with the possibility of large results in human health and human happiness.

A BELATED STORY.

Attempted Rescue at Sea With Automobile and Improvised Crew.

A belated piece of information has just reached the News Office. The event happened late last week, and was no less than an attempted rescue at sea with an automobile. Mrs. Alfred Tuckerman, while riding around the drive, observed a catboat in trouble between the shore and the reef off Brenton's point. There was a tremendous sea running, and the waves had broken on board and stalled the engines. The lone occupant could not hoist sail in the blow and threw over the anchor, which fortunately held.

Mrs. Tuckerman with her chauffeur rushed for the Life Saving Station and took Captain Kenyon in the car, and then broke the speed limit to reach Mr. Casey, an experienced surfman, residing on Coggeshall avenue. The regular crew at the station being on a vacation, the improvised crew was rushed to the scene, but the occupant of the boat had meanwhile succeeded in starting his motor.

SMALL TEMPEST HERE.

Something of a Thunder Storm Strikes New England and Does Damage.

Something of a thunder storm struck New England Tuesday afternoon and did consierable damage. Only an outlying sectio of the tempest reached Newport, though it seemed at one time as if it were to be the centre of activitis rigut here. Shortly after 4 the sky began to darken and by 4:30 lights were burning in all shops and stores doing business. At 4:45 the rain came, hard at first but not so hard as had been feared. It did not rain long, but it came fast at the start. The wind veered from southwest to northwest an the temperature dropped from 72 to 64 in a short time. Then the wind again came out from the southwest and the storm was over, and finally the sun was out. The rain gauge at the Water Works pumping station showed .14 of an inch.

The bids were: Barker Bros. & Co. $2,075. Thomas B. Connolly $2,497, H. C. Lawton $3,739.

Kraft Has Left Baltimore Team.

Player Who Nearly Caused a Strike Joins Newarks in Providence.

NEW YORK, July 22.—Clarence O Kraft, the base ball player whose refusal to go to Nashville almost caused a strike of major league ball players, left Newark last night to join the Newark team in Providence, and will in all probability be in the game today.

The strike was averted yesterday when Charles H. Ebbetts of the Brooklyns paid the Nashville club $2,500, for its claim to Kraft. Kraft has been in Newark for about two months. He was sent over by Charles H. Ebbetts to bolster first base for the Indians. He played the position well and was improving in his work when he was ordered out.

SCOUT MAKES HIS ESCAPE.

Georgia Contract Labor Law Again Invoked Against Federal League.

WAYCROSS, Ga., July 22.—The Georgia contract labor law was invoked yesterday for the second time against the Federal League when warrants were issued for a man said to be a scout for the outlaw organization, who during the day conferred with players of the Valdosta and Waycross teams of the Georgia State League. The warrants charge him with "enticing" laborers under contract, and were issued at the request of President James Sinclair of the league. The man left the city before the warrants could be served. His name was not made public.

Last spring Manager George Stallings of the Boston Nationals involved the law against a Federal League emissary, who talked with Boston players while the team was in Macon.

LAND LAWS UNSATISFACTORY.

Congress Finds Difficulty in Enacting Measure Pleasing to All People.

Man Would Change Economic Conditions of the Country by Simple Act of Legislation.

(Washington correspondence of the News.)

WASHINGTON, July 21.—Almost from the beginning of the government Congress has been legislating upon land laws. Some liberal land legislation has been passed, and the statute books are loaded down with laws relating to the public lands of the United States. And yet they do not seem satisfactory, for there are hundreds of bills pending in Congress now to change the land statutes. Of course the changing conditions of the country have something to do with it. The development of coal and minerals and the necessity for irrigating lands has caused a great deal of legislation.

Nearly every Senator from a public land state has bills pending which he thinks are necessary, but which in reality apply to local conditions in his state. It will probably be impossible to enact a land law which will be general and satisfactory to every part of the country.

From time to time a man comes to Washington with the idea that he can change the economic conditions of the country by a simple act of legislation. One of these men had a bill introduced "by request," which means that the man presenting it did not stand for it. It contained 37 sections and, of course, many appropriations, but its title is enough to explain what it is intended to do.

The bill provides for "raising additional revenue, for re-establishing, in the distribution of the burdens and benefits of government among the people, a condition of equity in its complex relation to the citizens and their prosperity; for creating a fund for the payment of pensions and for setting our army of idle laborers at work on extensive public improvements, for removing the strongest incentive to crime among the poor and to vice among the rich."

If all that could be brought about by a simple act of legislation there is really no reason why Congress should not pass it and then adjourn, but such days of legislative enactments have never been reached in this country.

One of the many problems that confront legislators not only in the national Congress, but in the states, is the employment of convicts. That men in prison must be employed to keep the from going insane is a well known fact, but often the products of their labor compete with the product of the workingmen, and labor unions have made a great protest against that.

Discussing the convict labor bill one day, Congressman Sherley of Kentucky thus outlined what he thought should be done with the convict. "He should be put at remunerative work, charging him with his upkeep, crediting him with his labor, and the difference between what he earns and what he costs should go either to his dependent family or to the man himself at the expiration of his service."

No one has ever been able to figure out just how much good the bureau of education accomplishes, but it has been able to secure a great deal of space in the Congressional Record. Chairman Fitzgerald of the appropriations committee complained that the bureau of education costs a great deal without accomplishing any results to justify the expenditure. The bureau has been in existence a long time, but its growth has been retarded somewhat by the desire of states to control their own educational facilities. Just now, however, the bureau has at its head an energetic man who persists in making himself felt and demanding more money for carrying on the work. That is why the bureau of education has been receiving so much advertising.

Some of the flying machine men have gone up pretty nigh but, they do not reach the altitude of 20 miles, or 100,000 feet, like the little balloons which the Weather Bureau sends up to find out about what is going on in the high atmosphere. The matter came up in the House and Chairman Lever of the agricultural committee explained that the bureau sent up these balloons with sensitive instruments which told of the various condition of the upper air. They had little notes attached asking people who found them to return them to the Weather Bureau.

It appears that these balloons have been sent out mostly from the $500,000 plant at Mount Weather and drifted out into the Atlantic ocean. Mount Weather is to be abandoned and this work is to be carried on at some point on the Missouri river, so that the little balloons will be picked up as they drift eastward.

SPECIALIZING IN TREES.

White Mountains Forestry Conference in Gorham, N. H.

GORHAM, N. H., July 22.—A description of the progress of the work of the United States forest service in the new White Mountains reservation by J. St. J. Benedict, forester in charge, was on the program at today's session of the White Mountains Forestry Conference. Professor James W. Toumey of the Yale forest school emphasized the need of specializing in the species of trees which have an established market for their lumber, chiefly white and red pine. He said that only a small part of the waste and unused lands of New England met all the requirements for a high grade individual investment when planted for lumber raising, and that such planting, if done at all, should be done by the state or the community.

The annual meeting of the Society for Protection of New Hampshire Forests was held today. Various speakers told of the methods pursued on reservations acquired by the society.

FOR STEERAGE PASSENGERS.

North German Lloyd and Hamburg-American to Raise Rates.

BERLIN, July 22.—The North German Lloyd and Hamburg-American lines today decided to raise their rates for steerage passengers from Germany to the United States by $2.50, thus bringing them up to $37.50.

COMING TO AMERICA.

European Lace Manufacturers Open Branches in This Country.

More than 20 of the leading lace and embroidery manufacturers of Germany, France and England have opened branch factories in this country in the past eight months. The latest plant to be built is one in Hoboken, N. J., costing $250,000. Trade papers in the dry goods field are devoting much comment to the foreign invasion. It is said that this country will lead the world within the next year in the production of embroideries and laces and that the United States already stands next to Switzerland.

The influx of foreign manufacturers was brought about by the success which has been attained by Americans in the production of laces and embroideries by improved machinery. They not only lessen the cost of production, but actually are able to turn out finer products in many instances than the hand work of foreign lace makers. Laces that cost $1 a yard to produce abroad can be duplicated by machinery for 2c cents a yard, enabling American manufacturers to undersell all others and gradually giving them a hold on the export trade.

It was once thought that the best laces in the world came from Switzerland, but sentiment in this respect has changed during the last few years. Germany and France are now among the heaviest consumers of American laces. As the American manufacturers began to dominate the market there was only one course left to the foreign manufacturers and that was to establish branches in this country, where they could obtain the machinery and thus meet the American manufacturers on a common footing.

Some of the leading European lace manufacturers have closed their home plants, it is said, and are transferring all their business to this country. They are bringing their employes with them and teaching them how to operate the modern American lace making machinery. It is estimated that fully 2,000 persons have been brought to this country in the last two years to work in the lace mills, one half of the number coming from Switzerland.

TROUT RE-STOCKING.

Streams and Lakes in National Forests to be Full in Nine Years.

Plans to completely re-stock all trout streams and lakes throughout the national forests of Colorado, Wyoming and South Dakota, within a period of nine years, are well under way, as the result of the approval by the federal bureau of fisheries of a plan of operation prepared by the forest service. The bureau of fisheries has promised to furnish the necessary fish fry for distribution to the various forests, the shipments of fry to be directed to railroad stations nearest the waters to be stocked so that as many streams as possible may be supplied from a central point. The planting of all fry will be performed by forest officers, who will keep close check on the results of the work.

According to the estimates of the forest officers, approximately 20,000,000 trout fry of the brook, rainbow and black-spotted varieties will be needed to meet the requirements of all the waters adaptable to the production of trout. Of this great number, the bureau of fisheries is prepared to supply something over 4,500,000 this year and a gradually decreasing number each successive year for a total of nine, at the end of which time it is expected that the complete re-stocking will have been accomplished. The estimates are said to cover 273 streams and lakes in the three states.

The re-stocking of national forest streams in all states where such forests are situated, including those now being acquired in the White Mountains and the southern Appalachians, will be given attention as rapidly as supplies of fish fry become available for planting purposes. The forest service is admirably organized to carry on work of this kind and does so with practically no interference with regular activities, since the fish must be handled with the utmost haste and frequently during the late evening or early morning hours. The production of the existing federal and state fish hatcheries is hardly adequate to meet all demands, however, and therefore the work has to be done in installments.

PIMPLES SPREAD ON BODY AND FACE
Never Had Night's Rest. Clothing Irritated Eruption and Pained. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Didn't Have One Pimple Left.
6 Myrtle St., New Haven, Conn.—"My skin itched on my body and face which made me scratch and after I stopped scratching the skin remained very red. Hard little pimples also came out where I scratched. I never had a night's rest and as I continued scratching the pimples spread and got worse. After a month white points appeared on them. My clothing irritated the eruption on my body and gave me pain. Many nights I did not sleep; I could not move in bed for if I did they got worse.

"I used ——, ——, —— and many kinds of ointment but they did not help my trouble. It was all money lost. I then sent for a free sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and after I had used them felt a little better so I bought more. I bathed in hot water and the Soap morning and night, afterwards dried and applied the Ointment. After three months' treatment I didn't have one pimple left." POLITICS BIG FACTOR IN CAILLEAUX TRIAL.

France Concerned Over Papers Mentioned at Hearing.

Government Claims They Were Pretended Copies of Documents.

PARIS, July 22.—Politics were the predominating factor today in connection with the trial of Mme. Cailleaux for the murder of Gaston Calmette, editor of the Figaro. The French government was understood to be greatly concerned in regard to the diplomatic documents mentioned at yesterday's hearing as having been in the possession of the assassinated editor and later handed over to President Poincare, who has sent them on to the foreign office.

Senator Bienvenu Martin, acting minister of foreign affairs, was up most of the night, and an active interchange of telegrams took place between him and Premier Rene Viviani, now in Russia with the president.

Joseph Cailleaux, the prisoner's husband, and Fernand Labori, her counsel made a vehement demand that the documents should be produced in court. It is understood that the premier, anticipating such a demand, left instructions with his substitute at the foreign office as to what course should be pursued with the papers, which are in the foreign office archives.

Mme. Cailleaux today had a long conference with Senator Martin, Fernand Labori and Jules Herbaux, the procurator general. Mme. Cailleaux, after breakfasting, glanced over the newspaper accounts of yesterday's hearing, with which she appeared to be satisfied, as many of them were written in a sympathetic strain.

While the court was assembling, newsboys were shouting around the entrances to the Palace of Justice an extra edition of Le Bonnet Rouge, one of the journals in sympathy with M. Cailleaux, which contained a page article denouncing the murdered editor, Gaston Calmette. It affirmed that he had been in the pay of German interests and had in the 11 years preceding his death been engaged in political and financial intrigues, by means of which he was able to leave $2,500,000. The newspaper admitted that he had received two legacies, one of $200,000 and another of a smaller amount.

The moment after the court had come to order, the procurator general rose and said: "I am authorized by the government to declare that the documents referred to in yesterday's testimony are only pretended copies of documents which do not exist."

Maitre Labori: "We consider the incident closed."

Charles Chenu, the lawyer representing the interests of the Figaro and those of Calmette's heirs said sarcastically: "I regard the incident as only an enjoyable diversion. It has pleased M. Cailleaux to transform a criminal trial into a political one. He intends to go from here with a certificate of loyalty to France. Much good it will do him."

The procurator general exclaimed that the honor and patriotism of M. Cailleaux remained unstained. Maitre Labori objected to the language used by Maitre Chenu.

George Prestat, a brother-in-law of the murdered editor and chairman of the Figaro Company, was then called to the stand and emphatically denied that the Figaro had been in the pay of foreign banks. The Germans, he said, had never held the majority of the shares of the Figaro as had been alleged.

Maitre Chenu, commenting on M. Prestate's testimony, said: "I will add that it does not become M. Cailleaux to come here and endeavor to soil the grave which his wife made."

Then followed an exciting scene. Many of those in court rose from their seats and shouted "bravo," while others hissed and murmured until Judge Louis Albanel was obliged to call the court to order with a severe reprimand.

M. Cailleaux, in a statement of extreme agitation, exclaimed: "Since I must take notice of what this lawyer has said, I will ask him if he will take personal responsibilty for his words." Again "Bravos" for M. Cailluaex were heard all over the court. When the noise had somewhat subsided Maitre Chenu replied: "I take the entire responsibility. You cannot menace me here. You doubtless do not know the temper of the man whom you address."

RADIUM FOR FARMING.

Influence on Plant Growth Shown in Experiments in England.

Carl R. Loop, deputy consul general for the United States at London, has informed the Department of Commerce of recent experiments in England of using radium for intensive farming. He says:

"Recent experiments have been carried out in Croydon (near London) in the effect of radium on plant growth. It is stated that many of the results are so promising that it is quite possible that the use of radium for crops may become one of its important applications in the future. It is asserted that radium has an adverse effect on the 'unwanted' soil organisms, leaving the useful ones freer to stimulate growth.

"Best results are said to be obtained with the use of about one seven-hundredth part of a grain of radium to one ton of soil. The residues left behind after radium has been extracted from minerals usually contain a minute amount of radium. When these residues, which are of comparatively little value, are mixed in the soil, wheat and barley grow with great rapidity and the leaves are usually of a darker color. The most decisive results so far reported have been obtained with radishes and carrots, which in some cases have been nearly six times as heavy as those grown under similar conditions in ordinary soil.

"Experiments are also being made to ascertain the influence of both radium and radium emanation on the size and color of flowers and other market garden produce. It is stated that once incorporated with the soil the effects of the radium residues will remain constant for hundreds of years."

ASQUITH RESPONSIBLE FOR KING'S SPEECH.

Conferees to Decide on Exclusion Under Home Rule Bill.

Premier Likely to Submit Proposal Regarding Protestant Sections.

LONDON, July 22.—Premier Asquith today assumed in the House of Commons full responsibility for the speech made by the king yesterday to the political leaders who had met at Buckingham Palace to confer on the Irish home rule problem. He thus set at rest various reports in circulation since the Ulster controversy has become acute, and since the first announcement of the conference.

The premier said: "The speech was sent to me in the ordinary way by His Majesty the day before it was delivered, and I take the entire responsibility for it."

Having disposed of the preliminaries of the conference at yesterday's formal meeting, when King George in a brief speech referred to the fact that talk of civil war was on the lips of many of his subjects, the conferees today settled down to tackle the crux of the problem—the area of Ulster to be excluded from the operations of the Irish home rule bill and the means of carrying out this exclusion. Openly, of course, the two sides declare that they cannot withdraw from their present positions, but it is understood that Premier Asquith is likely to submit to the conference a proposal to allow the Protestant sections of Ulster to vote together on the question of exclusion from the home rule Parliament, and that he may also go so far as to change the time limit of six years embodied in the amending bill, which already has been dealt with by the House of Lords.

Sir Edward Carson, the Ulster Unionist leader, will make a fight to have the country of Tyrone included in this agreement and the fate of this proposition will, it is thought, decide the outcome of the conference.

The Liberal newspapers in the provinces continue to criticise King George's speech, which most of them will not believe the cabinet was not responsible for. They appear to be particularly irritated at the phrase "The cry of civil war is on the lips of the most responsible and sober-minded of my people," which they say might have been taken from the speeches of the Ulster leaders. These, says the Manchester Guardian, a leading Liberal newspaper, the king thought fit to summon to his presence without a word of rebuke. The king has been unduly alarmed by the reports of certain of his unofficial counsellors, and the impression thus made on his mind may, unless he wisely determines to be guided henceforth by his official counsellors, have consequences more serious than any that have yet been produced."

The conferees were again in session for an hour and a half today and then adjourned until tomorrow. At today's meeting the claims of the two opposing Irish parties, led by John E. Redmond and Sir Edward Carson, on the subject of the crucial question of the boundary of the area to be excluded from the operations of the home rule bill, were presented to the conferees. As neither the Nationalists nor the Ulster Unionist leader possesses plenipotentiary powers, however, these claims must be submitted to the consideration of their respective party caucuses at an early stage, so that the progress of the conference necessarily must be deliberated.

John Redmond and John Dillon, as they left Buckingham Palace, were given a great reception by the men of the battalion of Irish guards. The soldiers crowded to the windows of the Wellington barracks rooms, cheering wildly and waving their caps.

"The king left it to the discretion of the conferees to determine whether or not his speech should be published and the conference decided unanimously in favor of its publication. His Majesty throughout this matter had followed the strictest Constitutional practice. He has not taken any step from the beginning until now, except in consultation with and on the advice of his ministers."

Premier Asquith, on being questioned as to the calling of the conference, said with emphasis that all attending the conference did so unconditionally. He declined to discuss why it was being held in Buckingham Palace instead of in the House of Commons. When asked whether there would be an opportunity for discussion of the subject in the House, Premier Asquith retorted "time will show."

A SPECTACULAR SIGN.

Many Electric Lamps Installed in Huge, Realistic Display.

[Electrical World.]

Installed on one of the Chicago Electric Light Company's plants is a spectacular sign representing the forging of a hot steel bar under a converted steam hammer, the steam power having been superseded by compressed air pumped by an electric motor using central-station energy.

Two machine attendants are represented, one operating the control lever and the other forming the steel bar. The latter is seen to place the white hot bar beneath the hammer, and at each blow sparks flash out realistically, decreasing in quantity as the iron cools. By outlining the connecting rod with a double circuit of amber and ruby lamps the bar is made gradually to lose its "white-hot" color and to assume a "cherry-red" heat as the hammering continues and the rod cools. The portion of the rod held in and adjacent to the hands of the workman is illuminated with amber-colored lamps to represent a lesser degree of heat.

The movements of the other workman are particularly realistic. With his hand on the throttle he moves it slightly once or twice, to make sure the hammer is operating correctly. Then he throws the valve wide open and allows the hammer to strike its full blow.

Installed in the entire sign are 3617 10-watt tungsten lamps, 1600 of which are in the flashing portion. The total length of the display is 204 feet and the height 42 feet, the flashing portion being 55 feet wide. The magnitude of the sign is indicated by the height of the machine attendants, who are 36 feet tall.

CHARLES STREET JAIL PRISONER A SUICIDE.

Robinson, Held for Murder, Bleeds to Death.

Jugular Vein and Artery on Wrist Opened by a Steel Shank.

BOSTON, July 22.—Suicide ended today the adventurous career of Lawrence Robinson, who, while posing as a gentleman, was alleged to have committed four murders and an unknown number of jewelry robberies. The body was found in the cell at the Charles Street jail, where he had been confined since June 19, when he shot and killed Police Inspector Thomas J. Norton while resisting arrest on a charge of murder and robbery preferred by the police of Grand Rapids, Mich.

The instrument of death was a steel shank, four inches long and an inch wide, which he had removed from his shoe, and the edge of which the prisoner had sharpened on the iron bars of his cell window. The medical examiner found two wounds, one an inch and a half in length on the left of his neck, that opened the jugular vein, and another of similar size where he had cut an artery on his left wrist. He bled to death quickly without making an outcry.

A guard who visited the cell at 6 o'clock this morning found Robinson apparently in his usual health and saw nothing to arouse suspicion. On his next round, a half hour later, the same guard found Robinson stretched out on his bed, dead.

The grim manner in which the man ended his trial for the murder of Norton, which opened Monday, was characteristic of him as he was known to the local police. Since his arrest he had maintained a seeming stoical indifference to the legal proceedings, and at no time sought to justify or explain the acts charged against him. He appeared in court faultlessly groomed and seemed to regard the trial as something apart from himself. He was a man of unusual mental attainments.

Rumors were current that confederates from the West would attempt his release by force, and these rumors were taken so seriously that the prisoner was constantly surrounded in the court room by five heavily armed officers. The jury was drawn Monday and yesterday the jurors visited the Boylston cafe, where Norton was killed. Monday night the prisoner spent in the court house, but the apprehensions of the police were somewhat relieved after the first day, and last night he was returned to the jail.

The trial was to have been resumed at 10 o'clock this morning, when Judge Keating was to rule on the motion of the defense to compel District Attorney Pelletier to make known the identity and the line of their testimony of several witnesses whom the state had brought from Grand Rapids. The district attorney had said that he would show by these witnesses the motive which Robinson had in resisting arrest. When court opened Medical Examiner McGrath informed Judge Keating that the defendant was dead from self-inflicted wounds, and the jury was immediately discharged.

Robinson appeared in Boston early in May and successfully played the role of a wealthy man of leisure. He stopped at a quiet hotel and soon after his arrival began taking lessons of an instructor in the modern dances. This gave him an acquaintance in a set of young people where he became popular.

His only intimate companion, however, was Joseph Duddy, 22 years of age, who was with him when the shooting occurred. Duddy is awaiting trial as an accomplice but has asserted that his was only a chance acquaintance and that he knew nothing of the crimes charged against the other.

Robinson had been in the city several weeks when a description of him was furnished by the police of Grand Rapids, who alleged that he had killed three men in a jewelry store which he robbed in that city. The police were soon on the track of the suspected man, who was trailed to the Boylston cafe June 19.

He was lunching with Duddy when Norton and two other officers approached and told him that he was under arrest. Robinson sprang to his feet and a fight followed, during which Norton was shot and killed. Police Inspector Claflin, who had seized Duddy, then fired upon Robinson, wounding the latter three times as he started for the door. Robinson got to the street, but ran into a blind alley where he was captured by a mounted policeman. His wounds did not prove serious. The police claim that Robinson had thrown them off their guard by saying that he would go with them without trouble, and that he drew his revolver and fired the moment his hands were free.

The officers who survived the encounter said that Robinson, who showed fight at first, was quickly overpowered and, but for his promise that he would go peacefully, he would not have a chance to draw his gun.

Robinson's defense had not been outlined, but it is understood that his attorney intended to set up that the officers had no warrant and so had no right to arrest their client, and that in the fight he was acting in self-defense.

Rob[illegible]

The suicide was of athletic build powerful and quick in action. He was six feet, three inches in height, but rather slender. He was perfectly developed physically and, according to his story, was 32 years of age. Little was known here of his antecedents. In his effects and on his person at the time of the arrest were found jewelry valued at thousands of dollars.

Henry J. Homrich of Huntington, W. Va., entered an action in the superior court here Monday for the recovery of diamonds and jewelry found in Robinson's possession, and which were said to be worth $15,000. Homrich claims that he identified the jewelry as that stolen from his store in Huntington last March. He also asked that $861 in cash recovered from Robinson and Duddy be restored to him, on the ground that it came from the sale of his property. Relieved of his money and precious stones, Robinson told the court that he had no funds with which to employ counsel and the firm of John H. Blanchard & Son was assigned by the court to defend him.

Letters found in Robinson's effects, and dated July 18, indicated that he contemplated suicide before his trial had begun. A pathetic note to his mother and wife read:

"To my dear mother and to my wife Dora Alice:

"The loving sweetheart of my boyhood days, the only woman I have ever loved and who stuck to me through all the shame into which I plunged her, I bid a last fond good bye, and if there is a God Almighty and another world I pray that I may meet you ther. "Lawrence."

To Sheriff John Quinn, his keeper, and to his counsel, John H. and Hugh C. Blanchard, he wrote:

"You're up against a hard game when you've got to die to beat it. It seems to be the easiest solution for the whole difficulty. I would not want to go to the chair for the satisfaction it would give certain people, and life sentence or a long term in prison for manslaughter are worse than death, and I know what I'm talking about. I hate this on account of the sheriff who, though very strict, is a man, and my attorneys, Mr. John H. Blanchard and Mr. Hugh Blanchard, who have gone to an immense amount of trouble and expense to prepare my defense."

STORM HINDERS BAPTISTS.

Sale Commenced on Lawn, Finished in the Sunday School Rooms.

The Improvement Society of the First Baptist Church had its annual lawn party and supper Tuesday afternoon ande evening. It had been intended to have the sale on the lawn, but after tents had been erected and the sale commenced the thunderstorm came up and everything was hurried into the Sunday School rooms, where the sale of fancy articles and refreshments was carried on during the remainder of the afternoon and evening. There was a good attendance, the supper proving as usual a strong attraction.

Mrs. L. A. Gleason was in charge of the supper table, Mrs. Frank Morrill of the fancy table, Mrs. Howard R. Peckham candy table, Mrs. Atmore Honeywell cake table, Mrs. Thomas Sorrell ice cream table, and the members of the Sunday School classes of Mrs. Heath and Mrs. Van Doorn of the miscellaneous table. Mrs. Gleason and Mrs. Jethro J. Peckham were in general charge of the arrangements. Mr. Peckham erected the tents on the lawn.

The proceeds will go to the fund for the improvement of the church property.

ON THE PLAYGROUNDS.

Sports at King Park and the Basin—Another Hike Planned.

Instructor Lee held a boys' quoit tournament at King park this morning which was of great interest. The summary follows:

In the first round S. Sullivan defeated Leary, 11-6; O'Brien beat Murphy, 11-10; T. Donnelly beat Sullivan, 11-3; Taylor defeated Cullinan, 11-8; H. Donnelly defeated McLean, 11-0.

In the second round O'Brien beat S. Sullivan, 11-7; T. Donnelly beat Taylor, 11-4; H. Donnelly beat Barry.

T. Donnelly won from O'Brien, 11-9, in the third round, and H. Donnelly won from Horan, 11-2, leaving the Donnelly brothers to fight it out for the championship. H. Donnelly won by an 11-6 score.

Under the direction of Miss Donovan at King Park this morning a number of races were held among the girls. The Blue Ribbons defeated the Red Ribbonns five out of nine games at submarine ball. On the Blue Ribbon team were M. Phelan, A. Morrisey, K. Sullivan, E. Jenkins, J. McCarthy, A. Christensen and L. Morrissey. The Red Ribbon team was made up of E. Curran, E. Knott, M. Fitzgerald, F. Winters, J. Oliver, R. Lawes and M. Phelan.

The Blue Ribbons then defeated the Red Ribbons in relay submarine ball, and the Red Ribbons followed with a victory over the Blues in overhead ball. The Blue Ribbons then came back and beat the Reds in a relay race.

Basin defeated Lenthal in the indoor base ball league Tuesday by an 18-9 score. The winners secured an early lead and held it.

In the Railroad League at the Basin this morning Sante Fe beat New York Central two games out of three at volley ball, the scores being 18-21, 21-16, 21-9.

Instructor Ward of the Basin will take the boys out on their weekly hike Thursday morning, to Second beach, where the youngsters will receive careful instruction on first aid to the drowning. It is the plan of the supervisors at the Basin to make each of the weekly hikes one for instruction, and with this end in view Mr. Ward will show the boys how to rescue a drowning person, how to bring him to shore, and then what to do after landing the body.

This afternoon Basin meets Vernon Avenue in base ball at Vernon Avenue, and the Basin will take a large crowd of rooters to cheer their team, which is at present leading the league. Members of the Recreation Commission are expected to be present to witness the game.

The base ball backstop at the Basin is being moved so that the youngsters can use the big diamond which the Recreation Commission put in condition earlier in the season.

Carriers of the Daily News are forbidden to roll or twist papers and throw them upon premises; are not allowed to have other boys with them without permission, and have no papers to sell.

THE AMERICAN BABY CROP.

Women of the Country Concentrating and Specializing in the Product.

Miss Marjorie Dorman, who represents the Wage Earners' Anti-Suffrage League has issued a statement in which she says that just about the most important thing in this country these days is the "American baby crop," and she expresses a belief that the women of the country are concentrating and specializing in that product. Miss Dorman says:

"Since, according to the last census, only 19.5 per cent of the women of this country are unmarried it is only natural to suppose that the great majority of women are concentrating and specializing on the American baby crop. This is the most direct influence a woman can bring to bear upon the state, and every successful business man realizes that this is an age of specialization.

"In all this talk about how the working woman must be benefited by her right to cast the ballot, it should be remembered that, while 90 per cent of the males 16 years of age and over in this country are wage earners, only 20 per cent of the females of 16 years of age and over are engaged in any kind of gainful pursuits. And 40 per cent of the women who are breadwinners in this country are engaged in personal and domestic service. Therefore, my sex, without the medium of the ballot box, already possesses the power to effect beneficial changes in the lives of nearly half the women who toil in the United States.

"Moreover, 23 per cent of working women are under voting age, and could not cast a vote. Hundreds of thousands of girls enter the industries at 14 and 16 years of age and leave them to enter homes of their own before they are 21. Woman's relation to labor is transient and accidental, not permanent like that of man."

A PROBLEM FOR BUILDERS.

Painting of Concrete and Cement Surfaces Presents Many Difficulties.

[Canadian Engineers.]

The painting of concrete and cement surfaces is one of the many new problems that modern conditions have brought to the master painters of the present day.

Ordinarily linseed oil paints cannot be applied with success directly to cement or concrete surfaces on account of the lime present in the cement. The action of this alkali is to destroy the oil, causing rapid fading of colored paints, and chalking and scaling off of the material. Therefore, it is necessary, if a linseed oil paint is to be used, that the surface be first thoroughly saturated with a neutralizing wash. The most approved method is to use a solution of zinc sulphate in the proportions of three pounds to a gallon of water. A cement surface treated with this wash and allowed to dry can be painted with any high-grade linseed oil paint without danger from alkaline action, and with the assurance that results will be lasting, as if applied to wood.

Water color paints should not be used for exterior cement coating, as they do not form a water-proof coating (one of the most important requirements of a cement paint) and offer no protection from deteriorating influences.

All the new cement surfaces, either exterior or interior, should be allowed to become thoroughly dried out and hard before painting, and the best results have been obtained where the work has stood not less than a month before paint was applied. If the surface is dry and the paint right, it will penetrate freely on the first coat, filling the pores and rendering peeling impossible, but this would not be the case if applied over a damp surface.

Exterior cement paints should dry to a flat or semi-flat finish in order to carry out the stone or cement effect. Nothing looks more out of place than a full gloss paint applied to exterior cement surfaces.

Many of the ready prepared cement floor paints, the quick drying vehicle of which is largely china wood oil, have been found to give excellent results. R. H. Langston, in a paper read at the Illinois State Association of Master House Painters, Chicago, strongly recommended their use until such time as a more complete knowledge of the requirements in mixing of this material can be obtained.

There is no doubt that for some time to come the master painter will be feeling his way, step by step, in the new realm of modern surface painting which cement construction has forced upon him. It will tax the brain of the paint chemist to formulate the vehicle with which to destroy the alkaline base with which cement surfaces are loaded.

CRINOLINE.

The Much Abused "Cage" Imparts Grace of a Day That is Dead.

[London Chronicle.]

No one can wish for a return of the the crinoline, and the revival of "A Scrap of Paper" at the Criterion Theatre marked somewhat how much of the grace of a day that is dead the much abused "cage" can impart to its wearer.

The crinoline is at its best in this revival. Miss Nancy Price and the ladies with her pass through quite narrow doorways without difficulty and yet appear to skim about the stage like birds, so upheld are they by their floating skirts. In the first and second acts Miss Price as Susan Lawless wears a white muslin summer day dress with a pointed low cut bodice, a crossed fichu secured by a large cameo brooch and a wide mauve waistbelt with mauve rosettes decorating at intervals the crinoline skirt. Her white straw "poke" bonnet has mauve ribbons and a hanging white veil, and she wears short white gloves with black ribbon bracelets with gold ornaments, and white stockings with black cothurne shoes.

Miss Margaret Halston, as Lady Icebrook, has two effective frocks. The first is of yellow satin, with tab skirt flounces, pointed bodice and short puff sleeves edged alike with two narrow rows of mouse brown velvet. The undersleeve and fichu of white muslin have a similar edging, and the charming lady wears ringlets and a cameo brooch. Her evening frock is of pink silk, the skirt in three frills, each of which is embroidered in large silk roses of a darker shade than the dress. A lovely touch is the real roses of the same color as the embroidered ones which decorate her hair and low cut bodice.

WOMEN'S WORK FOR PEACE

be beginning the women of New York held a mass meeting of protest, April 23, in Cooper Union. The underlying idea of the meeting was to show that all the women of New York, society women and working women, suffragists and antis, Americans or foreign-born, were united in their opposition to war and their desire for peace. Every woman's society of the city was represented, and the meeting was planned and carried out within 48 hours.

At that meeting Mrs Henry Villard, who is strongly against war, said: "In this twentieth century, the women of the world—they who give life—should organize to safeguard it and prevent its wanton destruction by men. A recourse to war as a means of righting wrongs is full of peril to the whole human race. Not only are bodies killed, but the ideals which alone make life worth living are, for the time being, lost to sight."

The following resolution was presented by Miss Frances Perkins, secretary of the Safety Society, and adopted by the meeting:

"Since time began women have been devoting their best efforts to the saving of human life, it is eminently fitting that at this crucial time in our history we should protest in burning words against the tragic folly of involving this country in war with Mexico.

"Therefore, this mass meeting of women assembled in Cooper Union April 23, 1914, calls upon the President to put the noble words he has uttered in the past into deeds. We ask him immediately to withdraw our troops from Mexico and thus with true courage and the finest sense of honor repair the harm already done."

A NEW EXPLOSIVE.

Canadian Product Has Three Times the Destructive Effect of Dynamite.

[Consular and Trade Reports.]

Tests were recently made in the presence of a number of contractors and business men of Vancouver of a new explosive called sabulite, which will be manufactured at Coquitlam, British Columbia. A company capitalized at $300,000 has been organized to handle the product, and a plant for its manufacture is nearing completion.

Experiments were made in blasting stumps, in which comparative estimates of the power of the new material were made with the explosive force of dynamite, and it is asserted that six and a half pounds of sabulite is equal to 20 pound of dynamite in destructive effect.

The chief feature of sabulite is that it can be handled without danger both while in course of manufacture and in use. None of the ingredients are in themselves explosive. Sabulite is not affected by heat or cold. It has been subjected to a temperature of 258 degrees Fahrenheit and 75 degrees below zero without its properties being affected. Another salient point about the explosive is that no poisonous fumes are given off in the explosion, only a slight odor being perceptible at the tests made.

While the quantity of sabulite required for ordinary purposes is only about one-third that of dynamite, the cost of production a pound is said to be about the same. Sabulite is used for blasting purposes only.

GOVERNMENT RENTALS.

Department Business Conducted in Quarters Which Are Insufficient.

[National Magazine.]

Many of the activities of the government in the District of Columbia are today being conducted in tumbledown, rickety, fire-trap buildings, which are liable at any time to be destroyed and cause us to lose documents and records which are invaluable, because they could never be replaced. This is true with reference to buildings owned by the government as well as some of those which are rented from private owners. But if we leave out of consideration the danger of loss by fire, the loss in efficient service produced by lack of decent and proper quarters and considerations of like character, and look only to the mere question of dollars and cents involved in the question of continuing to use the rented quarters which we now occupy or constructing buildings for those departments, or branch of departments, now housed in rented quarters, I assert that it is the part of wisdom and in the interest of economy to build. There is not a department of the government which is not forced to rent quarters for some branch of the service outside the buildings which we own in the District of Columbia. With the growth of the country the public business has expanded and the demand for more room is heard from every quarter. The annual rentals being paid by each department of the government in the District of Columbia is as follows:

The Treasury Department pays $47,-000; Department of Commerce, $70,-000; Department of Justice, $24,100; Department of Labor, $7,500; Department of the Interior, $75,175; Department of Agriculture, $99,277; War Department, $61,443.39; Navy Department, $87,274.16; Department of State, $16,560, and the Postoffice Department, $63,100, making a total of $561,-739.46 paid by the United States every year to individual owners for the use of property in the District of Columbia in which to carry on the business of the government. This is nearly three per cent on $20,000,000, and I think I am safe in saying that the total value of all the property in the District of Columbia rented by the government would not exceed $6,000,-000, and in addition nearly all the rented buildings which we are now occupying are of non-fireproof construction.

SPOKEN "CARBAHAL."

How to Pronounce the Name of Mexico's New Chief Executive.

Now that Huerta has at last quit his job and has been succeeded by Francisco Carbajal as temporary president of Mexico, there is likely to be a renewal of controversies as to the proper pronunciation of the name of the chief executive of the republic.

When Huerta took charge of the affairs of state in Mexico City he was called by almost as many different names, because of the Anglo-Saxon unfamiliarity with Spanish nomenclature, as he has been since his frequent refusals to lay down the sceptre of power. "Hureeta" was probably the most favored pronunciation of his name among Americans, although "Hueerta" carried some bets and that would be the way to pronounce the name if it was English instead of Spanish. Then after the controversy had gone on for some time, "we" let every one in on the proper pronunciation which was "Uerta," the "H" being silent and the "U" being pronounced like the double "O" in boot.

And now comes Senor Carbajal. When you learn how to pronounce it you will find it easier than pronouncing Huerta. Just now the new Mexican president is being called Carbajal with the "J" used as in John. But to prevent disputes and save money to some persons who otherwise might lose it by making wagers on the proper pronunciation, the right pronunciation is herewith given. While in the case of Huerta the "H" is silent, in the name of Carbajal the "J" is pronounced like "H," the syllable of the name "jal" being pronounced like the first three letters in Halifax. The name Carbajal, therefore, is pronounced "Carbahal," with the accent on the last three letters.

WILD ANIMALS BARRED.

Mocking Birds Also Prohibited in Leases of New York Apartments.

[New York Evening Post.]

It is not likely that a New York family will be discovered with a mocking bird or a wild animal sharing its home, and perhaps there are none that have such an appendage, but should there be such, and that family have intentions of taking up an abode in an apartment house, they will have to look sharply to the lease the renting agent gives them to sign. Some owners would not object to have their other tenants rub elbows in the elevators with a family that has a mocking bird, but they are certain to object to renting to a family that harbors a wild animal.

There are several first-class apartment houses, and there may perhaps be hundreds of them, in this city which have house rules and regulations governing daily life that include a prohibition of the keeping of dogs and cats, but a lease with a clause that adds to the prohibitory class "mocking birds, wild or domestic animals of any sort, under the penalty of forfeiture of the lease at the option of the lessor" is believed to be an innovation in the framing of apartment leases, which as many have found out, are complex enough without having any more frills added thereto.

BUMPER CROPS EXPECTED.

United States Chamber of Commerce Reports Feeling of Optimism.

WASHINGTON, July 21.—In a review of agricultural and business conditions sent to its members last night the Chamber of Commerce of the United States emphasized the bright prospects for bumper crops this year, and reported a general feeling of optimism over what the future has in store, in spite of present depression in manufacturing, mining, lumber and railroad centres. The chamber's conclusions, prepared at the headquarters here, were based upon data gathered from all parts of the country.

"It is rather remarkable," said the review, "that in most sections, even in manufacturing sections, where business conditions are at their worst, there is much optimism of the immediate future, and a general feeling that with normal crops there will be very great improvement in all business matters during the remainder of this year.

"Manufacturing is exceedingly quiet throughout the country. Mining, nearly all kinds, suffers from strikes and lack of demand. Lumber interests are feeling the dearth of building, especially in small towns and in the country. The railroads, because of decreasing revenues and increasing expenses, have cut down their forces as far as possible and laid off many trains, in the interest of economy. These conditions have, naturally, bred much apprehension, conservatism, and pessimism in districts where these industries are the principal sources of revenue to the inhabitants. This is particularly true in the middle of New England states and in some of the large manufacturing centres of the West and South. Against these unfavorable conditions, the situation of agriculture is most encouraging, despite drought conditions that have prevailed more or less extensively in the spring and summer in widespread sections. Widely extended rains in the latter part of June and early in July have put a new phase upon affairs."

WILL APPEAL CASE TO PEOPLE.

Representative McDermott of Illinois Offers Resignation.

WASHINGTON, July 21.—Representative James T. McDermott of the Fourth Illinois district today on the floor of the House offered his resignation, to take effect immediately. McDermott is under charges in connection with the lobby investigation.

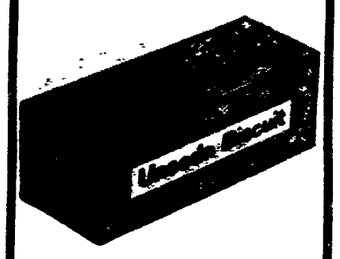

McDermott, Democrat, representing a constituency which includes the stockyards district of Chicago, was one of the figures in the exposure of Martin M. Mulhall, star witness in the lobby investigation. A majority report of the investigating committee, now ready to come before the House, recommends that he be censured with officers of the National Association of Manufacturers.

His resignation came as a sensation today, when, immediately after the House had assembled, he rose to a question of personal privilege and offered it from the floor, declaring that he would appeal his case to the people of the Fourth District of Illinois." A minority report recommends that he be expelled.

He said he had already announced himself as a candidate for re-election.

How Actresses Remove Superfluous Hair

They generally use El-Rado, the liquid Hair-remover. It is absolutely infallible in its effect, and positively harmless. This is proved conclusively by the fact that many physicians use the ingredients in El Rado for exactly the same purpose, hair-removing. A few drops, a simple application, and any growths vanish. You see only the skin, smooth and velvety, even whiter than before, because of the soothing, antiseptic ingredients in the preparation. Get a 50c. or $1.00 bottle to-day. Test it on your arm. Prove for yourself it will do everything claimed. Your money back, if you are not entirely pleased. If inconvenient to call at your druggists, it will be all right to order direct from the Pilgrim Mfg. Co., New York. Booklet containing valuable information sent on request. In this city El Rado is sold and recommended by:

Downing Bros.; Wm. Leys Dry Goods Co.; The Bee Hive; The King-McLeod Co. Kaikman Pharmacy, Inc.

ARMED CONFLICTS IN STREETS.

Strike Situation in Russia Takes on Serious Aspect.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 22.—The strike situation in Russia took on a serious aspect today when armed conflicts occurred in the streets and resulted in the wounding of many police, Cossacks and strikers. Just outside the capital a passenger train on the coast line to Finland was held up by strikers, the engineer was forced to quit under threat of being shot, and all the passengers were driven out of the cars. The strikers then proceeded to cut down the telegraph poles an place obstructions on the tracks. A detachment of Cossacks and gendarmes drove off the wreckers. Every train thereafter was convoyed by an armed escort.

At Riga the strike movement was reported to be spreading and it was said that 4,000 men in that city had struck work, while in many of the cuther large cities in all parts of the Empire thousands of men had left their employment.

ASSURED OF NO TROUBLE.

New Jersey Woman Suffragists Call Upon Fielder.

TRENTON, N. J., July 22.—A delegation of New Jersey woman suffragists called upon Governor Fielder yesterday to make sure that there would not be any hitch in the legal proceedings for the advertising of the resolution providing for a vote upon the suffrage amendment which was passed by the last legislature. The governor extended the assurance that there would be no trouble in the matter and the failure to advertise would not occur as it did last year.

VEHICULAR COLLISION.

About 6:20 this morning there was a vehicular collision on Thames street, between a milk delivery automobile of R. DeBlois and a bicycle owned by Harry Dennis. The latter had considerably the worse of the encounter.

From Bellevue avenue and Bowery street Tuesday afternoon came report of another collision, in which Renner's delivery automobile ran into Mrs. B. Withrop's automobile. It is stated that the former turned to the wrong side, but though the other climbed on the sidewalk in an effort to escape the smaller machine succeeded in jutting the rear wheel, and suffered considerably.

TUMULT IN ASSIZE COURT.

Miss Evans Brought Up for Having Explosives in Her Possession.

BELFAST, Ireland, July 22.—A crowd of militant suffragettes today created a wild tumult in the Assize court and its vicinity when Miss Dorothy Evans, an official of the Belfast branch of the Women's Social and Political Union, was brought up for trial on the charge of having in her possession explosives for the purpose of committing a felony. Miss Evans was arrested in the house of the Lord Mayor of Belfast. The disturbance caused by the suffragettes, who broke windows and savagely assaulted the police, was so great that proceedings had to be suspended for a time.

PREFERENCE FOR CHANGE.

Golf Clubs Would Correct Abuses of Present Amateur Rules.

NEW YORK, July 22.—From figures made public today by Robert C. Watson, president of the United States Golf Association, the early returns in the poll of 358 golf clubs affiliated with the association to ascertain the sentiment regarding a more strict definition of an amateur show a preference for a change. Of the 45 clubs reporting, 28 favored the proposed restrictions to correct certain alleged abuses of the present amateur rules.

Noon—Missouri Pacific fell abruptly to its recent low level under the impact of short selling and Rock Island preferred recorded its lowest price in sympathy with declines in allied issues. Baltimore & Ohio was relatively strong, despite unfavorable June earlings, but Chesapeake & Ohio yielded 1½ on moderate offers. Leaders held on to their gains, but by noon the move in that quarter became uncertain. Mexican and California Petroleums and other specialties, including Harvester, Beet Sugar, Bethlehem Steel and American Tobacco rose 1 to 4 points, but exercised no speculative influence. Weakness in Rock Island bonds extended to other issues, with losses of 5 to 8½ points in Missouri Pacific Convertibles, Colorado Midland Fours and Missouri, Kansas & Texas refundings. PURE WATER

Poets have sung the beauties and charm of water from the time man began to write. In our practical age when they say there are no poets along comes the doctor and he begins to tell us more about water. But he doesn't lay such stress on the murmuring of the brook or the thunder of the waves as he does on the purity of the water we drink. He tells us that the brook that murmurs most soothingly may hold poison to the human system. He tells us that the bubbling, laughing spring may be the old homestead of certain families of creatures with names as disagreeable as their disposition. He's practical, is the doctor, and so he tells us to read all the poetry we like but when we come to drinking we should see to it that our water is absolutely pure. That's unselfish of the doctor for it prevents him from getting many a fat fee.

STRENGTH IN THE SHADE.

Broadway Sidewalk Should Be Curved or Narrowed to Save the Trees.

To the Editor of the Daily News:

Sir: I earnestly hope that those few remaining trees on Broadway are not to be slaughtered. As compared with their preservation a gold-plated sidewalk would be of far less value. Many can remember when Broadway was an attractive way because of the cool, refreshing shade of the big trees all along the curb. Now it is a place nobody thinks of with any pleasure. Every tree is worth hundreds of dollars to our city, and attracts people here.

Suppose that small bit of granolithic does have to make a curve? What is more devoid of beauty than a straight line? And what can equal the repulsiveness of a treeless street? There seems to be some pitiless evil spirit seeking vengeance here, and persuading men to destroy the splendid work of God—our fine trees. It is but a short time ago that we were shocked to see noble, sound, trees ruthlessly slaughtered in our parks; this summer the destruction of fine trees has changed Third street from a pretty and attractive road to a great, wide ash-heap, and it all could have been avoided, with a bit of planning, had anybody in charge of the job cared a fig for the shade and beauty of these fine specimens.

A curved line is the line of beauty; the refreshing shade of trees on Broadway in such weather as this should need no advocate; it speaks for itself. The shade of those trees will supply strength to walk several blocks along the sweltering, shadeless part of the way. By all means let the walk be curved, and even narrowed, to favor the roots. There is but little need of a wide walk there—not so much as in some places where a narrower one is doing very well; and the shade will refresh everybody, on both sides of the street. We need to plant a lot of trees every Arbor day—and some on Broadway, too—and we can not spare one. Whoever has the charge of this matter will serve his city well if he leaves no stone unturned to preserve these trees. Will not others speak up quick and loudly, that it may be seen that public opinion demands they be saved? When, oh, when will the people of Newport be felt in these matters?

KERRY HILL RUCTIONS.

One Man Fined for Assault and Another for Revelling. During Row.

There were "ructions" in Kerry Hill Tuesday night, and in consequence a considerable portion of the inhabitants of Callendar avenue were at the police station. One man had evidently been the target for sometning, for he had two black eyes and other evidences that things were coming to him, and that they were not soft. As a result of inquiry two men were held on charges of assault and this morning the number was reduced to one. He was fined $20 and costs, $22.69, which he paid. Another man, charged with revelling in connection with the same episode was fined $5 and costs, which at last reports had not been paid. The affair was among Bravas.

A man charged with malicious mischief in tearing down a barber sign was fined $2 and costs, which he paid. The young woman who was arrested some days ago for wearing a man's suit on the street was in again, and was placed on probation. A woman surrendered by the probation officer was sent to the state workhouse for six months.

Chief Fred Davis and Assistant Chief Grinnell from Tiverton were in with two persons. The man was fined $20 and costs, $26.20, but the woman made a great plea and was placed on probation. They also had another woman who was sent to the workhouse for six months.

Officer Corcoran of Portsmouth reported the finding, off the Portsmouth shore, of a copper tank about 14 by 11 inches and what seemed to be parts of a wireless outfit.

JUST CADDIES.

A few of the boys who spend their summer vacation on the golf links, enjoying life in the open air and at the same time earning a little money. They are only boys, but their work trains them to be courteous and puts them in the way of meeting prominent men. Who knows but some boy in the above group may become mayor of Newport in years to come?

TO REPRESENT NEWPORT.

Three Couples Selected for Dancing Contest Against Visiting Teams.

As a result of the meeting at the beach Tuesday evening, to adjust the differences remaining over pairing off the men and women chosen by the public to represent Newport, three couples have been finally selected to represent this city in the contest against Providence and Fall River at the dancing pavilion Thursday evening. Those selected are William Martland and Mrs. George H. Keyes, Frank Moore and Miss Bessie Murphy, Harry Harvey and Miss Catherine Lynch.

With the exception of Miss Bessie Murphy all these dancers were chosen since Miss Helen Boyle and Miss Helen Sullivan seemed reluctant to enter the contest without their original partners, who were not selected by vote. Miss Murphy was the next highest in the standing, and accordingly takes her place with Frank Moore, with whom she danced in the contest Monday. Mr. Fordon decided to limit the Newport team to three couples, and for this reason J. Sherman McGowan, who was the other man chosen Monday evening, was dropped because of inability to secure a partner for him.

Newport's hopes will rest with the three couples, who are to practice afternoon and evening to perfect team work for the contest Thursday. They will make a pleasing appearance on the floor, as the men are to be dressed in tuxedos while the women will wear ball gowns. Martland, Harvey and Moore are clever dancers, on whom Newporters can pin considerable trust in their ability to stand an even show with the more experienced visiting teams. Miss Lynch, Mrs. Keyes and Miss Murphy will no doubt do all that is expected of them, and will be well accustomed to their partners' style by Thursday.

There will be five judges for the contest between the three cities, one from Newport, one from Providence, one from Fall River, while the other two will be selected from the floor by the first three officials. Miss Helen Weaver, well known in dancing circles, is the probability for the Newport judge.

In addition to the big dancing event, for which a special car is to bring a private party from Fall River, it is expected that the cabaret dinner will draw another large crowd. In addition to the other talent which will appear while the dinner is being served Fordon and Sons will give an exhibition dance. Manager McGowan in booking the talent has required that only select and refined artists and acts be furnished, which assures better amusement than is ordinarily found in dining halls elsewhere. There will be the usual careful attention to the menu and the price is a popular one. With warm weather promised, the attractions on the board walk, Ruth Law and the Great Norman, the dinner and palm garden cabaret and the big contest dance, there is every indication that the night will attract a big crowd to the beach.

Two large audiences witnessed Tuesday the comedy drama, "What Happened to Mary," presented at the Opera House by the Malley-Denison Company. Miss Shirley as Mary, a simple country lass with a strong character, who combats all the snares and temptations of life successfully, plays the part in a charming and graceful manner. She is a Mary with whom everybody is likely to fall in love. Mr Crane has the part of the hero, John Willis, member of a New York law firm, who saves Mary from the clutches of the son or the son or member of the firm.

TITUS COMPANY AWARDED CONTRACT

Lowest Local Bidder for All Furnishings of the Coggeshall Addition.

Thomas L. S. Weaver Selected for Architect for the New School on Mary Street.

The committee on the Coggeshall school held a meeting Tuesday evening, at which the bidders on the furnishings had an opportunity to explain their goods. This was done one at a time, the other agents being outside the aldermanic chamber. After considering the bids as a whole the committee voted to award the contract to the A. C. Titus Company, for $1,610.19 for everything. This was the only bid which covered everything asked for. The next to it was that of Walsh Brothers, who bid on all but the window shades. The Rosen Company bid on 14 of the 43 items named, H. J. Harwood Sons on 11 and the estate of M. Cottrell bid on 6. Of course these were the important matters, the seats and school furnishings proper, while many of the other numbers were articles which the committee could just as well buy as secure on the contract. The Titus bid was less than the Walsh. The bid of H. J. Harwood Sons was less than the Titus, but in view of the fact that it covered so few of all the articles asked for, and also in view of the fact that the Titus was a local and the other an out-of-town bidder, the decision was to award to the Titus Company.

The committee also decided on the architect for the new school on Mary street, Thomas L. S. Weaver being selected. It had applications from about 20 architects and had been in much doubt as to what to do, but the members were so well satisfied with Mr Weaver's work on the Coggeshall School addition that they selected him.

In addition to the committee there were present Superintendent Lull and Messrs. Peckham and Bacheller of the School Committee. The various bidders were present and had samples of their desks on hand, and Chairman Hughes said that the committee would be glad to hear the various makes of desks and chairs described briefly, suggesting 10 minutes for each. This was agreeable to the bidders and they were taken in the order in which the bids had been opened. They were not strictly held to 10 minutes, but no one was inclined to exceed the limit set.

Walsh Brothers came first on the list and Mr. Leavitt, of Heywood Brothers, manufacturers, described the make of desk and chair and showed the points in which he believed they excelled.

For the A. C. Titus Company Mr. Walkins, of Kensey Brothers & Walkins, described his desks and chairs. This is an old concern, having done business for 70 years and having supplied the Mumford school.

Mr. Harwood of Harwood Brothers, who was next, asked if his bid would be received, he not having any local representative. The committee agreed with what Mr. Hughes had said earlier, that his bid would be considered. He had a number of novel features in the construction of his desk and chair. The firm is a young one, but has supplied a large number of schools.

The last to speak was Mr. Butler of the American Seating Company, who appeared for Mr. Rosen in favor of the new steel desks and seats. These have been adopted for use in Boston, with a standard slightly cheaper than the one he showed here Chelsea was supplied with them after the fire and there is a very large sale for them. There was no question but there were many novel features in this new desk and it pleased in many ways.

The American Seating Company had another bid in, through the estate of M. Cottrell, for the regular style of wooden desks, but there was no one there to describe them. Superintendent Lull said they are in the Coggeshall school and are well known.

There was an examination of the desks and seats and a general talk. Superintendent Lull, while admitting the many good features of the steel desks, said there is one bad feature, the noise, and the committee quickly found how they could be noisy. Of the wooden desks, he said any are good. Each has some little peculiarity, but they are all what could be called standards and well suited for use.

There was a general discussion of the figures and after some time the committee came to the decision announced above.

WORK ON NEW POLICE STATION BEGUN.

The specifications for the new police station called for the contract to be signed and work started within 10 days after the opening of bids. This was something new, but the contract was signed Monday and this morning Architect Stevens and City Engineer Lawton, with Contractor Kerr, were on the scene of action. It was a scene of action, for the latter boards were erected and in the police station they felt so glad that they thought of a new one. The work is rocky on.

TORPEDO STATION CONTROL

Permanent Manager, Not Naval Supervision, Favored by House Committee.

The fact that Secretary Daniels is contemplating a change of control of the navy yards from military to industrial supervision should not be received in Newport with surprise. The Daily News announced last summer, after the visit of the House naval committee here, that its members were discussing this point and could not see the advantage to the nation in having a purely manufacturing establishment in the control of a naval officer, while the successful industrial establishments of the country have as heads specialists in their line who have developed in the business. The members of the committee did not hesitate to say that they favored the business methods which are proving efficient in the big plants of the country, in preference to giving naval officers control during their two years of shore duty. They were plain in their talk about the Torpedo Station, saying it should be administered by a permanent manager. On the committee were men who had been brought up in industrial establishments; and they thought that they knew whereof they spoke.

GARDEN FETE AT HOSPITAL.

Annual Affair for Benefit of Children's Ward Planned for Thursday.

The garden fete for the benefit of the children's ward of the Newport Hospital, to be held Thursday on the grounds adjoining the Nurses' Home, has become an annual affair which attracts a large number. It had its origin a dozen years ago in a sale conducted by a number of young girls residing on Pleasant street and vicinity, and has grown steadily in character and as an attraction of the summer.

There will be tables or booths for the sale of fruit, candy, cake, boxes, fancy and useful articles, dolls, ice cream and other refreshments; grab bags, sand bags, peanut hunts and other attractions for the young and old. Mrs. Damon Lyon will tell fortunes and give a reading for the children, and a special attraction will be dancing by Mr. Charles Fordon and Miss Eleanor Sims, who will give exhibitions of the Brazilian Maxixe, the Tango and the latest dance, the Lulu Fordo. Mr. C. S. Adler will lead the orchestra for the dances.

TEMPEST AT FORT GREBLE.

Y. M. C. A. Tent Blown Down But the Guardsmen Keep Dry.

Tuesday's tempest swept over Fort Greble, broke up a battalion drill and blew down the Young Men's Christian Association tent. The new tents of the National Guard withstood the blow perfectly and the guardsmen found perfect dryness within, though many of the men were soaked in rallying to the rescue of the property of the Young Men's Christian Association. The greatest trouble the guardsmen are encountering is mosquitoes, which are more numerous than ever before. They are not of the variety which carry disease germs, the government doctor says, but they are making the boys do some lively scratching.

REV. EDGAR F. CLARK.

Former Pastor of Thames Street Methodist Episcopal Church Dead.

Rev. Edgar F. Clark, a former pastor of the Thames Street Methodist Episcopal Church of this city, died at his home in Taunton Tuesday afternoon, after a long illness. He joined the New England Southern Conference in 1882 and was in Newport in 1883-5.

Rev. Mr. Clark was born in South Windsor, Conn., the son of Hiram and Emeline (Hayes) Clark, of a family prominent in that section for several generations. He was educated in Wesleyan University, where he was valedictorian of his class, and at the Concord Theological School.

He first married Julia N. Woodruff at Farmington, Conn. After her death, which occurred several years ago, he married Helen Millar of North Providence, who died about a year ago.

During his long service as a minister Rev. Mr. Clark held pastorates in Providence, Warren, Little Compton and Newport in this state; Norwich and Willimantic, Conn.; Provincetown, New Bedford, Plymouth and Taunton, Mass. He retired from active work about 10 years ago.

Rev. Mr. Clark was well known as a geologist, having been in charge of the government geological survey of the Rhode Island coal field. During these surveys he discovered several new fossil remains, which were presented to various college museums.

Three sons survive—Dr. Fred L. of New Bedford, Dr. Sylvester W. of Providence and Dr. Edward N. of Taunton.

ISLAND PARK PROGRESS.

Cottagers Secure Rebate on Lighting—Park Road Improvements.

At a meeting of the Island Park Improvement Association, at the summer home of James O. Mills, at the "Seaconnet Villa," the committee appointed to see Superintendent Gosling of the electric light company reported that Mr. Gosling had promised to look into the matter of the minimum charge for use of electricity for 10 days or over. He also assured them that he would be glad at any time to meet a committee of the association to talk over any grievance they might have. He expressed a desire some time in the future to ask the company to make a reduction in rates. The committee also took up with him the question of furnishing lights along Park road. Mr. Gosling took this matter under advisement, but thought that the town should furnish the necessary lights.

Since the intehview Superintendent Gosling has sent a letter to the Association, stating that he had looked into the matter of the minimum charge and found that through an oversight the company had been billing the cottagers under a 10-day clause when the schedule, as filed with the Public Utilities Commission of Rhode Island, called for a 15-day clause and all those who had been charged under 10 days would receive a rebate during the month of July.

The committee appointed to appear before the town council also made its report. Every member of the council declared himself in favor of putting in a sidewalk and lights along Park road. The council informed the committee that it would be necessary in order to obtain the appropriation for such an extensive improvement to have it appear in the town warrant for the next annual town meeting, which will not be held until May, 1915, but they all believed the voters would support this improvement. The council, after hearing the committee, voted to leave the matter of starting the work of building the sidewalk to Councilman Cory, who had still a little money left from his appropriation, which he is willing to expend on making a start on the sidewalk.

The committee on repairing of the sewer on Fountain avenue also made its report, stating that there are still a few cottagers who have not paid their $2 assessment.

MEXICAN MEDIATORS APPEAL TO WILSON.

Asked to Influence Carranza to Obtain General Amnesty.

Unless Huerta Followers are Protected, Carbajal Will Resist Invasion.

WASHINGTON, July 22.—Ambassador Da Gama of Brazil and Ministers Suarez of Chili and Naon of Argentina, the three mediators in the Mexican affair, appealed to President Wilson today to have the United States use its influence with General Carranza to obtain a general amnesty for those who supported the Huerta government. It was the first formal call of the three mediators since the conference at Niagara Falls adjourned. They were accompanied by Secretary Bryan and for nearly an hour discussed the Mexican situation in all its phases.

They told President Wilson that, unless guarantees for the protection of the lives and property of those who supported Huerta are given, the Carbajal government will concentrate its military forces and resist until the utmost any effort to invade Mexico City. The President and Secretary Bryan listened attentively to the diplomats, especially as they indicated that their governments probably would be unable to recognize any administration in Mexico which should refuse to give quarter to its enemy or establish itself by peaceful means in accordance with civilized practice. The mediators also pointed out the danger of an armed entry of Constitutionalists into Mexico City and urged that the United States use every influence to bring about a peaceful transfer of power.

After their talk with the President Secretary Bryan and the three diplomats went to the State Department for a conference.

Jose Castellot, personal representative of Carbajal, and Emilio Rubasa, head of the delegation which represented Huerta at the Niagara conference, also were seen by the South Americans. Mr. Castellot said the Carbajal government desires no share in the future administration and no validation of the acts of Huerta, but simply guarantees for lives and property.

Bryan's appeal to Carranza and Villa to eliminate personal differences which may exist between them is interpreted in Washington as the American government's preliminary step to prevent counter-revolts after the entry of Carranza into Mexico City. The appeal to Carranza was communicated through John R. Silliman, President Wilson's personal representative. An early answer is expected.

Mr. Bryan maintains that he has "nothing definite enough to make public" concerning the rift between the revolutionary generals, but it is known that rumors of a break have come from several authentic sources. One report states that Villa is preparing to keep his army in Chihuahua and pay no heed to Carranza's authority. Mr. Bryan's telegrams of appeal, however, did not assume that the reports are true.

They suggested the importance of co-operation in the Constitutionalist ranks. Villa frequently has stated that the only reason his forces had been concentrated in Chihuahua was to afford them recuperation. They soon will start for the south to participate in the occupation of Mexico City, it is declared.

Conferences over the transfer of government to the Constitutionalists probably will not take place until next week, it is suggested here. Reports of the whereabouts of the three envoys who left Mexico City several days ago, to represent Provisional President Carbajal, are still awaited. Hope for an early agreement between the contending factions is renewed here by reports that Carranza has given assurances that "no nation need fear any indiscriminate taking of vengeance against the Federals." The case of each man, Carranza told representatives of the Washington government, will be disposed of "according to the procedure of civilized countries which have passed through a similar stress of civil war."

WILSON'S DECISION AS TO ACTION AWAITED.

Mobilization of Marines Near Hayti Already Begun.

Washington Officials Sure Peace Can be Restored Only by Intervention.

WASHINGTON, July 22.—Plans for mobilizing at least 1,000 marines within striking distance of Hayti and the Dominican republic moved forward another step with the arrival of naval transport Prairie at Guantanamo from Vera Cruz. The Prairie will bring the full complement of officers for the marines already at Guantanamo and will remain there to transport the force to Hayti should an emergency arise, while the Hancock is away for more troops. Transport Hancock, which has just landed 300 at Guantanamo, is now headed for the Philadelphia navy yard to return with another load to bring the total force up to at least 1,000.

With these preparations, President Wilson's decision as to what action the United States shall take to quell the revolutions in the island, a republic, and satisfy the pressure of European creditors, will be awaited. War and Navy Department officials, confident that peace can be restored on the island only by the active intervention of the United States, are perfecting their plans.

If intervention in Hayti became necessary, it is possible that American troops might be used to put down the long revolt that has harassed the Dominican government. Such action, it was suggested, might be accompanied by extension of the authority which the United States now exercises in the collection of Dominican customs.

THOSE REMAINING STARVING.

Puerta Plata Refugees, Mostly Porto Ricans, Arrive at San Juan.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, July 22.—United States revenue cutter Algonquin arrived here last night from Puerta Plata, Dominican republic, with 166 refugees, mostly Porto Ricans, on board. One woman died during the voyage from the effects of starvation. The condition of those remaining in Santo Domingo was reported to be pitiable, as it was almost impossible to obtain foodstuffs, the prices of which were prohibitive.

A report was brought here by the Algonquin that an American bluejacket on board gunboat Machias had been shot in the leg by a bullet from the shore.

GARDNER FINALLY WEAKENS.

Forces Williams to Play Hard to Win in Four Sets.

BOSTON, July 22.—In order to make up for time lost yesterday every tennis court at the Longwood Cricket Club grounds was put in use today for matches in the Longwood singles and Eastern doubles championships. Interest centered in the singles match between R. Norris Williams, 2d., of Philadelphia and G. P. Gardner, Jr., of Boston. This contest was long drawn out. In the doubles five matches were settled in straight sets. The contest between T. R. Pell and Karl Behr of New York and H. V. Greenough and Charles Frothingham of Boston was the star attraction. The New Yorkers won but were hard pushed in the second s . Maurice E. McLoughlin and T. C. Bundy, the national champions and possible members of the American Davis Cup team, played an exhibition set against Pell and Behr and won with ease.

The Williams-Gardner match went four sets and the Philadelphia man was forced to play his stiffest game in order to win. Gardner continually ran in on his service and Williams was unable to pass him at the net. After the games were 5-all in the last set Gardner weakened and Williams scored 59 places, 48 nets, 55 outs, 6 double faults and 1 service ace; Gardner 31 places, 56 nets, 43 outs 8 double faults and 6 service aces. CIVIL SUIT TO BE FILED IMMEDIATELY.

Wilson Backs Department Action in New Haven Case.

Indications That McReynolds Expects to Ask Bill Against Mellen.

WASHINGTON, July 22.—Preparations for the actual filing of the government's long delayed suit to dissolve the New Haven railroad system, in accordance with President Wilson's instructions, are being made today by the Department of Justice. In a letter to Attorney General McReynolds the President not only directed that civil action be instituted against the New Haven, bu ordered that the "criminal aspect of the case" be laid before a federal grand jury. Decision to proceed against the New Haven ended the long continued efforts to solve the case without litigation. The President and his cabinet had discussed the case and the course of the Department of Justice was approved.

The civil suit is to be filed against the New Haven in the United States court at New York immediately. The Attorney General is to direct the United States district attorney at New York to summon a grand jury and the work of laying evidence before it, on which to ask for criminal indictments against officers and directors of the New Haven under the management of former President Charles S. Mellen, is to be begun at the earliest moment. T. W. Gregory, special assistant in charge of the case, is to have full charge of the civil suit and before the grand jury will have the aid of F. M. Swacker, an Interstate Commerce Commission expert who assisted him in preparing the evidence.

How many indictments are to be sought has not been divulged, but correspondence made public plainly indicates that Mr. McReynolds expects to ask for a bill against Mr. Mellen. The most significant fact in connection with the proceedings is said to be a statement made public by Mr. McReynolds months ago, when the Interstate Commerce Commission began its New Haven investigation, in which he warned the commission to consider whether immunity might be given to certain men if made to testify as to their actions as directors of the road. The names he mentioned were Charles S. Mellen, William Rockefeller, George Miller, Charles F. Brooker, Edward Milner, Lewis Cass Ledyard, George F. Baker and Edward D. Robbins.

In his letter to Mr. McReynolds, directing suit, the President declared that the decision of the New Haven directors not to keep their agreement to dissolve peacefully had caused him "the deepest surprise and regret," and that their failure "upon so slight a pretext" was "inexplicable and entirely without justification." The department's course, he asserted, was just, reasonable and efficient and should have resulted in avoiding suit.

A feature of the correspondence made public by the department, which accompanied President Wilson's letter, was Attorney General McReynolds's letter to the President, which contained a rebuke for the Interstate Commerce Commission in subpoenaing Mellen "and perhaps others flagrantly culpable," with the possible result of embarrassing the department by claims of immunity in return for their testimony. In this connection Mr. McReynolds stated that criminal prosecutions had always been in mind and that there had never been "the slightest hope that parties guilty of criminal violations of the law would escape."

It is known that the department has what it believes is evidence that Mr. Mellen gave testimony to the commission contradicting evidence in the possession of the Attorney General, and it is possible that if any claim of immunity is raised it would be fought on this issue.

Mr. McReynolds's letter to Mr. Hustis plainly showed that the department took the position that the New Haven directors had not lived up to their agreement of last March for a peaceful dissolution and their refusal to sell their Boston & Maine stock under conditions imposed by Massachusetts, and placed the blame for what might follow upon the heads of these directors.

REGARDING NEW HAVEN CASE.

Wilson and McReynolds Congratulated for Action Taken.

WASHINGTON, July 22.—Congratulations to President Wilson and Attorney General McReynolds were expressed in the Senate today by Senator Reed of Missouri for their determination to proceed criminally and civilly against the New Haven directors.

"I am glad that the government at last is prepared to show its teeth, and I hope and confidently believe that the policy so happily inaugurated will result in the end in no guilty man escaping," said the Senator.

ON COLOMBIAN TREATY.

Roosevelt Asks for Opportunity to be Heard in Opposition.

WASHINGTON, July 22.—Colonel Roosevelt in a letter to Chairman Stone of the Senate foreign relations committee, today asked for an opportunity to be heard in opposition to the pending treaty proposing to pay Colombia $25,000,000 for the partition of Panama. The request was considered by the committee without action, however, as Chairman Stone was unable to marshal a quorum.

"I replied to Colonel Roosevelt's letter personally, saying that I would submit the matter of hearings on the Colombian treaty and his appearance before it to the committee," said Senator Stone.

The Missouri Senator said he had not set a date for another meeting of the committee, but he would try to get the members together soon. The text of Mr. Roosevelt's letter he would not make public, because it was addressed to the committee.

FIRE INSURANCE RATES.

New Tariff for Newport and Big Increase in Providence Districts.

In certain districts in Providence there has been a big jump in fire insurance rates and as much as $12.50 a thousand is quoted. The agents say the increase is for the purpose of guarding the companies against conflagration loss similar to that in Salem. They say they have long recognized the danger of the localities where the increase has been made and are satisfied that there will be no improvement under the old rates, but instead the danger limits have been steadily increasing. With rates increased they anticipated that owners will awaken to the necessity of making their poperty more safe, as their pockets are now directly attacked as a result of ignoring all other appeals

Inquiry among local insurance men fails to bring out any suggestion that because of the Salem losses there is likely to be any increase here. As a matter of fact, however, they are not very talkative over the local situation. They say, nevertheless, that it is recognized by the companies that Newport is a city of shingle roofs and that the insurance men are not disposed to overlook such communities after they have been hit by similar conditions in Chelsea and Salem.

Some who have had occasion to renew insurance since June 19 have learned that they must pay more. On that date a new tariff went into effect for Newport. The Daily News is informed that, while some risks are the same and some are lower, the general result is an increase. Insurance experts worked on Newport for a considerable period in preparing the new tariff, and while the agents are not disposed to discuss what bearing the present condition of the fire department may have had in influencing the increase, it is stated that the insurance companies are neither deaf to the local agitation for a re-organization of the department nor blind to actual conditions, and that it may be found that if all the re-organization talk ends in talk the present tariff will be amended. The inference to be drawn from guarded remarks is that, unless an active movement is made to bring the department up to date in the near future, property owners will find that they will be taxed for the omission by the insurance companies. What changes are deemed necessary is not indicated.

NEWSPAPER FACTS.

Well Filed Clippings Make Interesting and Valuable Encyclopedias.

[Minneapolis Journal.]

Not long since a library of newspaper clippings was put up for sale and brought a fair price. A person who clips intelligently from newspapers, files the clippings well, and indexes them properly, has a private and personal encyclopaedia that will prove interesting and invaluable.

In his novel, "A Terrible Temptation," Charles Reade, under the guise of one of his characters, told how he was accustomed to spend several hours daily cutting out items from newspapers. Statistics, stories of accidents, descriptions of places and storms, police reports and the like, all found place in his books. He tells of his 20 folios of classified facts, ideas and pictures, and his solid quarto called indexes. The description of an Australian sunrise in "Never Too Late to Mend," for example, came from one of these scrapbooks.

A newspaper edited with fair intelligence is a wonderful mine of fact, description, plot, poetry and suggestion of all kinds. We read these flying sheets carelessly and toss them aside, just as we neglect the other great possibilities that hover over and around this wonderful life every day. After all, it is hard to see things unless we begin to look for them, then they blossom around us everywhere in surprising ways and in unexpected places—even in newspapers.

ANTI-SUFFRAGE GROWING.

Many New Branches Being Formed and Membership Increasing.

[The Remonstrance.]

Cheering news comes from all the state associations opposed to woman suffrage. The Maine association reports the formation of a large number of new branches; the membership of the New Jersey association has grown from 413 to 8,000 within 12 months; the membership of the Virginia association has more than trebled within the past year; the anti-suffrage luncheon given by the New York association at the Biltmore in April was the largest women's luncheon ever given in that city; the Connecticut association has now more than 11,000 members; the Rhode Island association added 1,600 to its membership list in 10 days; and reports of rapidly increasing membership come from Pennsylvania, New Hampshire, Maryland and other states. New state associations have been organized in Delaware, Georgia, Nevada, Nebraska, North Dakota, Minnesota, Montana and Wisconsin. As to Massachusetts, the number of branches has more than doubled during the year.

MIDDLETOWN.

[Regular correspondence of the News.]

The annual picnic of the parish of the Berkeley Memorial Chapel was held, by invitation of Rev. John B. Diman, at St. George's School Tuesday, more than 50 attending. The guests were shown over the buildings and grounds by Rev. Mr. Diman, after which luncheon was served on the terrace east of the dining hall. There was also ice cream, lemonade and candy. When it rained the company adjourned to the dining hall, where there was a series of games, Rev. Mr. Diman as usual taking an active part. The gathering broke up after the rain had ceased, having had a happy time.

A handsome rainbow was seen over the Seaconnet river after the storm, between 6 and 7, Tuesday evening.

Places along the state road, the East Main, are being doctored by John H. Anthony, who first aplied tar and then a small coating of crushed stone.

The Epworth League of the Methodist Episcopal Church is actively engaged in preparing for its annual lawn party.

Rev. Clayton E. Delamater of Fall River, a former pastor, will be the preacher at the Methodist Episcopal church Sunday.

WOMAN'S WORK FOR PEACE.

Baroness von Suttner Devoted a Whole Life to Movement Against War.

Julia Ward Howe Worked Through Suffrage and the Advancement of Her Sisters.

[New York Evening Post.]

Women always want peace. Therefore it is strange that Baroness Bertha von Suttner, whose death occurred in Vienna recently was probably the only woman of international renown whose name is thought of at once in connection with peace, the only one who devoted her whole life to it. It is men, for the most part, and not women, whose names have been on peace committees and Peace Society boards, and who have represented their countries at meetings and congresses. For the most part women have been passively in favor of peace. Now they are just waking up to the idea that action is a splendid thing. The death of Baroness von Suttner, which brings her life and accomplishments vividly to every one's mind, will probably do a great deal for the women-and-peace movement, especially in this country, where women in every state, speaking through the convention of the Women's Clubs Federation in Chicago, have declared themselves unreservedly against all war.

Bertha von Suttner's achievements are well known. After living, quite undisturbedly, through three wars, she became secretary for Dr. Alfred B. Nobel, manufacturer of war materials and inventor of dynamite, who afterwards established the Nobel Foundation. It is sometimes said that his work and his growing tendency towards peace were what first influenced her; at other times it is said that she evolved her own ideas on the subject, and was the inspiration of his Nobel peace prize, a part of the Foundation. At any rate, it was at this time, while she was acting as secretary, that she found herself vitally interested in the work which she followed for the rest of her life doing more for it than any other woman and than most men. It is also mythical, and not certainly true, that her book, "Die Waffen Nieder," was what decided Czar Nicholas II to call the first Peace Conference at The Hague.

But there is nothing uncertain about the fact that this great first peace book of hers stirred up the most universal feeling against war which had ever been stirred up. None of her other books could make such an impression as her first one, but they did their part in keeping alive the feeling which had been aroused. Among them are "Martha's Children," a sequel to "Die Waffen Nieder"; "The Age of Machinery," a journal of the Hague Peace Conference in 1900; "Letters to a Dead Man," "The Great Thoughts of Humanity," and "The Romance of an Author." She was the editor of the magazine published by the International Peace bureau in Berne, Switzerland, "Die Waffen Nieder"; was a member of the advisory council to the Carnegie Peace Foundation, president of the Austrian Peace Society, and honorary president of the International Peace Society of Berne.

Baroness von Suttner lived just long enough to know, although it is not certain, on account of her three weeks' illness, that she did know, of the resolution adopted by the women of the United States in favor of peace. This resolution would have been a great happiness to her, for she believed implicitly in the capability of Americans, and of American women particularly, to do the strongest work towards peace of any people. In 1904 she visited the United States to attend the Peace Conference in Boston. In 1912 she went to San Francisco to talk at the National Convention of Women's Clubs and give the women of America the message of her faith in them and in the great need the world had of them.

And the woman who worked for peace with as much earnestness as Baroness von Suttner was an American woman, Julia Ward Howe. Probably the only reason why her name does not at once suggest the word "peace" is because it at once suggests so many other things. She hoped for peace through woman suffrage and the "advancement of women," which was the name of the association she founded. About the Franco-Prussian war she wrote:

"It seemed to me a return to barbarism, the issue being one that might easily have been settled without bloodshed. The question forced itself upon me, 'Why do not the mothers of mankind interfere in these matters, to prevent the waste of that human life of which they alone know the cost?' I had never thought of this before. The august dignity of motherhood, and its terrible responsibility, now appeared to me in a new aspect; and I could think of no better way of expressing my sense of these things than that of sending forth an appeal to womanhood throughout the world."

She did send forth an appeal, which resulted, after two years of preparation, in a Woman's Peace Congress in London in 1872. When she came back to America she began the celebration of Mothers' day on the second day of June, for the advancement of peace. From this Mothers' day the mothers' congresses of the present are supposed to be descended.

"My dream was of a mighty and august Congress of Mothers, which should constitute a new point of departure for the regeneration of society by the elimination of the selfish and brutal elements which lead to war and bloodshed," she said.

She was a member of the board of directors of the American Peace Society, and one of its vice presidents, and she spoke at the International Peace Congress in Boston in 1904.

Although there are few individual women now who are working for peace alone, there are great groups of women everywhere declaring themselves as against war and becoming more and more active. The very fact that few women are working for peace alone, but are working for suffrage and that same "advancement of women" which Mrs. Howe advocated, is an encouraging sign that peace is being slowly helped along.

There is a committee on peace and arbitration of the National American Woman Suffrage Society and a similar committee of the International Council of Women, which held a convention in Rome. Women planned, almost entirely, the great pageant which was given in London, in celebration of the 100 years of peace between England and America. But, alas, it was also a woman, a militant, who almost broke up that pageant just as Britannia and Columbia, in the persons of Lady Maud Warrender and Mrs. John Astor, were about to clasp hands.

TWO SETS TO ONE.

Williams Beats Clothier in Second Round of Singles at Longwood.

A lively shower interrupted Wednesday afternoon's play for the Longwood tennis singles and the Eastern doubles championship at the Longwood Cricket Club, but the skies cleared in time for the chief attraction of the day, the match in the second round of singles between R. Norris Williams 2d., and William J. Clothier, both of Philadelphia which the former won, two sets to one. A thousand tennis enthusiasts waited nearly two hours under thin coverings for the rain to cease and were well rewarded for their patience.

Williams did not show Davis Cup form until well along in the second set, when Clothier had established a lead and seemed to be in a fair way to victory. Then Williams uncorked a sample of tennis which his fellow townsman was unable to handle. The fifth in this second set was the critical game. Clothier had it apparently safe, 40-30, when Williams eased one of his gentle shots down the side line and made it Deuce. Clothier drove fiercely by Williams for the vantage point, only to bring it back to deuce on an out. Then Williams, running in on Clothier's service, passed the former champion twice in succession and carried off the game.

The placing of Williams for the next five games gave him the set and squared the match. Clothier showed a slight recovery in the last set, but in the fifth game Williams dashed in with four cannon ball drives and won a love game. He wound it up in short order by taking the next three games and with them the set and match.

Williams made 37 passes and scored on Clothier's 26 nets and 26 outs a total of 89 points. Clothier made 25 passes and scored on Williams's 25 nets and 23 outs and four double faults a total of 77 points.

TO DEFEND DAVIS CUP.

Tennis Players of United States to be Announced This Evening.

The tennis players of the United States who will defend the Davis cup next month will be announced this evening by the committee on selection —R. D. Wrenn, George Adee and Henry W. Slocum. The rules provide that the team must be announced a certain period before the matches and that period expires today.

It was unofficially stated at Longwood Tuesday that the American team to defend the Davis Lawn Tennis Cup would be made of Maurice E. McLoughlin of San Francisco; T. C. Bundy, of Los Angeles; Karl Behr, of New York and R. Norris Williams, 2d, of Philadelphia. None of the players mentioned would discuss the matter.

Mr. Wrenn declined to name the four men who will defend the cup. He did not deny, however, that McLoughlin, Williams and Behr would prove good guesses for three of the four.

A ONE-TREE CHURCH.

Building and Interior Finishings All Made From a Giant Redwood.

[Christian Herald.]

In Santa Rosa, Cal., is a Baptist church building, the product of a single giant redwood tree which grew in the neighborhood of Guernaville, a few miles distant from where it now stands. Not only is the main structure built from the one tree, but the interior finishings—except the floor, which is of pine—are of the same wood, beams, pulpit and seatings, not a particle of plaster or other similar material being used in this remarkable building.

The tree when sawed yielded 78,500 feet of lumber and, after the building was finished in every particular enough material was left to manufacture several thousand shingles, besides a quantity of scantings, joists and other dimension stuff.

So carefully were the details planned, and so skilfully was the framework put together, that the builders of this one-tree church declared it might be as enduring as the old Saxon churches of England built centuries ago out of native timber and still in use. It is Gothic in style, finished beams inside.

NEW FASHIONS FOR MEN.

Form-Fitting Clothing Ordered by Designers for Manufacturers.

American men who profess to follow fashion's decree will wear suits of the English close fitting models this fall and winter, according to the standards approved at the opening session of the National Association of Manufacturing Clothiers designers, convention at Atlantic City. The opinion of all the delegates was unanimous in approving of the form-fitting styles, and their decrees are accepted without question by most of the leading clothing manufacturers.

Overcoats will have the "French back" and will be the double breasted, button through variety. Coats are to be single breasted, cut in snugly at the waist line and just a trifle shorter than last season, with soft roll lapels and three buttons. Trousers are to be shapely and of medium width.

Several delegates were of the opinion that the popularity of the new dances was responsible for the demand for form-fitting clothing.

CAMPING OUT.

[Minna Irving, in the New York Times.]

Dropping down the current in a leaky boat,
Dressed in faded flannels and an ancient coat;
Luncheon in a basket, pipe between your teeth,
Watching sun and shadow slipping underneath;
Sunfish, minnows, bullheads, redfins, too, in schools,
Yanking speckled beauties from the pebbled pools;
Later in the twilight, frying pans of trout—
That's the fun of camping—camping out!

Looking through the tent flap at the marching stars,
Getting well acquainted with Jupiter and Mars,
Listening to the crickets piping from the sod,
Feeling somehow nearer all the time to God,
Seeing how the woodland's every growing herb
Through the storm and sunshine reaches up to Him,
Taking time for thinking what it's all about—
That's the best of camping—camping out!

PERSONALS.

John W. Downing of Lowell was elected president of the Stationary Firemen's Union at the state convention in Fitchburg Tuesday. Other officers were: Vice president, Philip A. O'Reilly of Worcester; secretary-treasurer, John H. Ashe of New Bedford.

The friends of the late Mme. Nordica plan to erect a heroic statue of the diva in Central Park, New York, which will be the first statue of a woman not only in the park, but in the city. It is said that there are only two statues of women in the United States, one in New Orleans and the other in Haverhill, Mass.

Sultan Ahmed Mirza, the 18-year-old Shah of Persia, Tuesday, on attaining his official majority, took the constitutional oath of office in the palace of the National Council. The ceremony was brief and took place in the presence of the members of the National Council, the royal princes, high state officials, foreign diplomatic representatives and their wives. The little Shah drove to the palace of the National Council in a glass coach, drawn by eight white horses. The procession passed through the gayly decorated streets of the capital, which were carefully guarded. On entering the palace of the National Council, the Shah bowed to the assemblage, and then pronounced the constitutional oath. Immediately after the ceremony was over he proceeded to the mosque for prayer.

RECREATION PLANS.

Newport County Pomona Grange Holds July Meeting at Fair Hall

Newport County Pomona Grange held its July meeting at Fair hall Tuesday, Worthy Master Mrs. Helen A. Wilcox of Tiverton presiding. All the six granges except Little Compton were represented.

An invitation was received to meet the members of Kent County Pomona next Wednesday at the Newport beach, where they have a shore dinner, this being their annual "water day," when a trip is taken down the bay from East Greenwich. Announcement was also made of the State Grange field day at Kingston College, August 8.

The morning business session closed at 12 o'clock and the Jamestown delegation left for Island Park for a shore dinner. Those remaining adjourned to the dining room for a basket lunch, Mrs. Warren R. Sherman of Portsmouth Grange serving lemonade.

The afternoon session opened at 1:45 and after a short period of business the lecturer's hour was conducted as follows: Grange song, 'Beautiful Grange that we love"; current events, "Women's Part in the Temperance Work," Mrs. Elisha Clarke Peckham; "The Meaning of Home Economics," Mrs. Ella R. Peckham; vocal duet, "Old Home Unforgotten," Mrs. Amos Peckham and her daughter, Miss Florence Peckham, of Jamestown; discussion of the question, "Is the school education given our daughters at the present day a hindrance or a help to their becoming good home makers?" It was generally conceded that education is in a period of transformation, at present needs are greater for vocational training. The preponderance of the foreign element, whose children mainly leave school at 14, points to the fact that a practical education must be arranged for those years. Very little attention has been given in the past in girls' education to teaching any of the arts of home making. This was supposed to be the mothers' duty. The introduction of "home economics" now gives scientific training along all lines of this department. The program closed with the song, "The Dear Old Farm."

The Grange membership trophy, the bronze shield, which has been on exhibition the past month at Jamestown, was taken to Nanaquaket Grange, Stone Bridge, to be displayed at its meetings until the next Pomona session. Jamestown still leads in the membership contest, with a gain of 35 since December.

The meetings for August and September are to be omitted, as is customary, the first month on account of field day and the second because of the Newport County agricultural fair. The next meeting will be an afternoon and evening session at "Little Compton, October 20.

The Grange hall was attractively decorated with pink rambler roses. Mrs. Warren R. Sherman acted as accompanist for the day.

It was announced that Mrs. Jason Gifford of Tiverton, a former secretary, is seriously ill, having been stricken with hemorrhage of the brain the day following the last meeting of Pomona Grange at Nanaquaket Grange, Stone Bridge.

When done, remove the paper, place roll in centre of a hot dish, and serve with brown sauce.

THE REMEDY FOR HUNGER.

[Life.]

We are told that many children in New York go to school hungry. If so, it is their own fault. The remedy lies in their own hands, or would if our authorities are anything like the English authorities, and we have no doubt they would be found so if brought to the test.

It is only necessary for the children to go on a hunger strike, to refuse to eat. That will entail upon the authorities the necessity of feeding them forcibly.

RAILROAD INCOME AND OUTGO.

The railroads for years have been complaining that they were underpaid for carrying the mails. Whether or not their complaints have been well founded, they probably will be if Congress shall enact a bill now pending, which would reduce their compensation materially and impose upon them the obligation to carry the mails whether they desire or not. Thus far they have had the right to refuse the mails. It is proposed to reduce their pay and compel them to carry them. They have already lost a large part of the revenue they formerly received from express companies. The United States is doing an extensive express business and is not paying the railroads anything like the amount the express companies did.

Five per cent increase of rates is not much, but the railroads cannot make that without the consent of the Interstate Commerce Commission. They have been waiting nearly a year for that, and the probabilities are that they will secure only a part of it. Still, railroad expenses increase every year. Every state and county increases its taxes. Full crew laws and many other laws add to the expenses. Public opinion will not allow the roads to refuse advances of wages and precipitate a strike. Within the past two or three years the Eastern roads have been obliged to increase the wages of enginemen, firemen and trainmen, and in the West the enginemen and trainmen have graciously consented to arbitrate their demands for more pay, so that railroads will pay a part of the advance demanded.

The Northwestern group of roads reported in March nearly a million more gross earnings than a year before, but in April they had nearly three and a half millions less revenue, and in May more than six and a half. Yet it is always in order to force increased expenditures on them. Every progressive community increases railroad taxation, and public opinion is always in favor of an increase of wages—to be paid by somebody else.

TURBULENCE IN THE WEST INDIES.

We are in imminent danger of being obliged to intervene in Hayti and Santo Domingo, or allow European nations to do so. The civilized and commercial world will not sit still out of reverence for our Monroe Doctrine while these two petty nations, whose commerce is worth something, proceed to kill everybody in sight and destroy all property which can be reached.

We are actually serving as a receiver for Santo Domingo, and we were obliged to assume that position eight or ten years ago or allow European nations to protect their own "nationals" and their own trade. At that time we cared a good deal about the Monroe Doctrine and were not afraid of "dollar diplomacy," and rather than allow any European nation to establish itself in the island we established ourselves there, with the consent of the government of the day, or upon its application, collecting the revenues, paying the foreign bondholders and turning the rest over to the local government.

The situation in Hayti is almost exactly what it was in Santo Domingo, and, in addition thereto, there are disorders in the latter which must be suppressed, and if the government of the country has not sufficient resources some foreign nation will have—a European nation if not the United States. The present administration has a horror of "dollar diplomacy," but it also knows the effect of allowing any European nation to intervene in the island, and it understands that the patience of the rest of the commercial world is not inexhaustible. Therefore, extremely pacific as the Wilson administration is, it not only keeps a large force of troops in Vera Cruz, but it is massing considerable bodies of marines where they can at the shortest notice be dispatched to Hayti and Santo Domingo. In the case of these petty nations a prolonged campaign of watchful waiting is not necessary; a few hundred marines in each case would probably suffice to establish order and keep the channels of commerce open.

Of course the country will observe that there is no "dollar diplomacy" about this, and that we are not meddling with the affairs of any other people.

HARD TO LIVE ANYWHERE.

A humorous remark, burdened with much truth, was made in a symposium on the comparative cost of living in the country and in the city. One of those who contributed said he had lived in both and found it cost all he had, could earn, borrow, beg or steal, to live in either. Probably the author of the remark need not be taken literally in this instance, but he hit the truth well that it makes comparatively little difference to the average person today whether he resides in the city or the country, so far as the cost of living is concerned. The fact is that all articles of food and wear cost so much in these days that, as this man says, it takes about all that can be scraped together by the average worker to make both ends meet at the end of the year, wherever he may happen to live.

That is one of the discouraging features of present conditions, that the man of average income makes no headway. He just about holds his own, at best and is forced to confess that he is fortunate to be able to do that. The income of the average worker in any field is just about sufficient to tide him over his expenses and gives him practically no chance to lay up something for that rainy day which has been the source of so much flippant comment and amusing repartee, but is a real bugbear to hosts of people who know they must expect it and ought to prepare for it, but are not able to do so because the cost of living leaves no leeway and gives no opportunity for saving.

It is probable that the man whose remark has been quoted had been having just such an experience and was somewhat discouraged, though not enough so to prevent taking a rather jocose view of the situation. He put his thoughts in a picturesque way, but they expressed a real fact which is causing trouble and anxiety to thousands of heads of households in this country at the present time. Wherever one lives, the margin between income and expenses is so small, where there is any margin at all, that any argument as to the comparative cost of living in city or country seems idle.

TEACHING THROUGH MOVING PICTURES.

It is difficult to keep pace with the procession, as new ways are devised for the use of moving pictures for the instruction of the people. One of the latest reported is from Paris, where it is said that these devices are employed to teach police officers their duties. Object lessons of the kind of work expected and the manner in which they should perform their duties are thus given in a graphic and clear manner, and are impressed upon the men as they could not be in any other way.

Some policemen as well as others learn slowly and are not easily instructed in their duties, but moving pictures of what should be done by them under certain common conditions or even emergencies can hardly fail to give a better idea of what is expected of them, for they will need only to duplicate what takes place before their eyes as though it were happening to themselves. It is astonishing to note to how many useful purposes moving pictures can be put, and still others are being conceived and put into effect almost every day.

HOMES FOR THE LABORING CLASS.

The city government of London is engaged in an extensive housing scheme. The plan, according to the announcement, is to build 10,000 homes for laborers and to spend the large sum of $7,500,000 in this way for the benefit of those who need better living conditions. It is a big project, but one which ought to bring good returns, not only in money from the use of the houses but, what is more important, in the increased health and earning power of those who will occupy the new buildings.

There is a direct relation between the living accommodations of the people and the public health, and the better the conditions under which the laboring classes live the greater capacity for work they will possess and the larger earning power they will show. For this reason enterprises like this are public benefactions as well as sound business investments, for it is possible to build good homes for the people and make them pay financially as well as socially and from the point of view of the welfare of the people.

State Senator Harvey D. Hinman, who will contest with District Attorney Whitman for the Republican nomination for governor of New York, claims that he is a representative of the masses and says the so-called bosses have nothing to do with his candidacy. Colonel Roosevelt is highly elated with Senator Hinman's action, and it is considered probable that, if Hinman receives the Republican nomination, he will have the endorsement of the Progressives. The difficulty will be to secure the party nomination if he has not the support of the Republican leaders.

General Carranza announces that when he assumes control of affairs in Mexico, American, French and Japanese land holders in lower California who received concessions through Huerta or Diaz are to be ousted and their land turned over to the Mexican people, and that the pearl fisheries rights given by Huerta to the French and Japanese will be taken away and given to Mexicans. Evidently Carranza proposes to gain popularity with the people, on the platform of Mexico for the Mexicans.

A story which comes from Mississippi says a travelling salesman was fined $6 for giving a negro hotel porter a 10-cent tip, and the negro was fined a similar amount for accepting it. Afterwards the salesman's fine was remitted, but the negro was compelled to pay. A new way of drawing the color line.

If the yachts had had such weather as this for their races last week the question of the superiority of one of the three cup defenders might have been determined.

It really looks as if the New Haven must stand a suit for dissolution of its subsidiary roads. Perhaps that is the best way out of the mix-up.

GREAT BRITAIN'S ARMIES.

Suffragists the Only Active Force, and Fighting Without Arms.

[Pittsburgh Leader.]

While the world is watching Mexico with her armies it is paying little attention to Great Britain, which has four armies in the field, although only one is active—the women fighting for franchise. But the dangers that may be figured out of the risks when these armies get into motion—if they do—are many, and will affect the world.

First, there is the British army, the nation's arm of defense. Then there is that more less hazy army of Ulster volunteers. Then the equally hazy army of Nationalists, and, finally, there is the army of suffragists. Two of these armies are in England, the other two in Ireland. So far the only active force, the only real live one, is the suffragist army.

People who like to draw conclusions from incomplete statistics have been wondering what England is to do if these armies get into action at the same time. The suffragists alone have kept the British government in hot water for a long time and they have neither arms nor other force than ordinary people employ every day.

With the social and industrial conditions as they are, nothing much worse could happen to the British empire than for war to break out in Ireland over home rule. It would be revolution, and while it is comparatively easy to bring on a revolution, it is a bigger job to stop it, and once begun, no man, not the wisest, may forecast exactly what will happen.

But the curious are asking every day, if a handful of determined women with nothing but their hands and tongues can do so much to upset England, what may not happen if three actual armies begin to shoot?

SALEM'S DOORWAYS.

Many Exquisite Memorials of Past Hospitality Destroyed by Flames.

[Troy Record.]

For many years the city of Salem, Mass., has been famous throughout the world for its air of colonial aristocracy. It is the second oldest city in New England and was for many years the wealthiest community in that section of the world. Its harbor competed with New York, Philadelphia and Boston. Its merchants built substantial residences along elm-lined streets. Different from most of the old Puritans, they had an eye for beauty. Their houses have become the models for the best in colonial renaissance. Particularly have the doorways won praise, and more than one book has been written on them. In spite of a wide divergence of type, the purity of colonial simplicity has been invariable in these ancient mansions. Practically every notable colonial doorway built recently finds its prototype in the city of Salem.

Now half of these exquisite memorials of past hospitality have been burned. Fortunately the most famous of them were untouched by the flames, but enough are gone to give a melancholy aspect to the town even when it is re-constructed. Through those perfect doorways many a charming couple passed out to found new homes, many a band of mourners accompanied the coffined body of some worthy whose name finds little mention in the nation's annals, but whose friendliness and personality made him a part of those whom he knew. In and out of the old portals flocked the stern and the simple folk of Puritan days, with the quiet social life and their kindly entertainment; for the Puritan's hospitality was as ample, if not as cordial, as the Southerner's.

With the destruction of so many of Salem's doorways will come a diminishing sense of this long-lost life. America, developed in new ideals of social intercourse, unhappily not always superior to the simpler ways of another century, needed the balance of the Salem lesson; for in Salem wealth did not forget responsibility, nor did austerity bar the pleasures of entertainment and companionship. The nation is fortunate in the fact that the destruction was in no sense complete—that much of the ancient town still stands, untouched by flame; but it is a serious blow to a unique historic survival that part of the Puritan city, with its spacious mansions and its faultless doorways, must pass into the hazy realm of what has been and is no more.

ELECTRIC FANS IN HOMES.

Breezemakers Especially Efficient in Kitchens and Bedrooms.

In the beginning electric fans were installed in the offices of the presidents of large corporations. Next, these handy breezemakers were adopted by restaurants, hotels and other public places, where they strive to make them inviting and comfortable for the spending public. And then, in time, the electric fan was installed in stores, libraries and even in Pullman cars. Not until recently, however, were the fans thought suitable for working people and for the home. Factory owners soon found out that the daily product increased with cooler weather, and installed electric fans to keep the workers cool and comfortable, so they could do their best work even in dog days.

Not until the last few years were the electric fans taken into the home in any large numbers. True enough, the wealthy and well-to-do have had electric fans in their homes for years and years, but they were classed with luxuries, and not with necessities. Even to this day it is common enough to find the electric fan installed in the living room or parlor, which is generally where it is least needed, and never taken out to the hot kitchen by day or into the sweltering bedroom of nights. The electric fan can be attached to any electric light socket, and it certainly should be used in the kitchen and anywhere else a cooling breeze is desired. It can be installed in the kitchen facing an open window and set running so it will force the heated air out of the room, along with the steam and fumes of cooking, and thus keep the room suitable for working purposes. It is equally efficient in the dining room during meal hours.

A resident of an Eastern city took his electric fan to bed with him. That is, he didn't exactly tuck the fan in bed, but he placed it on the window sill in such a manner that when it was connected to the lighting circuit and started running at medium speed it forced a generous supply of cool air into the room. In this way he kept cool and comfortable every night during one of the hottest summers. The fan was fastened to the window sill with a small thumbscrew. It was placed so it did not blow directly on the bed, but sent its breeze against the wall at a sharp angle, so the air was scattered to all parts of the room. The fan ran all night at the second speed at a total cost of less than two cents a night.

Even with the window open there is little ventilation to a bedroom when the air is humid, hot and motionless. The ventilating qualities of a small electric fan have never been fully appreciated by the public. In almost every home proper ventilators are entirely absent. The only means of ventilating a room is to open doors and windows. In the summer months this ventilation depends entirely upon the wind. If the wind doesn't blow, there is no ventilation, even though the windows are wide open. If the wind does blow, those rooms located on the lee side of the house receive no benefit. The natural result is that unventilated rooms are hot and stuffy during damp and sultry weather. This can be remedied at will by placing a small eight-inch electric fan close to the open window and starting it running at slow speed, or faster if desired. When installing a fan in the bedroom be sure the curtains are fastened back so they will not be drawn into the revolving blades of the fan and damaged. A quiet running fan should be selected, so as to avoid useless noise. Arrange the fan so it does not produce a chilling draft, either by selecting a smaller fan or by reducing the speed. A long cord is generally necessary for connecting the fan to the light socket and locating it where desired.

ARCTIC INDIANS.

Dr. Dent Declares They Are "the Most Primitive People in the World."

"The most primitive people in the world" is the definition given to the Indians of the Arctic regions of Canada by Dr. Gordon T. Dent, a Canadian government physician, who has returned to civilization for a short time before returning again to the frozen North. Dr. Dent is accompanied by his wife, who is a graduate nurse and has helped him greatly in his work among the Indians of the Arctic. He has spent 15 years among the Indians of northern Canada, and his accounts of them and their way of living form an interesting chapter in the history of primitive races. He says they are child-like in their manner of reasoning, and their history, an unwritten story, is passed down from father to son through the generations.

"There is a large settlement north of Great Slave lake, where there is nothing to mar the primitive picturesqueness of their daily life," he says. "Living on the spoils of the hunt and the fish they take from the streams of the northland, they subsist on the things which first provided food for man, and, unmindful, not knowing, the civilization of the great world outside their own narrow sphere, they live today as their great forefathers lived many years ago."

Dr. Dent tells of their superstitions and recites many stories and legends which they tell of the creation and the fall of man. "Their story of the flood and the first man are among their most wonderful folk tales. The father of the human race, half man, half animal, is portrayed to their children with deep solemnity and they are told that their grandparents saw him and spoke with him, and that he is the father of every one."

Dr. Dent says that since the earliest missionaries went among the Indians of northern Canada and showed them how to build houses and live in them, disease has appeared in the Arctic and that about 45 per cent of the Indians there are tubercular.

"Unsanitary conditions in their homes was responsible for the appearance of tuberculosis among them. They have not learned the great lesson of sanitation as the most efficient method of preventing disease, and in their child-like primitive simplicity, fall as easy victims to the white plague. However, they are a brave people and kind, and give themselves up to medical treatment with willingness. They show extreme gratitude when they receive benefits from medical treatment.

"Many of them have abandoned the practice of living in houses and a noticeable improvement in their physical condition is already shown. They have returned to the open air life of old days and live on the hunt and from the fish they catch."

WHAT SANITATION REALLY MEANS.

[Professor Winslow, in Popular Science Monthly.]

Today there are, each 24 hours, 200 death beds in the city of New York. If the death rate of 20 years ago had been maintained, there would be 130 more. A 40 per cent decrease in the death rate has already resulted from the advances of sanitary science. Yet there is still upon us a great burden of preventable disease and death. The large, easy things, the purification of public water supplies, the pasteurization of milk supplies, are being accomplished. The insidious spread of contact infection can only be checked by the conduct of life of the individual citizen, by the diffusion of knowledge in the home and the factory, and by the building upon that knowledge of daily habits of personal cleanliness which shall banish contact infection, as the insect-borne plagues have been banished by our emergence from the grosser filth conditions of the Middle Ages. These fruits of the sanitary conscience, these applications of the aseptic sense, are little things, and there are hard things, for they are fraught with the possibility of large results in human health and human happiness.

TENNIS OF A HIGH ORDER.

Closest Kind of a Contest in One Match of the Semi-Finals.

The semi-finals in the mixed doubles lawn tennis tournament were played at the Casino this morning, leaving Mrs. Howard G. Cushing and Mr. Boris Yonine of the Russian embassy to compete in the finals with Mrs. W. Earl Dodge and Mr. Fitz Eugene Dixon. One match was won in straight sets, but the other was the closest kind of a contest, all the sets going to deuce and one requiring 26 games to reach a decision. There were 50 games in the three sets. The match was watched with great interest by a large number of spectators, among whom excitement ran high at times. It was tennis of a high order. The result of the morning's play is as follows:

A FORMER NEWPORTER.

Mr. Hendrick C. Anderson Presenting Plan for World Centre of Art.

Mr. Hendrick Christian Anderson, a former resident of Newport and a sculptor well known in Europe and in this country, is making a short visit to his mother, who still resides here. He has been away from Newport 20 years, having spent the most of the time in Italy, studying and working in his profession. A son of the late Anders Anderson, he came here from Norway when he was six months old and received his early education in the public schools of this city. His brother, Andreas Anderson, who was a well known painter, died a few years ago.

Mr. Anderson is enlisting the attention of prominent men in behalf of his project for the establishment of a world centre to house international interests and unite peoples and nations for the attainment of peace and progress upon broader humanitarian lines. He has been at work upon this project and has interested 46 nations in it, spending much of his time lecturing in foreign capitals in its behalf. Since coming to the United States he has been in Washington and has enlisted the interest of Vice President Marshall, Secretary of State Bryan, John Bassett Moore of Columbia University, formerly of the State Department; P. P. Claxon, national commissioner of education; Senator Newlands of Nevada, John Barrett and Franklin Adams of the international bureau of American republics. He will sail for Europe August 13, stopping on his way to Rome in England and Norway.

Mr. Anderson hopes to influence the various nations to appoint a commission to study the advantages which would accrue to each as a whole, and to the many branches of art, commerce, industry and culture, as well as to investigate the measures needed to legalize its establishment.

He has compiled a handsome book, "The World Center of Communication," of which 500 copies were printed and presented to the crowned heads and rulers of various countries and to leading libraries, the Redwood Library of this city being included in the list. This book gives in detail the plan for the international city.

PROMINENT MAN TO SPEAK.

Suffragists to Hold Mass Meeting and Plan for Fall Elections.

The advisory council and executive committee of the Congressional Union for Woman Suffrage has decided to hold a meeting at "Marble House" Saturday, August 29, at which leading suffragists in the East will lay plans for securing the passage of the federal amendment at this session of Congress. On the following day there will be a mass meeting at Freebody Park, with speakers to be announced later. The mass meeting will be a preliminary, to lay plans for the fall elections. It is the intention of Miss Doris Stevens, secretary of the Union, to have a man of national prominence speak, and Secretary of the Navy Daniels, Secretary of State Bryan, Congressman O'Shaunessy, Senator Owen of Oklahoma and ex-President Roosevelt are probabilities. Leading women in the suffrage movement will also speak.

Mrs. Jessie Hardy Stubbs, press chairman of the Congressional Union for woman suffrage who spoke at the third open-air meeting on Washington square Tuesday evening, held a good crowd through her entire talk, which took an hour's time. Miss Doris Stevens spoke briefly following Mrs. Stubbs.

A BELATED STORY.

Attempted Rescue at Sea With Automobile and Improvised Crew.

A belated piece of information has just reached the News Office. The event happened late last week, and was no less than an attempted rescue at sea with an automobile. Mrs. Alfred Tuckerman, while riding around the drive, observed a catboat in trouble between the shore and the reef off Brenton's point. There was a tremendous sea running, and the waves had broken on board and stalled the engines. The lone occupant could not hoist sail in the blow and threw over the anchor, which fortunately held.

Mrs. Tuckerman with her chauffeur rushed for the Life Saving Station and took Captain Kenyon in the car, and then broke the speed limit to reach Mr. Casey, an experienced surfman, residing on Coggeshall avenue. The regular crew at the station being on a vacation, the improvised crew was rushed to the scene, but the occupant of the boat had meanwhile succeeded in starting his motor.

SMALL TEMPEST HERE.

Something of a Thunder Storm Strikes New England and Does Damage.

Something of a thunder storm struck New England Tuesday afternoon and did considerable damage. Only an outlying seetla of the tempest reached Newport, though it seemed at one time as if it were to be the centre of activitis right here. Shortly after 4 the sky began to darken and by 4:30 lights were burning in all shops and stores doing business. At 4:45 the rain came, hard at first but not so hard as had been feared. It did not rain long, but it came fast at the start. The wind veered from southwest to northwest an the temperature dropped from 72 to 64 in a short time. Then the wind again came out from the southwest and the storm was over, and finally the sun was out. The rain gauge at the Water Works pumping station showed .14 of an inch.

AWARD FOR CALVERT HEATING PLANT.

The committee on buildings of the School Committee has awarded the contract for a new heating plant at the Calvert school to Barker Bros. & Co.j the lowest bidders. There was such a variation in the prices that the committee took time to look into the matter and learn if all were bidding on the same thing. It did not at first appear that they were. The bids were: Barker Bros. & Co. $2,075. Thomas B. Connolly $2,407, H. C. Lawton $3,739.

DANCING AT THE STEVENS VILLA.

The Stevens Villa has made a new departure, by installing evening dances on Tuesday and Saturday of this week, commencing at 10:45 p. m. These will be under the direction of Mr. Fordon and Miss Sims, who will show the new dances, including the Lulu Fado and La Bijou. The music will be furnished by the beach orchestra, under the direction of Mr. O. S. Adler. It is expected that this venture will prove a success, and the management promises all who attend a delightful surprise, as many new features in cafe life will be introduced.

KRAFT MAY PLAY TODAY.

Player Who Nearly Caused a Strike Joins Newarks in Providence.

NEW YORK, July 22.—Clarence O. Kraft, the base ball player whose refusal to go to Nashville almost caused a strike of major league ball players, left Newark last night to join the Newark team in Providence, and will in all probability be in the game today.

The strike was averted yesterday when Charles H. Ebbetts of the Brooklyns paid the Nashville club $2,500, for its claim to Kraft. Kraft has been in Newark for about two months. He was sent over by Charles H. Ebbetts to bolster first base for the Indians. He played the position well and was improving in his work when he was ordered out.

SCOUT MAKES HIS ESCAPE.

Georgia Contract Labor Law Again Invoked Against Federal League.

WAYCROSS, Ga., July 22.—The Georgia contract labor law was invoked yesterday for the second time against the Federal League when warrants were issued for a man said to be a scout for the outlaw organization, who during the day conferred with players of the Valdosta and Waycross teams of the Georgia State League. The warrants charge him with "enticing" laborers under contract, and were issued at the request of President James Sinclair of the league. The man left the city before the warrants could be served. His name was not made public.

Last spring Manager George Stallings of the Boston Nationals involved the law against a Federal League emissary, who talked with Boston players while the team was in Macon.

LAND LAWS UNSATISFACTORY.

Congress Finds Difficulty in Enacting Measure Pleasing to All People.

Man Would Change Economic Conditions of the Country by Simple Act of Legislation.

(Washington correspondence of the News.)

WASHINGTON, July 21.—Almost from the beginning of the government Congress has been legislating upon land laws. Some liberal land legislation has been passed, and the statute books are loaded down with laws relating to the public lands of the United States. And yet they do not seem satisfactory, for there are hundreds of bills pending in Congress now to change the land statutes. Of course the changing conditions of the country have something to do with it. The development of coal and minerals and the necessity for irrigating lands has caused a great deal of legislation.

Nearly every Senator from a public land state has bills pending which he thinks are necessary, but which in reality apply to local conditions in his state. It will probably be impossible to enact a land law which will be general and satisfactory to every part of the country.

From time to time a man comes to Washington with the idea that he can change the economic conditions of the country by a simple act of legislation. One of these men had a bill introduced "by request," which means that the man presenting it did not stand for it. It contained 37 sections and, of course, many appropriations, but its title is enough to explain what it is intended to do.

The bill provides for "raising additional revenue, for re-establishing, in the distribution of the burdens and benefits of government among the people, a condition of equity in its complex relation to the citizens and their prosperity; for creating a fund for the payment of pensions and for setting our army of idle laborers at work on extensive public improvements, for removing the strongest incentive to crime among the poor and to vice among the rich."

If all that could be brought about by a simple act of legislation there is really no reason why Congress should not pass it and then adjourn, but such days of legislative enactments have never been reached in this country.

One of the many problems that confront legislators not only in the national Congress, but in the states, is the employment of convicts. That men in prison must be employed to keep the from going insane is a well known fact, but often the products of their labor compete with the product of the workingmen, and labor unions have made a great protest against that.

Discussing the convict labor bill one day, Congressman Sherley of Kentucky thus outlined what he thought should be done with the convict. "He should be put at remunerative work, charging him with his upkeep, crediting him with his labor, and the difference between what he earns and what he costs should go either to his dependent family or to the man himself at the expiration of his service."

No one has ever been able to figure out just how much good the bureau of education accomplishes, but it has been able to secure a great deal of space in the Congressional Record. Chairman Fitzgerald of the appropriations committee complained that the bureau of education costs a great deal without accomplishing any results to justify the expenditure. The bureau has been in existence a long time, but its growth has been retarded somewhat by the desire of states to control their own educational facilities. Just now, however, the bureau has at its head an energetic man who persists in making himself felt and demanding more money for carrying on the work. That is why the bureau of education has been receiving so much advertising.

Some of the flying machine men have gone up pretty high but, they do not reach the altitude of 20 miles, or 100,000 feet, like the little balloons which the Weather Bureau sends up to find out about what is going on in the high atmosphere. The matter came up in the House and Chairman Lever of the agricultural committee explained that the bureau sent up these balloons with sensitive instruments which told of the various condition of the upper air. They had little notes attached asking people who found them to return them to the Weather Bureau.

It appears that these balloons have been sent out mostly from the $500,000 plant at Mount Weather and drifted out into the Atlantic ocean. Mount Weather is to be abandoned and this work is to be carried on at some point on the Missouri river, so that the little balloons will be picked up as they drift eastward.

SPECIALIZING IN TREES.

White Mountains Forestry Conference in Gorham, N. H.

GORHAM, N. H., July 23.—A description of the progress of the work of the United States forest service in the new White Mountains reservation by J. St. J. Benedict, forester in charge, was on the program at today's session of the White Mountains Forestry Conference. Professor James W. Toumey of the Yale forest school emphasized the need of specializing in the species of trees which have an established market for their lumber, chiefly white and red pine. He said that only a small part of the waste and unused lands of New England met all the requirements for a high grade individual investment when planted for lumber raising, and that such planting, if done at all, should be done by the state or the community.

The annual meeting of the Society for Protection of New Hampshire Forests was held today. Various speakers told of the methods pursued on reservations acquired by the society.

FOR STEERAGE PASSENGERS.

North German Lloyd and Hamburg-American to Raise Rates.

BERLIN, July 22.—The North German Lloyd and Hamburg-American lines today decided to raise their rates for steerage passengers from Germany to the United States by $2.50, thus bringing them up to $37.50.

COMING TO AMERICA.

European Lace Manufacturers Open Branches in This Country.

More than one of the leading lace and embroidery manufacturers of Germany, France and England have opened branch factories in this country in the past eight months. The latest plant to be built is one in Hoboken, N. J., costing $250,000. Trade papers in the dry goods field are devoting much comment to the foreign invasion. It is said that this country will lead the world within the next year in the production of embroideries and laces and that the United States already stands next to Switzerland.

The influx of foreign manufacturers was brought about by the success which has been attained by Americans in the production of laces and embroideries by improved machinery. They not only lessen the cost of production, but actually are able to turn out finer products in many instances than the hand work of foreign lace makers. Laces that cost $1 a yard to produce abroad can be duplicated by machinery for 20 cents a yard, enabling American manufacturers to undersell all others and gradually giving them a hold on the export trade.

It was once thought that the best laces in the world came from Switzerland, but sentiment in this respect has changed during the last few years. Germany and France are now among the heaviest consumers of American laces. As the American manufacturers began to dominate the market there was only one course left to the foreign manufacturers and that was to establish branches in this country, where they could obtain the machinery and thus meet the American manufacturers on a common footing.

Some of the leading European lace manufacturers have closed their home plants, it is said, and are transferring all their business to this country. They are bringing their employes with them and teaching them how to operate the modern American lace making machinery. It is estimated that fully 3,000 persons have been brought to this country in the last two years to work in the lace mills, one half of the number coming from Switzerland.

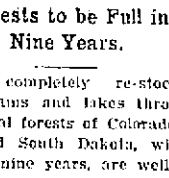

TROUT RE-STOCKING.

Streams and Lakes in National Forests to be Full in Nine Years.

Plans to completely re-stock all trout streams and lakes throughout the national forests of Colorado, Wyoming and South Dakota, within a period of nine years, are well under way, as the result of the approval by the federal bureau of fisheries of a plan of operation prepared by the forest service. The bureau of fisheries has promised to furnish the necessary fish fry for distribution to the various forests, the shipments of fry to be directed to railroad stations nearest the waters to be stocked so that as many streams as possible may be supplied from a central point. The planting of all fry will be performed by forest officers, who will keep close check on the results of the work.

According to the estimates of the forest officers, approximately 20,000,000 trout fry of the brook, rainbow and black-spotted varieties will be needed to meet the requirements of all the waters adaptable to the production of trout. Of this great number, the bureau of fisheries is prepared to supply something over 1,500,000 this year and a gradually decreasing number each successive year for a total of nine, at the end of which time it is expected that the complete re-stocking will have been accomplished. The estimates are said to cover 273 streams and lakes in the three states.

The re-stocking of national forest streams in all states where such forests are situated, including those now being acquired in the White Mountains and the southern Appalachians, will be given attention as rapidly as supplies of fish fry become available for planting purposes. The forest service is admirably organized, to carry on work of this kind and does so with practically no interference with regular activities, since the fish must be handled with the utmost haste and frequently during the late evening or early morning hours. The production of the existing federal and state fish hatcheries is hardly adequate to meet all demands, however, and therefore the work has to be done in installments.

PIMPLES SPREAD ON BODY AND FACE

Never Had Night's Rest. Clothing Irritated Eruption and Pained. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Didn't Have One Pimple Left.

6 Myrtle St., New Haven, Conn.—"My skin itched on my body and face which made me scratch and after I stopped scratching the skin remained very red. Hard little pimples also came out where I scratched. I never had a night's rest and as I continued scratching the pimples spread and got worse. After a month white points appeared on them. My clothing irritated the eruption on my body and gave me pain. Many nights I did not sleep; I could not move in bed for if I did they got worse.

"I used ——, ——, —— and many kinds of ointment but they did not help my trouble. It was all money lost. I then sent for a free sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and after I had used them felt a little better so I bought more. I bathed in hot water and the Soap morning and night, afterwards dried and applied the Ointment. After three months' treatment I didn't have one pimple left." POLITICS BIG FACTOR IN CAILLEAUX TRIAL.

France Concerned Over Papers Mentioned at Hearing.

Government Claims They Were Pretended Copies of Documents.

PARIS, July 22.—Politics were the predominating factor today in connection with the trial of Mme. Caillaux for the murder of Gaston Calmette, editor of the Figaro. The French government was understood to be greatly concerned in regard to the diplomatic documents mentioned at yesterday's hearing as having been in the possession of the assassinated editor and later handed over to President Poincare, who has sent them on to the foreign office.

Senator Bienvenu Martin, acting minister of foreign affairs, was up most of the night, and an active interchange of telegrams took place between him and Premier Rene Viviani, now in Russia with the president.

Joseph Caillaux, the prisoner's husband, and Fernand Labori, her counsel made a vehement demand that the documents should be produced in court. It is understood that the premier, anticipating such a demand, left instructions with his substitute at the foreign office as to what course should be pursued with the papers, which are in the foreign office archives.

Mme. Caillaux today had a long conference with Senator Martin, Fernand Labori and Jules Herbaux, the procurator general. Mme. Caillaux, after breakfasting, glanced over the newspaper accounts of yesterday's hearing, with which she appeared to be satisfied, as many of them were written in a sympathetic strain.

While the court was assembling, newsboys were shouting around the entrances to the Palace of Justice an extra edition of Le Bonnet Rouge, one of the journals in sympathy with M. Caillaux, which contained a page article denouncing the murdered editor, Gaston Calmette. It affirmed that he had been in the pay of German interests and had in the 11 years preceding his death been engaged in political and financial intrigues, by means of which he was able to leave $2,600,000. The newspaper admitted that he had received two legacies, one of $200,000 and another of a smaller amount.

The moment after the court had come to order, the procurator general rose and said: "I am authorized by the government to declare that the documents referred to in yesterday's testimony are only pretended copies of documents which do not exist."

Maitre Labori: "We consider the incident closed."

Charles Chenu, the lawyer representing the interests of the Figaro and those of Calmette's heirs said sarcastically: "I regard the incident as only an enjoyable diversion. It has pleased M. Caillaux to transform a criminal trial into a political one. He intends to go from here with a certificate of loyalty to France. Much good it will do him."

The procurator general exclaimed that the honor and patriotism of M. Caillaux remained unstained. Maitre Labori objected to the language used by Maitre Chenu.

George Prestat, a brother-in-law of the murdered editor and chairman of the Figaro Company, was then called to the stand and emphatically denied that the Figaro had been in the pay of foreign banks. The Germans, he said, had never held the majority of the shares of the Figaro as had been alleged.

Maitrie Chenu, commenting on M. Prestate's testimony, said: "I will add that it does not become M. Caillaux to come here and endeavor to soil the grave which his wife made."

Then followed an exciting scene. Many of those in court rose from their seats and shouted "bravo," while others hissed and murmured until Judge Louis Albanet was obliged to call the court to order with a severe reprimand.

M. Caillaux, in a statement of extreme agitation, exclaimed: "Since I must take notice of what this lawyer has said, I will ask him if he will take personal responsibility for his words." Again "Bravos" for M. Caillaux were heard all over the court. When the noise had somewhat subsided Maitre Chenu replied: "I take the entire responsibility. You cannot menace me here. You doubtless do not know the temper of the man whom you address."

RADIUM FOR FARMING.

Influence on Plant Growth Shown in Experiments in England.

Carl R. Loop, deputy consul general for the United States at London, has informed the Department of Commerce of recent experiments in England of using radium for intensive farming. He says:

"Recent experiments have been carried out in Croydon (near London) in the effect of radium on plant growth. It is stated that many of the results are so promising that it is quite possible that the use of radium for crops may become one of its important applications in the future. It is asserted that radium has an adverse effect on the 'unwanted' soil organisms, leaving the useful ones freer to stimulate growth.

"Best results are said to be obtained with the use of about one seven-hundredth part of a grain of radium to one ton of soil. The residues left behind after radium has been extracted from minerals usually contain a minute amount of radium. When these residues, which are of comparatively little value, are mixed in the soil, wheat and barley grow with great rapidity and the leaves are usually of a darker color. The most decisive results so far reported have been obtained with radishes and carrots, which in some cases have been nearly six times as heavy as those grown under similar conditions in ordinary soil.

"Experiments are also being made to ascertain the influence of both radium and radium emanation on the size and color of flowers and other market garden produce. It is stated that once incorporated with the soil the effects of the radium residues will remain constant for hundreds of years."

ASQUITH RESPONSIBLE FOR KING'S SPEECH.

Conferees to Decide on Exclusion Under Home Rule Bill.

Premier Likely to Submit Proposal Regarding Protestant Sections.

LONDON, July 22.—Premier Asquith today assumed in the House of Commons full responsibility for the speech made by the king yesterday to the political leaders who had met at Buckingham Palace to confer on the Irish home rule problem. He thus set at rest various reports in circulation since the Ulster controversy has become acute, and since the first announcement of the conference.

The premier said: "The speech was sent to me in the ordinary way by His Majesty the day before it was delivered, and I take the entire responsibility for it."

Having disposed of the preliminaries of the conference at yesterday's formal meeting, when King George in a brief speech referred to the fact that talk of civil war was on the lips of many of his subjects, the conferees today settled down to tackle the crux of the problem—the area of Ulster to be excluded from the operations of the Irish home rule bill and the means of carrying out this exclusion. Openly, of course, the two sides declare that they cannot withdraw from their present positions, but it is understood that Premier Asquith is likely to submit to the conference a proposal to allow the Protestant sections of Ulster to vote together on the question of exclusion from the home rule Parliament, and that he may also go so far as to change the time limit of six years embodied in the amending bill, which already has been dealt with by the House of Lords.

Sir Edward Carson, the Ulster Unionist leader, will make a fight to have the country of Tyrone included in this agreement and the fate of this proposition will, it is thought, decide the outcome of the conference.

The Liberal newspapers in the provinces continue to criticise King George's speech, which most of them will not believe the cabinet was not responsible for. They appear to be particularly irritated at the phrase "The cry of civil war is on the lips of the most responsible and sober-minded of my people," which they say might have been taken from the speeches of the Ulster leaders. These, says the Manchester Guardian, a leading Liberal newspaper, the king thought it to summon to his presence without a word of rebuke. The king has been unduly alarmed by the reports of certain of his unofficial counsellors, and the impression thus made on his mind may, unless he wisely determines to be guided henceforth by his official counsellors, have consequences more serious than any that have yet been produced."

The conferees were again in session for an hour and a half today and then adjourned until tomorrow. At today's meeting the claims of the two opposing Irish parties, led by John E. Redmond and Sir Edward Carson, on the subject of the crucial question of the boundary of the area to be excluded from the operations of the home rule bill, were presented to the conferees. As neither the Nationalists nor the Ulster Unionist leader possesses plenipotentiary powers, however, these claims must be submitted to the consideration of their respective party caucuses at an early stage, so that the progress of the conference necessarily must be deliberated.

John Redmond and John Dillon, as they left Buckingham Palace, were given a great reception by the men of the battalion of Irish guards. The soldiers crowded to the windows of the Wellington barracks rooms, cheering wildly and waving their caps.

"The king left it to the discretion of the conferees to determine whether or not his speech should be published and the conference decided unanimously in favor of its publication. His Majesty throughout this matter had followed the strictest Constitutional practice. He has not taken any step from the beginning until now, except in consultation with and on the advice of his ministers."

Premier Asquith, on being questioned as to the calling of the conference, said with emphasis that all attending the conference did so unconditionally. He declined to discuss why it was being held in Buckingham Palace instead of in the House of Commons. When asked whether there would be an opportunity for discussion of the subject in the House, Premier Asquith retorted "time will show."

A SPECTACULAR SIGN.

Many Electric Lamps Installed in Huge, Realistic Display.

[Electrical World.]

Installed on one of the Chicago Electric Light Company's plants is a spectacular sign representing the forging of a hot steel bar under a converted steam hammer, the steam power having been superseded by compressed air pumped by an electric motor using central-station energy.

Two machine attendants are represented, one operating the control lever and the other forming the steel bar. The latter is seen to place the white hot bar beneath the hammer, and at each blow sparks flash out realistically, decreasing in quantity as the iron cools. By outlining the connecting rod with a double circuit of amber and ruby lamps the bar is made gradually to lose its "white-hot" color and to assume a "cherry-red" heat as the hammering continues and the rod cools. The portion of the rod held in and adjacent to the hands of the workman is illuminated with amber-colored lamps to represent a lesser degree of heat.

The movements of the other workman are particularly realistic. With his hand on the throttle he moves it slightly once or twice, to make sure the hammer is operating correctly. Then he throws the valve wide open and allows the hammer to strike its full blow.

Installed in the entire sign are 3617 10-watt tungsten lamps, 1600 of which are in the flashing portion. The total length of the display is 201 feet and the height 42 feet, the flashing portion being 55 feet wide. The magnitude of the sign is indicated by the height of the machine attendants, who are 36 feet tall.

CHARLES STREET JAIL PRISONER A SUICIDE.

Robinson, Held for Murder, Bleeds to Death.

Jugular Vein and Artery on Wrist Opened by a Steel Shank.

BOSTON, July 22.—Suicide ended today the adventurous career of Lawrence Robinson, who, while posing as a gentleman, was alleged to have committed four murders and an unknown number of jewelry robberies. The body was found in the cell at the Charles Street jail, where he had been confined since June 19, when he shot and killed Police Inspector Thomas J. Norton while resisting arrest on a charge of murder and robbery preferred by the police of Grand Rapids, Mich.

The instrument of death was a steel shank, four inches long and an inch wide, which he had removed from his shoe, and the edge of which the prisoner had sharpened on the iron bars of his cell window. The medical examiner found two wounds, one an inch and a half in length on the left of his neck, that opened the jugular vein, and another of similar size where he had cut an artery on his left wrist. He bled to death quickly without making an outcry.

A guard who visited the cell at 6 o'clock this morning found Robinson apparently in his usual health and saw nothing to arouse suspicion. On his next round, a half hour later, the same guard found Robinson stretched out on his bed, dead.

The grim manner in which the man ended his trial for the murder of Norton, which opened Monday, was characteristic of him as he was known to the local police. Since his arrest he had maintained a seeming stoical indifference to the legal proceedings, and at no time sought to justify or explain the acts charged against him. He appeared in court faultlessly groomed and seemed to regard the trial as something apart from himself. He was a man of unusual mental attainments.

Rumors were current that confederates from the West would attempt his release by force, and these rumors were taken so seriously that the prisoner was constantly surrounded in the court room by five heavily armed officers. The jury was drawn Monday and yesterday the jurors visited the Boylston cafe, where Norton was killed. Monday night the prisoner spent in the court house, but the apprehensions of the police were somewhat relieved after the first day, and last night he was returned to the jail.

The trial was to have been resumed at 10 o'clock this morning, when Judge Keating was to rule on the motion of the defense to compel District Attorney Pelletier to make known the identity and the line of their testimony of several witnesses whom the state had brought from Grand Rapids. The district attorney had said that he would show by these witnesses the motive which Robinson had in resisting arrest. When court opened Medical Examiner McGrath informed Judge Keating that the defendant was dead from self-inflicted wounds, and the jury was immediately discharged.

Robinson appeared in Boston early in May and successfully played the role of a wealthy man of leisure. He stopped at a quiet hotel and soon after his arrival began taking lessons of an instructor in the modern dances. This gave him an acquaintance in a set of young people where he became popular.

His only intimate companion, however, was Joseph Duddy, 23 years of age, who was with him when the shooting occurred. Duddy is awaiting trial as an accomplice but has asserted that his was only a chance acquaintance and that he knew nothing of the crimes charged against the other.

Robinson had been in the city several weeks when a description of him was furnished by the police of Grand Rapids, who alleged that he had killed three men in a jewelry store which he robbed in that city. The police were soon on the track of the suspected man, who was trailed to the Boylston cafe June 19.

He was lunching with Duddy when Norton and two other officers approached and told him that he was under arrest. Robinson sprang to his feet and a fight followed, during which Norton was shot and killed. Police Inspector Claflin, who had seized Duddy, then fired upon Robinson, wounding the latter three times as he started for the door. Robinson got to the street, but ran into a blind alley where he was captured by a mounted policeman. His wounds did not prove serious. The police claim that Robinson had thrown them off their guard by saying that he would go with them without trouble, and that he drew his revolver and fired the moment his hands were free.

The officers who survived the encounter said that Robinson, who showed fight at first, was quickly overpowered and, but for his promise that he would go peacefully, he would not have a chance to draw his gun.

Robinson's defense had not been outlined, but it is understood that his attorney intended to set up that the officers had no warrant and so had no right to arrest their client, and that in the fight he was acting in self-defense.

The suicide was of athletic build, powerful and quick in action. He was six feet, three inches in height, but rather slender. He was perfectly developed physically and, according to his story, was 32 years of age. Little was known here of his antecedents. In his effects and on his person at the time of the arrest were found jewelry valued at thousands of dollars.

Henry J. Homrich of Huntington, W. Va., entered an action in the superior court here Monday for the recovery of diamonds and jewelry found in Robinson's possession, and which were said to be worth $15,000. Homrich claims that he identified the jewelry as that stolen from his store in Huntington last March. He also asked that $581 in cash recovered from Robinson and Duddy be restored to him, on the ground that it came from the sale of his property. Relieved of his money and precious stones, Robinson told the court that he had no funds with which to employ counsel and the firm of John H. Blanchard & Son was assigned by the court to defend him.

Letters found in Robinson's effects, and dated July 18, indicated that he contemplated suicide before his trial had begun. A pathetic note to his mother and wife read:

"To my dear mother and to my wife Dora Alice:

"The loving sweetheart of my boyhood days, the only woman I have ever loved and who stuck to me through all the shame into which I plunged her, I bid a last fond good bye, and if there is a God Almighty and Another world I pray that I may meet you ther. "Lawrence."

To Sheriff John Quinn, his keeper, and to his counsel, John H. and Hugh C. Blanchard, he wrote:

"You're up against a hard game when you've got to die to beat it. It seems to be the easiest solution for the whole difficulty. I would not want to go to the chair for the satisfaction it would give certain people, and life sentence or a long term in prison for manslaughter are worse than death, and I know what I'm talking about. I hate this on account of the sheriff who, though very strict, is a man, and my attorneys, Mr. John H. Blanchard and Mr. Hugh Blanchard, who have gone to an immense amount of trouble and expense to prepare my defense."

STORM HINDERS BAPTISTS.

Sale Commenced on Lawn, Finished in the Sunday School Rooms.

The Improvement Society of the First Baptist Church had its annual lawn party and supper Tuesday afternoon ande evening. It had been intended to have the sale on the lawn, but after tents had been erected and the sale commenced the thunderstorm came up and everything was hurried into the Sunday School rooms, where the sale of fancy articles and refreshments was carried on during the remainder of the afternoon and evening. There was a good attendance, the supper proving as usual a strong attraction.

Mrs. L. A. Gleason was in charge of the supper table, Mrs. Frank Morrill of the fancy table, Mrs. Howard R. Peckham candy table, Mrs. Atmore Honeywell cake table, Mrs. Thomas Sorrell ice cream table, and the members of the Sunday School classes of Mrs. Heath and Mrs. Van Doorn of the miscellaneous table. Mrs. Gleason and Mrs. Jethro J. Peckham were in general charge of the arrangements. Mr. Peckham erected the tents on the lawn.

The proceeds will go to the fund for the improvement of the church property.

ON THE PLAYGROUNDS.

Sports at King Park and the Basin—Another Hike Planned.

Instructor Lee held a boys' quoit tournament at King park this morning which was of great interest. The summary follows:

In the first round S. Sullivan defeated Leury, 11-6; O'Brien beat Murphy, 11-10; T. Donnelly beat Sullivan, 11-3; Taylor defeated Cullinan, 11-8; H. Donnelly defeated McLean, 11-9.

In the second round O'Brien beat S. Sullivan, 11-7; T. Donnelly beat Taylor, 11-1; H. Donnelly beat Barry.

T. Donnelly won from O'Brien, 11-9, in the third round, and H. Donnelly won from Horan, 11-2, leaving the Donnelly brothers to fight it out for the championship. H. Donnelly won by an 11-6 score.

Under the direction of Miss Donovan at King Park this morning a number of races were held among the girls. The Blue Ribbons defeated the Red Ribbons' five out of nine games at submarine ball. On the Blue Ribbon team were M. Phelan, A. Morrissey, K. Sullivan, E. Jenkins, J. McCarthy, A. Christenson and L. Morrissey. The Red Ribbon team was made up of E. Curran, E. Knott, M. Fitzgerald, F. Winters, J. Oliver, R. Lawes and M. Phelan.

The Blue Ribbons then defeated the Red Ribbons in relay submarine ball, and the Red Ribbons followed with a victory over the Blues in overhead ball. The Blue Ribbons then came back and beat the Reds in a relay race.

Basin defeated Lenthal in the indoor base ball league Tuesday by an 18-9 score. The winners secured an early lead and held it.

In the Ballroad League at the Basin this morning Sante Fe beat New York Central two games out of three at volley ball, the scores being 18-21, 21-16, 21-9.

Instructor Ward of the Basin will take the boys out on their weekly hike Thursday morning, to Second beach, where the youngsters will receive careful instruction on first aid to the drowning. It is the plan of the supervisors at the Basin to make each of the weekly hikes one for instruction, and with this end in view Mr. Ward will show the boys how to rescue a drowning person, how to bring him to shore, and then what to do after landing the body.

This afternoon Basin meets Vernon Avenue in base ball at Vernon Avenue, and the Basin will take a large crowd of rooters to cheer their team, which is at present leading the league. Members of the Recreation Commission are expected to be present to witness the game.

The base ball backstop at the Basin is being moved so that the youngsters can use the big diamond which the Recreation Commission put in condition earlier in the season.

THE AMERICAN BABY CROP.

Women of the Country Concentrating and Specializing in the Product.

Miss Marjorie Dorman, who represents the Wage Earners' Anti-Suffrage League has issued a statement in which she says that just about the most important thing in this country these days is the "American baby crop," and she expresses a belief that the women of the country are concentrating and specializing in that product. Miss Dorman says:

"Since, according to the last census, only 19.5 per cent of the women of this country are unmarried it is only natural to suppose that the great majority of women are concentrating and specializing on the American baby crop. This is the most direct influence a woman can bring to bear upon the state, and every successful business man realizes that this is an age of specialization.

"In all this talk about how the working woman must be benefited by her right to cast the ballot, it should be remembered that, while 90 per cent of the males 16 years of age and over in this country are wage earners, only 20 per cent of the females of 16 years of age and over are engaged in any kind of gainful pursuits. And 40 per cent of the women who are breadwinners in this country are engaged in personal and domestic service. Therefore, my sex, without the medium of the ballot box, already possesses the power to effect beneficial changes in the lives of nearly half the women who toil in the United States.

"Moreover, 23 per cent of working women are under voting age, and could not cast a vote. Hundreds of thousands of girls enter the industries at 14 and 15 years of age and leave them to enter homes of their own before they are 21. Woman's relation to labor is transient and accidental, not permanent like that of man."

A PROBLEM FOR BUILDERS.

Painting of Concrete and Cement Surfaces Presents Many Difficulties.

[Canadian Engineers.]

The painting of concrete and cement surfaces is one of the many new problems that modern conditions have brought to the master painters of the present day.

Ordinarily linseed oil paints cannot be applied with success directly to cement or concrete surfaces on account of the lime present in the cement. The action of this alkali is to destroy the oil, causing rapid fading of colored paints, and chalking and scaling off of the material. Therefore, it is necessary, if a linseed oil paint is to be used, that the surface be first thoroughly saturated with a neutralizing wash. The most approved method is to use a solution of zinc sulphate in the proportions of three pounds to a gallon of water. A cement surface treated with this wash and allowed to dry can be painted with any high-grade linseed oil paint without danger from alkaline action, and with the assurance that results will be lasting, as if applied to wood.

Water color paints should not be used for exterior cement coating, as they do not form a water-proof coating (one of the most important requirements of a cement paint) and offer no protection from deteriorating influences.

All the new cement surfaces, either exterior or interior, should be allowed to become thoroughly dried out and hard before painting, and the best results have been obtained where the work has stood not less than a month before paint was applied. If the surface is dry and the paint right, it will penetrate freely on the first coat, filling the pores and rendering peeling impossible, but this would not be the case if applied over a damp surface.

Exterior cement paints should dry to a flat or semi-flat finish in order to carry out the stone or cement effect. Nothing looks more out of place than a full gloss paint applied to exterior cement surfaces.

Many of the ready prepared cement floor paints, the quick drying vehicle of which is largely china wood oil, have been found to give excellent results. R. H. Langston, in a paper read at the Illinois State Association of Master House Painters, Chicago, strongly recommended their use until such time as a more complete knowledge of the requirements in mixing of this material can be obtained.

There is no doubt that for some time to come the master painter will be feeling his way, step by step, in the new realm of modern surface painting which cement construction has forced upon him. It will tax the brain of the paint chemist to formulate the vehicle with which to destroy the alkaline base with which cement surfaces are loaded.

CRINOLINE.

The Much Abused "Cage" Imparts Grace of a Day That is Dead.

[London Chronicle.]

No one can wish for a return of the the crinoline, and the revival of "A Scrap of Paper" at the Criterion Theatre marked somewhat how much of the grace of a day that is dead the much abused "cage" can impart to its wearer.

The crinoline is at its best in this revival. Miss Nancy Price and the ladies with her pass through quite narrow doorways without difficulty and yet appear to skim about the stage like birds, so upheld are they by their floating skirts. In the first and second acts Miss Price as Susan Lawless wears a white muslin summer day dress with a pointed low cut bodice, a crossed fichu secured by a large cameo brooch and a wide mauve waistbelt with mauve rosettes decorating at intervals the crinoline skirt. Her white straw "poke" bonnet has mauve ribbons and a hanging white veil, and she wears short white gloves with black ribbon bracelets with gold ornaments, and white stockings with black cotharine shoes.

Miss Margaret Halston, as Lady Icebrook, has two effective frocks. The first is of yellow satin, with two skirt flounces, pointed bodice and short puff sleeves edged alike with two narrow rows of mouse brown velvet. The undersleeve and fichu of white muslin have a similar edging, and the charming lady wears ringlets and a cameo brooch. Her evening frock is of pink silk, the skirt in three frills, each of which is embroidered in large silk roses of a darker shade than the dress. A pretty touch is the real roses of the same color as the embroidered ones which decorate her hair and low cut bodice.

be beginning the women of New York held a mass meeting of protest, April 23, in Cooper Union. The underlying idea of the meeting was to show that all the women of New York, society women and working women, suffragists and antis, Americans or foreign-born, were united in their opposition to war and their desire for peace. Every woman's society of the city was represented, and the meeting was planned and carried out within 48 hours.

At that meeting Mrs Henry Villard, who is strongly against war, said: "In this twentieth century, the women of the world—they who give life—should organize to safeguard it and prevent its wanton destruction by men. A recourse to war as a means of righting wrongs is full of peril to the whole human race. Not only are bodies killed, but the ideals which alone make life worth living are, for the time being, lost to sight."

The following resolution was presented by Miss Frances Perkins, secretary of the Safety Society, and adopted by the meeting:

"Since time began women have been devoting their best efforts to the saving of human life, it is eminently fitting that at this crucial time in our history we should protest in burning words against the tragic folly of involving this country in war with Mexico.

"Therefore, this mass meeting of women assembled in Cooper Union April 22, 1914, calls upon the President to put the noble words he has uttered in the past into deeds. We ask him immediately to withdraw our troops from Mexico and thus with true courage and the finest sense of honor repair the harm already done."

A NEW EXPLOSIVE.

Canadian Product Has Three Times the Destructive Effect of Dynamite.

[Consular and Trade Reports.]

Tests were recently made in the presence of a number of contractors and business men of Vancouver of a new explosive called sabulite, which will be manufactured at Coquitlam, British Columbia. A company capitalized at $300,000 has been organized to handle the product, and a plant for its manufacture is nearing completion.

Experiments were made in blasting stumps, in which comparative estimates of the power of the new material were made with the explosive force of dynamite, and it is asserted that six and a half pounds of sabulite is equal to 20 pound of dynamite in destructive effect.

The chief feature of sabulite is that it can be handled without danger both while in course of manufacture and in use. None of the ingredients are in themselves explosive. Sabulite is not affected by heat or cold. It has been subjected to a temperature of 258 degrees Fahrenheit and 75 degrees below zero without its properties being affected. Another salient point about the explosive is that no poisonous fumes are given off in the explosion, only a slight odor being perceptible at the tests made.

While the quantity of sabulite required for ordinary purposes is only about one-third that of dynamite, the cost of production a pound is said to be about the same. Sabulite is used for blasting purposes only.

GOVERNMENT RENTALS.

Department Business Conducted in Quarters Which Are Insufficient.

[National Magazine.]

Many of the activities of the government in the District of Columbia are today being conducted in tumbledown, rickety, fire-trap buildings, which are liable at any time to be destroyed and cause us to lose documents and records which are invaluable, because they could never be replaced. This is true with reference to buildings owned by the government as well as some of those which are rented from private owners. But if we leave out of consideration the danger of loss by fire, the loss in efficient service produced by lack of decent and proper quarters and considerations of like character, and look only to the mere question of dollars and cents involved in the question of continuing to use the rented quarters which we now occupy or constructing buildings for those departments, or branch of departments, now housed in rented quarters, I assert that it is the part of wisdom and in the interest of economy to build. There is not a department of the government which is not forced to rent quarters for some branch of the service outside the buildings which we own in the District of Columbia. With the growth of the country the public business has expanded and the demand for more room is heard from every quarter. The annual rentals being paid by each department of the government in the District of Columbia is as follows:

The Treasury Department pays $47,000; Department of Commerce, $70,000; Department of Justice, $34,100; Department of Labor, $7,500; Department of the Interior, $75,175; Department of Agriculture, $99,277; War Department, $61,443.50; Navy Department, $87,274.16; Department of State, $16,960, and the Postoffice Department, $52,160, making a total of $561,739.45 paid by the United States every year to individual owners for the use of property in the District of Columbia in which to carry on the business of the government. This is nearly three per cent on $20,000,000, and I think I am safe in saying that the total value of all the property in the District of Columbia rented by the government would not exceed $6,000,000, and in addition, nearly all the rented buildings which we are now occupying are of non-fireproof construction.

THIS PICTURE AND THAT.

[Life.]

Disillusioned Bride—When I formerly dropped my handkerchief, how eagerly you used to spring to catch it. Now I have to pick it up myself. Alas, what a change a wedding ceremony will make!

Disgruntled Hubby—There's a reason, my dear; when I asked you for the bread of domestic happiness you handed me the stone of clubs and suffragism!

[Moral—There are always two sides.

SPOKEN "CARBAHAL."

How to Pronounce the Name of Mexico's New Chief Executive.

Now that Huerta has at last quit his job and has been succeeded by Francisco Carbajal as temporary president of Mexico, there is likely to be a renewal of controversies as to the proper pronunciation of the name of the chief executive of the republic.

When Huerta took charge of the affairs of state in Mexico City he was called by almost as many different names, because of the Anglo-Saxon unfamiliarity with Spanish nomenclature, as he has been since his frequent refusals to lay down the sceptre of power. "Hureeta" was probably the most favored pronunciation of his name among Americans, although "Hueerta" carried some bets and that would be the way to pronounce the name if it was English instead of Spanish. Then after the controversy had gone on for some time, "we" let every one in on the proper pronunciation which was "Uerta," the "H" being silent and the "U" being pronounced like the double "O" in boot.

And now comes Senor Carbajal. When you learn how to pronounce it you will find it easier than pronouncing Huerta. Just now the new Mexican president is being called Carbajal with the "J" used as in John. But to prevent disputes and save money to some persons who otherwise might lose it by making wagers on the proper pronunciation, the right pronunciation is herewith given. While in the case of Huerta the "H" is silent, in the name of Carbajal the "J" is pronounced like "H," the syllable of the name "jal" being pronounced like the first three letters in Halifax. The name Carbajal, therefore, is pronounced "Carbahal," with the accent on the last three letters.

WILD ANIMALS BARRED.

Mocking Birds Also Prohibited in Leases of New York Apartments.

[New York Evening Post.]

It is not likely that a New York family will be discovered with a mocking bird or a wild animal sharing its home, and perhaps there are none that have such an appendage, but should there be such, and that family have intentions of taking up an abode in an apartment house, they will have to look sharply to the lease the renting agent gives them to sign. Some owners would not object to have their other tenants rub elbows in the elevators with a family that has a mocking bird, but they are certain to object to renting to a family that harbors a wild animal.

There are several first-class apartment houses, and there may perhaps be hundreds of them, in this city which have house rules and regulations governing daily life that include a prohibition of the keeping of dogs and cats, but a lease with a clause that adds to the prohibitory class "mocking birds, wild or domestic animals of any sort, under the penalty of forfeiture of the lease at the option of the lessor" is believed to be an innovation in the framing of apartment leases, which as many have found out, are complex enough without having any more frills added thereto.

BUMPER CROPS EXPECTED.

United States Chamber of Commerce Reports Feeling of Optimism.

WASHINGTON, July 21.—In a review of agricultural and business conditions sent to its members last night the Chamber of Commerce of the United States emphasized the bright prospects for bumper crops this year, and reported a general feeling of optimism over what the future has in store, in spite of present depression in manufacturing, mining, lumber and railroad centres. The chamber's conclusions, prepared at the headquarters here, were based upon data gathered from all parts of the country.

"It is rather remarkable," said the review, "that in most sections, even in manufacturing sections, where business conditions are at their worst, there is much optimism of the immediate future, and a general feeling that with normal crops there will be very great improvement in all business matters during the remainder of this year.

"Manufacturing is exceedingly quiet throughout the country. Mining, nearly all kinds, suffers from strikes and lack of demand. Lumber interests are feeling the dearth of building, especially in small towns and in the country. The railroads, because of decreasing revenues and increasing expenses, have cut down their forces as far as possible and laid off many trains, in the interest of economy. These conditions have, naturally, bred much apprehension, conservatism, and pessimism in districts where these industries are the principal sources of revenue to the inhabitants. This is particularly true in the middle of New England states and in some of the large manufacturing centres of the West and South. Against these unfavorable conditions, the situation of agriculture is most encouraging, despite drought conditions that have prevailed more or less extensively in the spring and summer in widespread sections. Widely extended rains in the latter part of June and early in July have put a new phase upon affairs."

WILL APPEAL CASE TO PEOPLE.

Representative McDermott of Illinois Offers Resignation.

WASHINGTON, July 21.—Representative James T. McDermott of the Fourth Illinois district today on the floor of the House offered his resignation, to take effect immediately. McDermott is under charges in connection with the lobby investigation.

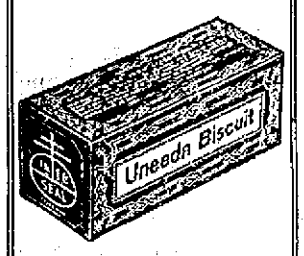

McDermott, Democrat, representing a constituency which includes the stockyards district of Chicago, was one of the figures in the exposure of Martin M. Mulhall, star witness in the lobby investigation. A majority report of the investigating committee, now ready to come before the House, recommends that he be censured with officers of the National Association of Manufacturers.

His resignation came as a sensation today, when, immediately after the House had assembled, he rose to a question of personal privilege and offered it from the floor, declaring that he would "appeal his case to the people of the Fourth District of Illinois." A minority report recommends that he be expelled.

He said he had already announced himself as a candidate for re-election.

ARMED CONFLICTS IN STREETS.

Strike Situation in Russia Takes on Serious Aspect.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 22.—The strike situation in Russia took on a serious aspect today when armed conflicts occurred in the streets and resulted in the wounding of many police, Cossacks and strikers. Just outside the capital a passenger train on the coast line to Finland was held up by strikers, the engineer was forced to quit under threat of being shot, and all the passengers were driven out of the cars. The strikers then proceeded to cut down the telegraph poles an place obstructions on the tracks. A detachment of Cossacks and gendarmes drove off the wreckers. Every train thereafter was convoyed by an armed escort.

At Riga the strike movement was reported to be spreading and it was said that 4,000 men in that city had struck work, while in many of the other large cities in all parts of the Empire thousands of men had left their employment.

TRENTON, N. J., July 22.—A delegation of New Jersey woman suffragists called upon Governor Fielder yesterday to make sure that there would not be any hitch in the legal proceedings for the advertising of the resolution providing for a vote upon the suffrage amendment which was passed by the last legislature. The governor extended the assurance that there would be no trouble in the matter and the failure to advertise would not occur as it did last year.

VEHICULAR COLLISION.

About 6:20 this morning there was a vehicular collision on Thames street, between a milk delivery automobile of R. Daffais and a bicycle owned by Harry Dennis. The latter had considerably the worse of the encounter.

From Bellevue avenue and Bowery street Tuesday afternoon came report of another collision, in which Benner's delivery automobile ran into Mrs. B. Withrop's automobile. It is stated that the former turned to the wrong side, but though the other climbed on the sidewalk in an effort to escape the smaller machine succeeded in hitting the rear wheel, and suffered considerably.

TUMULT IN ASSIZE COURT.

Miss Evans Brought Up for Having Explosives in Her Possession.

BELFAST, Ireland, July 22.—A crowd of militant suffragettes today created a wild tumult in the Assize court and its vicinity when Miss Dorothy Evans, an official of the Belfast branch of the Women's Social and Political Union, was brought up for trial on the charge of having in her possession explosives for the purpose of committing a felony. Miss Evans was arrested in the house of the Lord Mayor of Belfast. The disturbance caused by the suffragettes, who broke windows and savagely assaulted the police, was so great that proceedings had to be suspended for a time.

Noon—Missouri Pacific fell abruptly to its recent low level under the impact of short selling and Rock Island preferred recorded its lowest price in sympathy with declines in allied issues. Baltimore & Ohio was relatively strong, despite unfavorable June earlings, but Chesapeake & Ohio yielded 1⅛ on moderate offers. Leaders held on to their gains, but by noon the move in that quarter became uncertain. Mexican and California Petroleums and other specialties, including Harvester, Beet Sugar, Bethlehem Steel and American Tobacco rose 1 to 4 points, but exercised no speculative influence. Weakness in Rock Island bonds extended to other issues, with losses of 5 to 8½ points in Missouri Pacific Convertibles, Colorado Midland Fours and Missouri, Kansas & Texas refundings. PURE WATER

Poets have sung the beauties and charm of water from the time man began to write. In our practical age when, they say, there are no poets along comes the doctor and he begins to tell us more about water. But he doesn't lay such stress on the murmuring of the brook or the thunder of the waves as he does on the purity of the water we drink. He tells us that the brook that murmurs most soothingly may hold poison to the human system. He tells us that the bubbling, laughing spring may be the old homestead of certain families of creatures with names as disagreeable as their disposition. He's practical, is the doctor, and so he tells us to read all the poetry we like but when we come to drinking we should see to it that our water is absolutely pure. That's unselfish of the doctor for it prevents him from getting many a fat fee.

STRENGTH IN THE SHADE.

Broadway Sidewalk Should Be Curved or Narrowed to Save the Trees.

To the Editor of the Daily News:

Sir: I earnestly hope that those few remaining trees on Broadway are not to be slaughtered. As compared with their preservation a gold-plated sidewalk would be of far less value. Many can remember when Broadway was an attractive way because of the cool, refreshing shade of the big trees all along the curb. Now it is a place nobody thinks of with any pleasure. Every tree is worth hundreds of dollars to our city, and attracts people here.

Suppose that small bit of granolithic does have to make a curve? What is more devoid of beauty than a straight line? And what can equal the repulsiveness of a treeless street? There seems to be some pitiless evil spirit seeking vengeance here, and persuading men to destroy the splendid work of God—our fine trees. It is but a short time ago that we were shocked to see noble, sound, trees ruthlessly slaughtered in our parks; this summer the destruction of fine trees has changed Third street from a pretty and attractive road to a great, wide ash-heap, and it all could have been avoided, with a bit of planning, had anybody in charge of the job cared a fig for the shade and beauty of these fine specimens.

A curved line is the line of beauty; the refreshing shade of trees on Broadway in such weather as this should need no advocate; it speaks for itself. The shade of those trees will supply strength to walk several blocks along the sweltering, shadeless part of the way. By all means let the walk be curved, and even narrowed, to favor the roots. There is but little need of a wide walk there—not so much as in some places where a narrower one is doing very well; and the shade will refresh everybody, on both sides of the street. We need to plant a lot of trees every Arbor day—and some on Broadway, too—and we can not spare one. Whoever has the charge of this matter will serve his city well if he leaves no stone unturned to preserve these trees. Will not others speak up quick and loudly, that it may be seen that public opinion demands they be saved? When, oh, when will the people of Newport be felt in these matters?

Sweltering Pedestrian.

KERRY HILL RUCTIONS.

One Man Fined for Assault and Another for Revelling. During Row.

There were "ructions" in Kerry Hill Tuesday night, and in consequence a considerable portion of the inhabitants of Callendar avenue were at the police station. One man had evidently been the target for something, for he had two black eyes and other evidences that things were coming to him, and that they were not soft. As a result of inquiry two men were held on charges of assault and this morning the number was reduced to one. He was fined $20 and costs, $22.60, which he paid. Another man, charged with revelling in connection with the same episode was fined $5 and costs, which at last reports had not been paid. The affair was among Bravas.

A man charged with malicious mischief in tearing down a barber sign was fined $2 and costs, which he paid. The young woman who was arrested some days ago for wearing a man's suit on the street was in again, and was placed on probation. A woman surrendered by the probation officer was sent to the state workhouse for six months.

Chief Fred Davis and Assistant Chief Grinnell from Tiverton were in with two persons. The man was fined $20 and costs, $26.20, but the woman made a great plea and was placed on probation. They also had another woman who was sent to the workhouse for six months.

Officer Corcoran of Portsmouth reported the finding, off the Portsmouth shore, of a copper tank about 14 by 11 inches and what seemed to be parts of a wireless outfit.

JUST CADDIES.

A few of the boys who spend their summer vacation on the golf links, enjoying life in the open air and at the same time earning a little money. They are only boys, but their work trains them to be courteous and puts them in the way of meeting prominent men. Who knows but some boy in the above group may become mayor of Newport in years to come?

TO REPRESENT NEWPORT.

Three Couples Selected for Dancing Contest Against Visiting Teams.

As a result of the meeting at the beach Tuesday evening, to adjust the differences remaining over pairing off the men and women chosen by the public to represent Newport, three couples have been finally selected to represent this city in the contest against Providence and Fall River at the dancing pavilion Thursday evening. Those selected are William Maitland and Mrs. George H. Keyes, Frank Moore and Miss Bessie Murphy, Harry Harvey and Miss Catherine Lynch.

With the exception of Miss Bessie Murphy all these dancers were chosen since Miss Helen Boyle and Miss Helen Sullivan seemed reluctant to enter the contest without their original partners, who were not selected by vote. Miss Murphy was the next highest in the standing, and accordingly takes her place with Frank Moore, with whom she danced in the contest Monday. Mr. Fordon decided to limit the Newport team to three couples, and for this reason J. Sherman McGowan, who was the other man chosen Monday evening, was dropped because of inability to secure a partner for him.

Newport's hopes will rest with the three couples, who are to practice afternoon and evening to perfect team work for the contest Thursday. They will make a pleasing appearance on the floor, as the men are to be dressed in tuxedos while the women will wear ball gowns. Maitland, Harvey and Moore are clever dancers, on whom Newporters can pin considerable trust in their ability to stand an even show with the more experienced visiting teams. Miss Lynch, Mrs. Keyes and Miss Murphy will no doubt do all that is expected of them, and will be well accustomed to their partners' style by Thursday.

There will be five judges for the contest between the three cities, one from Newport, one from Providence, one from Fall River, while the other two will be selected from the floor by the first three officials. Miss Helen Weaver, well known in dancing circles, is the probability for the Newport judge.

In addition to the big dancing event, for which a special car is to bring a private party from Fall River, it is expected that the cabaret dinner will draw another large crowd. In addition to the other talent which will appear while the dinner is being served Fordon and Sims will give an exhibition dance. Manager McGowan in booking the talent has required that only select and refined artistes and acts be furnished, which assures better amusement than is ordinarily found in dining halls elsewhere. There will be the usual careful attention to the menu and the price is a popular one. With warm weather promised, the attractions on the board walk, Ruth Law and the Great Norman, the dinner and palm garden cabaret and the big contest dance, there is every indication that the night will attract a big crowd to the beach.

MANY SEE DRAMA.

"What Happened to Mary" Well Acted at Opera House.

Two large audiences witnessed Tuesday the comedy drama, "What Happened to Mary," presented at the Opera House by the Malley-Denison Company. Miss Shirley as Mary, a simple country lass with a strong character, who combats all the snares and temptations of life successfully, plays the part in a charming and graceful manner. She is a Mary with whom everybody is likely to fall in love. Mr Crane has the part of the hero, John Willis, member of a New York law firm, who saves Mary from the clutches of the son of the senior member of the firm.

The comedy importation, "A Bachelor's Honeymoon," will be the offering next week.

PIER POLO INTERRUPTED BY STORM.

A thunderstorm ended in the fourth period Tuesday's polo game between Point Judith and the Aiken Tigers at the Point Judith Polo Club, Narragansett Pier. The home players, aided by a three-goal handicap, were ahead then, 5 to 3½. The match, which is one of a series for the Army and Navy cups, will be played Thursday. Today the Aiken Birds play Bryn Mawr second in the same series.

TITUS COMPANY AWARDED CONTRACT

Lowest Local Bidder for All Furnishings of the Coggeshall Addition.

Thomas L. S. Weaver Selected for Architect for the New School on Mary Street.

The committee on the Coggeshall school held a meeting Tuesday evening, at which the bidders on the furnishings had an opportunity to explain their goods. This was done one at a time, the other agents being outside the aldermanic chamber. After considering the bids as a whole the committee voted to award the contract to the A. C. Titus Company, for $1,610.19 for everything. This was the only bid which covered everything asked for. The next to it was that of Walsh Brothers, who bid on all but the window shades. The Rosen Company bid on 14 of the 43 items named, H. J. Harwood Sons on 11 and the estate of M. Cottrell bid on 6. Of course these were the important matters, the seats and school furnishings proper, while many of the other numbers were articles which the committee could just as well buy as secure on the contract. The Titus bid was less than the Walsh. The bid of H. J. Harwood Sons was less than the Titus, but in view of the fact that it covered so few of all the articles asked for, and also in view of the fact that the Titus was a local and the other an out-of-town bidder, the decision was to award to the Titus Company.

The committee also decided on the architect for the new school on Mary street, Thomas L. S. Weaver being selected. It had applications from about 30 architects and had been in much doubt as to what to do, but the members were so well satisfied with Mr. Weaver's work on the Coggeshall School addition that they selected him.

In addition to the committee there were present Superintendent Lull and Messrs. Peckham and Bacheller of the School Committee. The various bidders were present and had samples of their desks on hand, and Chairman Hughes said that the committee would be glad to hear the various makes of desks and chairs described briefly, suggesting 10 minutes for each. This was agreeable to the bidders and they were taken in the order in which the bids had been opened. They were not strictly held to 10 minutes, but no one was inclined to exceed the limit set.

Walsh Brothers came first on the list and Mr. Leavitt, of Heywood Brothers, manufacturers, described the make of desk and chair and showed the points in which he believed they excelled.

For the A. C. Titus Company Mr. Walkins, of Kensey Brothers & Walkins, described his desks and chairs. This is an old concern, having done business for 70 years and having supplied the Mumford school.

Mr. Harwood of Harwood Brothers, who was next, asked if his bid would be received, he not having any local representative. The committee agreed with what Mr. Hughes had said earlier, that his bid would be considered. He had a number of novel features in the construction of his desk and chair. The firm is a young one, but has supplied a large number of schools.

The last to speak was Mr. Butler of the American Seating Company, who appeared for Mr. Rosen in favor of the new steel desks and seats. These have been adopted for use in Boston, with a standard slightly cheaper than the one he showed here. Chelsea was supplied with them after the fire and there is a very large sale for them. There was no question but there were many novel features in this new desk and it pleased in many ways.

The American Seating Company had another bid in, through the estate of M. Cottrell, for the regular style of wooden desks, but there was no one there to describe them. Superintendent Lull said they are in the Coggeshall school and are well known.

There was an examination of the desks and seats and a general talk. Superintendent Lull, while admitting the many good features of the steel desks, said there is one bad feature, the noise, and the committee quickly found how they could be noisy. Of the wooden desks, he said any are good. Each has some little peculiarity, but they are all what would be called standards and well suited for use.

There was a general discussion of the figures and after some time the committee came to the decision announced above.

WORK ON NEW POLICE STATION BEGUN.

The specifications for the new police station called for the contract to be signed and work started within 10 days after the opening of bids. This was something new, but the contract was signed Monday and this morning Architect Stevens and City Engineer Lawton, with Contractor Kerr, were on the scene of action. It was a scene of action, for the batter boards were erected and in the police station they felt so glad that they thought of lowering their. The work is really on.

TORPEDO STATION CONTROL

Permanent Manager, Not Naval Supervision, Favored by House Committee.

The fact that Secretary Daniels is contemplating a change of control of the navy yards from military to industrial supervision should not be received in Newport with surprise. The Daily News announced last summer, after the visit of the House naval committee here, that its members were discussing this point and could not see the advantage to the nation in having a purely manufacturing establishment in the control of a naval officer, while the successful industrial establishments of the country have as heads specialists in their line who have developed in the business. The members of the committee did not hesitate to say that they favored the business methods which are proving efficient in the big plants of the country, in preference to giving naval officers control during their two years of shore duty. They were plain in their talk about the Torpedo Station, saying it should be administered by a permanent manager. On the committee were men who had been brought up in industrial establishments; and they thought that they knew whereof they spoke.

GARDEN FETE AT HOSPITAL.

Annual Affair for Benefit of Children's Ward Planned for Thursday.

The garden fete for the benefit of the children's ward of the Newport Hospital, to be held Thursday on the grounds adjoining the Nurses' Home, has become an annual affair which attracts a large number. It had its origin a dozen years ago in a sale conducted by a number of young girls residing on Pleasant street and vicinity, and has grown steadily in character and as an attraction of the summer.

There will be tables or booths for the sale of fruit, candy, cake, boxes, fancy and useful articles, dolls, ice cream and other refreshments; grab bags, sand bags, peanut hunts and other attractions for the young and old. Mrs. Damon Lyon will tell fortunes and give a reading for the children, and a special attraction will be dancing by Mr. Charles Fordon and Miss Eleanor Sims, who will give exhibitions of the Brazilian Maxixe, the Tango and the latest dance, the Lulu Fardo. Mr. C. S. Adler will lead the orchestra for the dances.

TEMPEST AT FORT GREBLE.

Y. M. C. A. Tent Blown Down But the Guardsmen Keep Dry.

Tuesday's tempest swept over Fort Greble, broke up a battalion drill and blew down the Young Men's Christian Association tent. The new tents of the National Guard withstood the blow perfectly and the guardsmen found perfect dryness within, though many of the men were soaked in rallying to the rescue of the property of the Young Men's Christian Association. The greatest trouble the guardsmen are encountering is mosquitoes, which are more numerous than ever before. They are not of the variety which carry disease germs, the government officers say, but they are making the days by some lively scratching.

REV. EDGAR F. CLARK.

Former Pastor of Thames Street Methodist Episcopal Church Dead.

Rev. Edgar F. Clark, a former pastor of the Thames Street Methodist Episcopal Church of this city, died at his home in Taunton Tuesday afternoon, after a long illness. He joined the New England Southern Conference in 1882 and was in Newport in 1883-6.

Rev. Mr. Clark was born in South Windsor, Conn., the son of Hiram and Emeline (Hayes) Clark, of a family prominent in that section for several generations. He was educated in Wesleyan University, where he was valedictorian of his class, and at the Concord Theological School.

He first married Julia N. Woodruff at Farmington, Conn. After her death, which occurred several years ago, he married Helen Millar of North Providence, who died about a year ago.

During his long service as a minister Rev. Mr. Clark held pastorates in Providence, Warren, Little Compton and Newport in this state; Norwich and Willimantic, Conn.; Provincetown, New Bedford, Plymouth and Taunton, Mass. He retired from active work about 10 years ago.

Rev. Mr. Clark was well known as a geologist, having been in charge of the government geological survey of the Rhode Island coal field. During these surveys he discovered several new fossil remains, which were presented to various college museums.

Three sons survive—Dr. Fred L. of New Bedford, Dr. Sylvester W. of Providence and Dr. Edward N. of Taunton.

ISLAND PARK PROGRESS.

Cottagers Secure Rebate on Lighting—Park Road Improvements.

At a meeting of the Island Park Improvement Association, at the summer home of James O. Mills, at the "Seaconnet Villa," the committee appointed to see Superintendent Gosling of the electric light company reported that Mr. Gosling had promised to look into the matter of the minimum charge for use of electricity for 10 days or over. He also assured them that he would be glad at any time to meet a committee of the association to talk over any grievance they might have. He expressed a desire some time in the future to ask the company to make a reduction in rates. The committee also took up with him the question of furnishing lights along Park road. Mr. Gosling took this matter under advisement, but thought that the town should furnish the necessary lights.

Since the interview Superintendent Gosling has sent a letter to the Association, stating that he had looked into the matter of the minimum charge and found that through an oversight the company had been billing the cottagers under a 10-day clause when the schedule, as filed with the Public Utilities Commission of Rhode Island, called for a 15-day clause and all those who had been charged under 10 days would receive a rebate during the month of July.

The committee appointed to appear before the town council also made its report. Every member of the council declared himself in favor of putting in a sidewalk and lights along Park road. The council informed the committee that it would be necessary in order to obtain the appropriation for such an extensive improvement to have it appear in the town warrant for the next annual town meeting, which will not be held until May, 1915, but they all believed the voters would support this improvement. The council, after hearing the committee, voted to leave the matter of starting the work of building the sidewalk to Councilman Cory, who had still a little money left from his appropriation, which he is willing to expend on making a start on the sidewalk.

The committee on repairing of the sewer on Fountain avenue also made its report, stating that there are still a few cottagers who have not paid their $2 assessment.
